Stripped Farm Bill Passed By House

Compromise Is Approved By 229 To 163

Measure Extends Voluntary Stopgap Programs One Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats and farm belt Republicans Thursday pushed through a reluctant House a compromise farm bill backed by the Kennedy administration without much enthusiasm.

The vote was 229 to 163.

It would extend for one year current voluntary stopgap programs to curb surplus wheat and feed grain production.

Democrats backed the bill on the theory that it was the only practical step left in the wake of House defeat last month of President Kennedy's plan for a permanent, mandatory feed grain surplus control program.

Bill Goes To Senate

The measure now goes to the Senate, which earlier approved the administration's original bill including mandatory feed grain acreage controls. This bill, however, was later buried in the House Agriculture Committee in a move which now will force the Senate which now will force the fore proceeding to an eventual House-Senate compromise.

Chairman Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., of the House committee assured his colleagues that any eventual compromise would not include the Senate's mandatory control features.

The decision to go to another year of stopgap payments for voluntary feed grain acreage cuts angered some Democrats.

A suddenly rebellious House voted 101 to 62 at one point to abolish feed grain price supports next year, then reversed itself by a 111 to 79 vote as leaders regained control.

Roosevelt Proposal Loses

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., speaking for city Democrats tiring of the cost of farm supports, offered a proposal to repeal all farm programs after 1963 in an effort to force adoption of permanent legislation next year. This was beaten 107 to 74.

The temper of some other legislators was summed up by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, who announced unhappily, "I'm going to hold my nose and vote for this bill."

Democratic floor leaders confessed openly that the measure didn't satisfy them. "But we're faced with a situation that does not allow us to get exactly what I want," Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., told the House.

U.S. And Soviet Clash At Geneva Disarm Session

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet and U.S. delegates scolded each other Thursday over disarmament questions while awaiting the arrival of their foreign ministers for a new series of East-West meetings.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are expected here Friday to join the foreign ministers of 12 other countries in signing a treaty designed to bring peace and neutrality to the Southeast Asian nation of Laos. The pact signing ceremony is set for Monday.

While here, Gromyko and Rusk are expected to seek new approaches to the Berlin problem and disarmament.

Also expected to figure in discussions are British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Maurice Couve de Murville, French foreign minister. West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder is coming to confer with his foreign colleagues even though West Germany is not a member of the 14-nation Laos conference.

In a disarmament committee meeting Thursday, the Soviet Union and the United States clashed over West Germany, nuclear disarmament and a discarded agreement against war propaganda.

West Germany—not a participant in the 17-nation disarmament talks — entered the discussions when Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin attacked "West German militarists and Fascists" while making an appeal to forbid nuclear arms to nations not now possessing them.

After accusing West Germany of "clamoring for nuclear weapons," he challenged the Western atomic powers to withhold nuclear weapons from West Germany and other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries if the Soviet Union would not supply them to Red China.

House Unit May Air Tax Cut Pros, Cons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Public hearings to consider the economic arguments for and against a quick income tax cut may be scheduled soon by the House Ways & Means Committee, it was learned Thursday night.

The committee — under normal legislative procedure — initiates all tax legislation.

The hearings, if held, would focus on the question of whether a tax cut is necessary to head off an economic recession.

This is the $64 question which now confronts President Kennedy. Some of his economic advisers want him to recommend an immediate tax cut. Others are opposed.

The disclosure that committee hearings ere under consideration came as informed sources reported that there appeared to be increasing likelihood that the administration would seek an economy - stimulating tax cut this year.

Kennedy's lieutenants Thursday were asking Democratic senators how they feel about an immediate $5 billion to $7 billion tax reduction. The reaction was reported to be cautious and mixed.

Should the administration decide to launch a tax-cutting drive, the key congressional figure would be Chairman wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways & Means Committee.

Mills has remained unconvinced of the wisdom or necessity of a reduction this year.

Should the committee hold public hearings, it would provide a forum for a national debate on the issue. Economic experts from the academic, business and labor fields would be invited to testify.

However, the final outcome would depend on the conclusions reached by the President himself and by Mills.

There is considerable doubt that the President would seek tax-cutting legislation until such time as Mills was ready to carry the ball for it.

The guarded replies to the administration's poll in the Senate were similar to the response earlier among Democrats on the Ways & Means Committee. A United Press International check of these lawmakers indicated little enthusiasm for going ahead with the reduction, even though it is an election year.

Senate Sends Welfare Bill To President

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate completed congressional action Thursday night on a compromise welfare reform bill that served for two weeks as the vehicle for the fight over health care for the aged.

Voice vote approval sent the bill to the White House. The House had passed it earlier in the day.

It would liberalize federal assistance for the 2.8 million needy aged, blind and disabled on state-administered relief rolls, and at the same time encourage certain welfare recipients to get off relief and on to payrolls.

The measure was a compromise between differing bills passed by the House and Senate. The differences were negotiated by a House-Senate conference group Wednesday night.

High Altitude A-Shot Scheduled Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-altitude nuclear test over Johnston Island in the Pacific has been scheduled for the early morning of next Tuesday, July 24, the Atomic Energy Commission announced Thursday.

It said the device would be in the submegaton range, indicating an explosive force of less than a million tons of TNT, and would be exploded at an altitude of tens of kilometers. A kilometer is about five-eighths of a mile.

The blast would be smaller than the July 8 test, when an explosion exceeding a million tons of TNT was visible over a wide area of the Pacific from New Zealand to Hawaii.

Russian Jets Buzz Two Planes In Berlin Airlanes

BERLIN (UPI) — A Western commercial airliner was buzzed Tuesday by a Soviet fighter on the airlanes to Berlin shortly before the buzzing of a U.S. government plane, it was announced Thursday.

A U.S. spokesman did not identify the airliner, but informed sources said it was a Pan-American plane. Pan American's Berlin manager said, however, that he had no such report.

(In New York, a spokesman for Pan-American said also they had no report of one of their planes being buzzed.)

Communist East Germany, meanwhile, virtually sealed off its Baltic coast in a drastic effort to plug the 190-mile gap in its Iron Curtain barriers against refugees.

The spokesman said the incident was protested to the Russians at the four-power air control center. He said the Russian jet passed "fairly close" to the airliner on the edge of the Berlin air zone after its takeoff on a flight to West Germany.

Western officials were not sure the buzzing was deliberate. But they said in any case the Soviet plane had no business being where it was. The Russians are issued flight plans of Western planes so such incidents can be avoided.

Twenty minutes after the commercial plane was buzzed, a U.S. Federal Aviation Agency plane reported a Soviet jet passed close to it in the corridor.

No announcement was made of the airliner's buzzing until news of it leaked out. It appeared that officials were trying to keep the incident quiet.

X15 Passes Its Toughest Heat Evaluation Test

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—X15 pilot Jack McKay gave the aerospace research craft its toughest heat test yet Thursday.

Engineers estimated temperatures on the leading edges of the X15's stubby wings reached 1,100 degrees Fahrenheit for more than a minute.

The X15 has sustained temperatures up to 1,290 degrees, but only for a few econds while leaving or re-entering the atmosphere.

McKay's mission was to make a level flight within the atmosphere, testing the plane's ability to withstand sustained heating from the air friction returning space craft will encounter.

His peak altitude was 84,500 feet and top speed was 3,375 miles an hour.

McKay was scheduled to fly to 65,000 feet, but an error in the angle of climb sent him higher.

Military Men Consolidate Hold On Peru

Junta Reportedly Holding Political Figures Prisoner

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Several key political figures were reported under arrest Thursday as a one-day-old military junta of four presidents consolidated its dictatorial hold on Peru.

A strike threat by the giant labor federation against the overthrow and arrest of President Manuel Prado apparently fizzled.

A junta member confirmed that the 72-year-old president seized after he spurned the military's demands for annulment of the June 10 election, was held aboard a warship at the nearby port of Callao.

He said Prado was "in good health and very well attended," but gave no indication of what his fate would be.

Among others reported under house arrest was Dr. Jose Enrique Bustamante Corzo, president of the National Electoral Board that failed to act on the armed forces' charges of fraud in the balloting.

A principal foe of the military, presidential candidate Victor Haya de la Torre, was said to have gained refuge in the Venezuelan Embassy. Haya, a leftist but avowed anti-Communist, was front-runner in the election.

A protest strike threatened by the Peruvian Confederation of Workers, which is controlled by Haya's party, apparently failed before it got started.

In Lima, construction workers, chauffers and taxi drivers, whose unions belong to the confederation were on the job as usual.

Reports from the strongly organized cotton, sugar and mining industries in northern Peru were lacking, however, because of a telephone strike unconnected with the political situation.

Lima was quiet after disturbances which lasted late into Wednesday night. The only reported casualties were three wounded students.

The newspaper La Prensa said that among those under detention was Minister of Government Ricardo Elias Aparicio. It also said that radio commentator Juan Ramirez Lazo was seized after he went on the air to speak against the military takeover.

The junta has promised to call new general elections in June 1963.

White House Assails Coup, Halts U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House denounced the military takeover in Peru as a serious setback to democracy Thursday and quickly ordered a halt in U.S. aid.

On the heels of a White House statement that President Kennedy "has noted the developments in Peru with great concern," the State Department announced, "We are as of today suspending our various assistance programs, with certain relatively minor exceptions where important humanitarian factors are involved."

U.S. authorities said the cutoff in Alliance for Progress aid to Peru involves:

1. Withholding all except about $9 million of the $90 million worth of U.S. aid earmarked for Peru since the inauguration of the Alliance for Progress aid effort by Kennedy on March 13, 1961.

2. Holding back on undisclosed sums which might otherwise be going to Peru under the foreign aid program for the current fiscal year which Congress is now considering.

In addition, U.S. government lawyers were weighing the possibility of cutting out U.S. sugar purchases from Peru, for which the United States pays above world market prices.

In unusually caustic terms for a statement on another country, the White House said the Peruvian armed forces' seizure of government power violated the charter of Punta del Este and its pledge to promote the welfare of hemispheric people within a framework of democracy.

A military junta took over the reins of government in Peru and jailed President Manuel Prado after Prado refused to nullify national elections.

Texas Rangers Say Marshall's Death Murder

Police Discount Suicide Theory

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Department of Public Safety said Thursday it believes Henry H. Marshall, a mystery man of the Billie Sol Estes scandal, was murdered.

The surprise announcement came in the release of a letter from Col. Homer Garrison Jr., head of the Texas police organization, to State Dist. Judge John M. Barron of Bryan.

Copies of the letter went to the FBI and to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., whose investigations subcommittee probed the Marshall death and its relations to Estes' cotton allotment manipulations.

Marshall, a U. S. Agriculture Department official, was probing into transfers of cotton allotments, later ruled illegal, by the West Texas farm and fertilizer king.

His body was found June 3, 1961, on his farm near Franklin, Tex. He had been shot five times. Local officials first ruled the death as suicide from the gunshot wounds.

Last month, a Franklin grand jury said it found insufficient evidence to change the suicide verdict.

Investigators found themselves mystified as to how a man could shoot himself with a bolt-action rifle five times, operating the bolt between shots.

Also unexplained was the presence of an almost-lethal amount of carbon monoxide (car exhaust fumes), and a disabling blow over the left eye.

MURDER INDICATED — Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, discusses a letter, released yesterday, in which Garrison said intensive preliminary investigation by his department indicates that Henry Marshall, a federal Department of Agriculture official, did not commit suicide, but was murdered. The letter was sent to Dist. Judge John M. Barron, Bryan, Tex. Marshall, who was investigating cotton allotment affairs of Billie Sol Estes, was found shot to death on his farm near Franklin, Tex., on June 3, 1961. (AP Photofax)

Witness Reverses Self On Marshall's Role

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Texas farm aid official contradicted Thursday earlier testimony that Henry H. Marshall sought to block Billie Sol Estes' cotton-acreage allotment deals.

Meanwhile, Texas officials said their investigation indicates that the death of Marshall near Franklin, Tex., on June 3, 1961, was murder, not suicide.

Marshall, a key state farm official at the time Estes was carrying out his get-rich-quick cotton scheme, was investigating the cotton acreage allotment transfers at the time of his death.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee seeks to determine Marshall's true role—ally of Estes or public official doing his job trying to prevent wrongdoing.

Henry S. Carder of Pecos, a subordinate of Marshall as a field supervisor, testified he believed that on Jan. 25, 1961, Marshall changed earlier orders to search diligently for evidence of any illegal side agreements in transfers from pooled cotton allotments of farmers forced off their lands by public projects.

UAR Plane, 26 Aboard, Missing In Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand, Friday (UPI)—A United Arab Airlines Comet jet carrying 26 persons was reported missing Thursday on a flight from Hong Kong to Bangkok.

Airport officials said the four-jet Comet IV, with 18 passengers and a crew of 8 was due at 10:15 p.m. local time Thursday (11:15 a.m. EDT).

Government Ends Fiscal 1962 $6.3 Billion In Red

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government ended fiscal 1962 with a budget deficit of $6.3 billion, the Treasury and Budget Bureau reported Thursday. The figure was $700 million less than estimated in January.

Income was $700 million lower than foreseen in President Kennedy's budget message to Congress. But spending also was lower, by $1.4 billion.

The deficit nevertheless was the largest in peacetime except for that of 1959, when the government sank into $1.24 billion of red ink, and that of 1953, which reflected the peak spending of the Korean hostilities.

It was the 10th budget with a deficit in the 16 years which started with fiscal 1947, after the tide of World War II spending ebbed.

The final figures for the fiscal year which ended June 30 came in the Treasury's monthly statement. It showed:

Receipts, $81,360,367,259.

Expenditures, $87,667,980,122.

Deficit, $6,307,612,863.

The Treasury's report was accompanied by a statement of Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Budget Director David E. Bell which noted that the business recession of 1960-61 seriously cut into tax revenues.

"If the economy had operated at its full potential, the federal government would have realized a substantial surplus in the fiscal year 1962," the statement said.

Atlas ICBM Is Intercepted By Nike-Zeus

Missile "Killed" Over Pacific After 5,000-Mile Flight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Nike-Zeus antimissile scored the world's first known intercept of a 16,000-mile-an-hour ICBM warhead on Thursday.

The white, 48-foot Nike-Zeus missile killer streaked up from Kwajalein in the mid-Pacific and intercepted a special target vehicle launched by an Atlas intercontinental missile from California about 5,000 miles away.

Informed sources indicated the Nike-Zeus rocket did not actually strike the warhead, but came close enough to have destroyed it if atomically armed. Neither the test warhead nor the Nike-Zeus carried a nuclear charge.

"There would have been a destruct (kill) here under real conditions," a Defense Department spokesman said.

Feat Follows Khrush Boast

The Nike-Zeus achievement carried wide diplomatic implications.

It came only two days after publication of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's boast that the Soviet Union has a global rocket invulnerable to "any antirocket means."

In announcing the Nike-Zeus' success, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara retorted to another Khrushchev claim—that the Soviet Union has developed its own antimissile rocket.

McNamara declared that U.S. rocket development programs "give us confidence that our missiles would be able to penetrate any such (antimissile) system which has been developed by anyone."

A Pentagon spokesman said he had no knowledge of any other successful intercept anywhere.

First Attempt Failed

The achievement actually came on at least the second try. The spokesman said, "There was an earlier shot that was not a complete success."

He declined to elaborate.

This was just the opening of an Atlas intercept test series that may continue for months, with the challenges presented to the Nike-Zeus made more difficult each time.

But it was the climactic development so far in a seven-year program which has cost about $1.2 billion and could cost as much as $15 billion if the missile killer ever is put into production to help protect U.S. cities.

The Army, which has been waging an uphill battle to get the Zeus into production, is hopeful the success at Kwajalein will give its controversial program a big boost.

U.N. Contends Tshombe's Men Slew Katangans

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)—The United Nations has charged Katanga troops with killing an African woman and child near a besieged U.N. roadblock in Elisabethville Tuesday — then making it look as though U.N. troops fired the fatal shots.

The chief of the U.N. Congo operation, Robert Gardiner of Ghana, said in a letter to Katanga President Moise Tshombe that a women's march against the roadblock was "premeditated and organized for political ends."

Gardiner noted that U.N. officials and Tshombe himself saw the bodies of the victims in the local hospital. "When you were in the hospital," Gardiner wrote Tshombe, "all the firing that had occurred had been done by the Katanga gendarmerie and police.

"I am therefore forced to the conclusion that the woman and the wounded child who later died in the hospital both succumbed to wounds inflicted by men in the service of Katanga."

Gardiner went on: "I find it revolting that human lives can be wantonly destroyed for the purpose of useless propaganda in order to throw the blame onto the United Nations."

Gardiner's letter was dated July 17, the day the violent outbreak occurred, but it was handed to Tshombe on Wednesday after Gardiner himself had flown to the Katanga capital to head an international investigation of the incident.

Rocket Tests Over Remote Areas Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning next year, the Army will test-fire rocket weapons—without explosive warheads—across lightly populated areas of the United States.

Official announcement Thursday of plans for the first such missile firings said they would begin in the middle of 1963.

The Army explained it feels the step is necessary because the White Sands, N.M., rocket testing area has a maximum length of only 100 miles which does not permit full scale tests of the longer-range weapons.

The plan is to fire the rockets from outside sites into the White Sands Reservation, routing the weapons over areas which have an average population of only 1.5 persons to the square mile.

The missiles would carry neither nuclear nor conventional explosives in their dummy warheads.

1,500 Rome Doctors Remain On Strike

ROME (AP)—About 1,500 doctors on the staffs of seven government-run hospitals in Rome were on strike for the second day Thursday. The hospitals provided only emergency service.

Rome's scores of private hospitals and clinics were not affected. More than 20,000 doctors in government-operated hospitals in the rest of Italy also did not join the strike.

The striking physicians seek higher wages and improved state hospital facilities. They now earn an average of about $100 monthly but can practice privately.

Among others reported under house arrest was Dr. Jose Enrique Bustamante Corzo, president of the National Electoral Board that failed to act on the armed forces' charges of fraud in the balloting.

A principal foe of the military, presidential candidate Victor Haya de la Torre, was said to have gained refuge in the Venezuelan Embassy. Haya, a leftist but avowed anti-Communist, was front-runner in the election.

A protest strike threatened by the Peruvian Confederation of Workers, which is controlled by Haya's party, apparently failed before it got started.

In Lima, construction workers, chauffers and taxi drivers, whose unions belong to the confederation were on the job as usual.

Reports from the strongly organized cotton, sugar and mining industries in northern Peru were lacking, however, because of a telephone strike unconnected with the political situation.

Lima was quiet after disturbances which lasted late into Wednesday night. The only reported casualties were three wounded students.

The newspaper La Prensa said that among those under detention was Minister of Government Ricardo Elias Aparicio. It also said that radio commentator Juan Ramirez Lazo was seized after he went on the air to speak against the military takeover.

The junta has promised to call new general elections in June 1963.

White House Assails Coup, Halts U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House denounced the military takeover in Peru as a serious setback to democracy Thursday and quickly ordered a halt in U.S. aid.

On the heels of a White House statement that President Kennedy "has noted the developments in Peru with great concern," the State Department announced. "We are as of today suspending our various assistance programs, with certain relatively minor exceptions where important humanitarian factors are involved."

U.S. authorities said the cutoff in Alliance for Progress aid to Peru involves:

1. Withholding all except about $9 million of the $90 million worth of U.S. aid earmarked for Peru since the inauguration of the Alliance for Progress aid effort by Kennedy on March 13, 1961.

2. Holding back on undisclosed sums which might otherwise be going to Peru under the foreign aid program for the current fiscal year which Congress is now considering.

In addition, U.S. government lawyers were weighing the possibility of cutting out U.S. sugar purchases from Peru, for which the United States pays above world market prices.

In unusually caustic terms for a statement on another country, the White House said the Peruvian armed forces' seizure of government power violated the charter of Punta del Este and its pledge to promote the welfare of hemispheric people within a framework of democracy.

A military junta took over the reins of government in Peru and jailed President Manuel Prado after Prado refused to nullify national elections.

Texas Rangers Say Marshall's Death Murder

Police Discount Suicide Theory

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Department of Public Safety said Thursday it believes Henry H. Marshall, a mystery man of the Billie Sol Estes scandal, was murdered.

The surprise announcement came in the release of a letter from Col. Homer Garrison Jr., head of the Texas police organization, to State Dist. Judge John M. Barron of Bryan.

Copies of the letter went to the FBI and to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., whose investigations subcommittee probed the Marshall death and its relations to Estes' cotton allotment manipulations.

Marshall, a U. S. Agriculture Department official, was probing into transfers of cotton allotments, later ruled illegal, by the West Texas farm and fertilizer king.

His body was found June 3, 1961, on his farm near Franklin, Tex. He had been shot five times. Local officials first ruled the death as suicide from the gunshot wounds.

Last month, a Franklin grand jury said it found insufficient evidence to change the suicide verdict.

Investigators found themselves mystified as to how a man could shoot himself with a bolt-action rifle five times, operating the bolt between shots.

Also unexplained was the presence of an almost-lethal amount of carbon monoxide (car exhaust fumes), and a disabling blow over the left eye.

MURDER INDICATED — Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, discusses a letter, released yesterday, in which Garrison said intensive preliminary investigation by his department indicates that Henry Marshall, a federal Department of Agriculture official, did not commit suicide, but was murdered. The letter was sent to Dist. Judge John M. Barron, Bryan, Tex. Marshall, who was investigating cotton allotment affairs of Billie Sol Estes, was found shot to death on his farm near Franklin, Tex., on June 3, 1961. (AP Photofax)

Witness Reverses Self On Marshall's Role

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Texas farm aid official contradicted Thursday earlier testimony that Henry H. Marshall sought to block Billie Sol Estes' cotton-acreage allotment deals.

Meanwhile, Texas officials said their investigation indicates that the death of Marshall near Franklin, Tex., on June 3, 1961, was murder, not suicide.

Marshall, a key state farm official at the time Estes was carrying out his get-rich-quick cotton scheme, was investigating the cotton acreage allotment transfers at the time of his death.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee seeks to determine Marshall's true role—ally of Estes or public official doing his job trying to prevent wrongdoing.

Henry S. Carder of Pecos, a subordinate of Marshall as a field supervisor, testified he believed that on Jan. 25, 1961, Marshall changed earlier orders to search diligently for evidence of any illegal side agreements in transfers from pooled cotton allotments of farmers forced off their lands by public projects.

BANGKOK, Thailand, Friday (UPI)—A United Arab Airlines Comet jet carrying 26 persons was reported missing Thursday on a flight from Hong Kong to Bangkok.

Airport officials said the four-jet Comet IV, with 18 passengers and a crew of 8 was due at 10:15 p.m. local time Thursday (11:15 a.m. EDT).

U.N. Contends Tshombe's Men Slew Katangans

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)—The United Nations has charged Katanga troops with killing an African woman and child near a besieged U.N. roadblock in Elisabethville Tuesday — then making it look as though U.N. troops fired the fatal shots.

The chief of the U.N. Congo operation, Robert Gardiner of Ghana, said in a letter to Katanga President Moise Tshombe that a women's march against the roadblock was "premeditated and organized for political ends."

Gardiner noted that U.N. officials and Tshombe himself saw the bodies of the victims in the local hospital. "When you were in the hospital," Gardiner wrote Tshombe, "all the firing that had occurred had been done by the Katanga gendarmerie and police.

"I am therefore forced to the conclusion that the woman and the wounded child who later died in the hospital both succumbed to wounds inflicted by men in the service of Katanga."

Gardiner went on: "I find it revolting that human lives can be wantonly destroyed for the purpose of useless propaganda in order to throw the blame onto the United Nations."

Gardiner's letter was dated July 17, the day the violent outbreak occurred, but it was handed to Tshombe on Wednesday after Gardiner himself had flown to the Katanga capital to head an international investigation of the incident.

Government Ends Fiscal 1962 $6.3 Billion In Red

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government ended fiscal 1962 with a budget deficit of $6.3 billion, the Treasury and Budget Bureau reported Thursday. The figure was $700 million less than estimated in January.

Income was $700 million lower than foreseen in President Kennedy's budget message to Congress. But spending also was lower, by $1.4 billion.

The deficit nevertheless was the largest in peacetime except for that of 1959, when the government sank into $1.24 billion of red ink, and that of 1953, which reflected the peak spending of the Korean hostilities.

It was the 10th budget with a deficit in the 16 years which started with fiscal 1947, after the tide of World War II spending ebbed.

The final figures for the fiscal year which ended June 30 came in the Treasury's monthly statement. It showed:

Receipts, $81,360,367,259.

Expenditures, $87,667,980,122.

Deficit, $6,307,612,863.

The Treasury's report was accompanied by a statement of Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Budget Director David E Bell which noted that the business recession of 1960-61 seriously cut into tax revenues.

"If the economy had operated at its full potential, the federal government would have realized a substantial surplus in the fiscal year 1962," the statement said.

Atlas ICBM Is Intercepted By Nike-Zeus

Missile "Killed" Over Pacific After 5,000-Mile Flight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Nike-Zeus antimissile scored the world's first known intercept of a 16,000-mile-an-hour ICBM warhead on Thursday.

The white, 48-foot Nike-Zeus missile killer streaked up from Kwajalein in the mid-Pacific and intercepted a special target vehicle launched by an Atlas intercontinental missile from California about 5,000 miles away.

Informed sources indicated the Nike-Zeus rocket did not actually strike the warhead, but came close enough to have destroyed it if atomically armed. Neither the test warhead nor the Nike-Zeus carried a nuclear charge.

"There would have been a destruct (kill) here under real conditions," a Defense Department spokesman said.

Feat Follows Khrush Boast

The Nike-Zeus achievement carried wide diplomatic implications.

It came only two days after publication of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's boast that the Soviet Union has a global rocket invulnerable to "any antirocket means."

In announcing the Nike-Zeus' success, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara retorted to another Khrushchev claim—that the Soviet Union has developed its own antimissile rocket.

McNamara declared that U.S. rocket development programs "give us confidence that our missiles would be able to penetrate any such (antimissile) system which has been developed by anyone."

A Pentagon spokesman said he had no knowledge of any other successful intercept anywhere.

First Attempt Failed

The achievement actually came on at least the second try. The spokesman said, "There was an earlier shot that was not a complete success."

He declined to elaborate.

This was just the opening of an Atlas intercept test series that may continue for months, with the challenges presented to the Nike-Zeus made more difficult each time.

But it was the climactic development so far in a seven-year program which has cost about $1.2 billion and could cost as much as $15 billion if the missile killer ever is put into production to help protect U.S. cities.

The Army, which has been waging an uphill battle to get the Zeus into production, is hopeful the success at Kwajalein will give its controversial program a big boost.

Rocket Tests Over Remote Areas Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning next year, the Army will test-fire rocket weapons—without explosive warheads—across lightly populated areas of the United States.

Official announcement Thursday of plans for the first such missile firings said they would begin in the middle of 1963.

The Army explained it feels the step is necessary because the White Sands, N.M., rocket testing area has a maximum length of only 100 miles which does not permit full scale tests of the longer-range weapons.

The plan is to fire the rockets from outside sites into the White Sands Reservation, routing the weapons over areas which have an average population of only 1.5 persons to the square mile.

The missiles would carry neither nuclear nor conventional explosives in their dummy warheads.

1,500 Rome Doctors Remain On Strike

ROME (AP)—About 1,500 doctors on the staffs of seven government-run hospitals in Rome were on strike for the second day Thursday. The hospitals provided only emergency service.

Rome's scores of private hospitals and clinics were not affected. More than 20,000 doctors in government-operated hospitals in the rest of Italy also did not join the strike.

The striking physicians seek higher wages and improved state hospital facilities. They now earn an average of about $100 monthly but can practice privately.

Court Bars Union Funds Use To Defend Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high federal court ruling Thursday cut off labor union officials from access to union treasuries for funds to defend themselves against charges they defrauded the union's members.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled also that it is improper for a lawyer to represent a union in the same litigation in which he defends a union official against charges of wrongdoing.

The unanimous three-judge decision ordered a U.S. district court review to determine whether Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa and other Teamsters officials improperly used union-paid attorneys and funds in their defense against fraud charges.

If they did, the court ordered that the union officials be required to repay the union some of the legal costs, which ran well over $1 million.

There was no immediate comment on the decision from Hoffa, who was reported in San Francisco, or the union's general counsel, Edward Bennett Williams.

The ruling, by Judge Charles Fahy, is an offshoot of a now-compromised lawsuit, brought in 1957 by dissident Teamsters Union members, seeking to have Hoffa thrown out as top man in the nation's largest labor union. They charged Hoffa rigged his own election, but he was allowed to retain the post as part of the compromise.

The appeals court, dealing with attorneys' fees in the earlier case, said, "The treasury of a union is not at the disposal of its officers to bear the cost of their defense against charges of fraudulently depriving the members of their rights as members."

Even if the officers are ultimately cleared it is improper to use union funds in their defense, the court said.

One of the few places in America where dates are grown commercially is in Phoenix, capital of Arizona's Valley of the Sun resort region.

Briefs Offered In Referendum Petition Case

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Three Baltimore County citizens have told the Court of Appeals that only when a person knowingly commits fraud should all the names on a petition to referendum be declared invalid.

James L. Llewellyn, Morris Rothholz and Mrs. D. Alverda Booth, in a brief filed with the state's high court Thursday, asked that a Baltimore County Circuit Court decision be upheld.

Judge John E. Raine Jr. ruled in the lower court that one improper name on a petition to bring a school bus measure to referendum could not invalidate the entire petition.

His decision was appealed by Del. Herbert H. Tyler, sponsor of the measure in 1961 to allow parochial and private school children to ride public school buses in Baltimore County.

The state's high court will hear oral arguments in the case Monday, the same day it hears an appeal from Anne Arundel County Circuit Court ruling that the present makeup of the Maryland Senate is constitutional.

The secretary of the state and the Board of Election Supervisors of Baltimore County were also named in the appeal by Tyler.

The attorney general, listed technically as supporting the secretary of state, submitted briefs Thursday arguing Tyler's case. case. The Board of Election Supervisors, in its brief, said it was not an interested party because it could not act on the petitions until the secretary of state took his action.

Tyler challenged some of the signatures on the petitions and asked the lower court to prevent the secretary of state from certifying them. At this point, the attorney general entered the case.

He ruled that one improper signature on a petition invalidated its affidavit that all signatures are correct. He said that the entire petition was therefore invalid. It was that decision hich Judge Raine overruled.

Llewellyn, Rothholz and Booth, sponsors of the referendum petitions, said in their brief that Tyler did not show sufficient facts to prove actual fraud or fraudulent practices.

Goldstein Calls Pressman's Hand

BALTIMORE (AP) — Comptroller Louis H. Goldstein has invited a critic of administration fiscal policies, Hyman A. Pressman, to discuss with him the fiscal 1962 general fund surplus.

"If Mr. Pressman would like to come to Annapolis and sit down with me," Goldstein said, "I would be more than happy to explain to him the state's tax structure and government financing.

"The records are public and anyone is welcome to examine them."

Goldstein said he would not get into a running feud with Pressman, a Baltimore attorney who had criticized administration officials for underestimating the state surplus.

Pressman told Gov. Tawes in a letter earlier Thursday that lowering the sales tax base from 50 cents to 25 cents and imposing the tax on restaurant meals was unnecessary in view of the $18.1 million surplus for the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

Garmatz Raps Ike's Choice Of British Ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was criticized in the House Thursday for choosing a British ship for his trip to Europe. He sailed from New York this week aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth.

Rep. Edward A. Garmatz, D-Md., said that this "sets an unfortunate example" by one who only a few years ago referred to the American Merchant Marine as the fourth arm of defense.

Garmatz asked whether the former President has forgotten that "every dollar paid to a foreign ship line contributes to our loss of gold and increases our imbalance of payment."

King Calls For Negro Voting Rights Drive

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. called on the Justice Department Thursday to act "in thousands of communities in which the right to vote is flagrantly and brutally denied to Negroes."

The antisegregation leader who is president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, spoke to the National Press Club.

In his prepared text he paid tribute to actions already taken by the Justice Department under Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. He said it "has certainly moved with forthrightness and concern in the sensitive area of voter registration."

"But," he aid, "the coming period will undoubtedly require that the Justice Department utilize the Civil Rights Act of 1960 extensively and seek court appointed referees in thousands of communities" in a drive to assure Negroes the vote.

Soblen Appeals British Court Decision

LONDON (UPI)—Runaway Soviet spy Robert A. Soblen filed an appeal Thursday from a British high court decision confining him to a London prison, a legal maneuver that appeared to have won him at least two more weeks respite from a U.S. life imprisonment term.

Court sources said the appeal was expected to be given swift consideration, possibly within the next two weeks. It was thought earlier the maneuver might win a six-weeks delay but it was understood the appeals court would rule before the start of summer vacations.

The notice of appeal for the 61-year-old Lithuanian-born psychiatrist was filed with the Civil Court of Appeals just one day after Britain's high court rejected his application for a writ of habeas corpus. The court first will hear Soblen's reasons for challenging the high court ruling before it takes any action.

Soblen was convicted of wartime espionage for the Soviet Union. He jumped $100,000 bail shortly before he was to enter prison and fled to Israel. He was expelled by Israel and was being flown to the United States when he stabbed himself with a stolen steak knife and was placed in a London hospital.

Science At Work

By The Associated Press

The science news ranges from a curious heating of the earth's high atmosphere to cloud sampling and a project to gather up a pound of the moon.

Heating Mechanism

Some variations in satellite orbits apparently are due to a heating of the earth's extremely tenuous upper atmosphere ranging from 180 to 1,270 miles high.

Here in the "thermosphere," the atmosphere breathes, lifting denser layers of air to higher levels, with this upper atmosphere reaching a maximum temperature about 2 p.m.

This heating comes not just from direct sunlight, but seemingly also from the "solar wind" of particles streaming from the sun, report Drs. Isadore Harris and Wolfgang Priester of the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md.

Loud Harvest

Swedish and American scientists have set out to capture samples of curious clouds which glow at night from 60 miles high over Scandinavia but not over some other areas just as far north.

Rockets equipped with special collectors will take samples from 55 to 75 miles high, firing two when clouds are present and two on clear evenings for comparison. Scientists hope to learn whether the clouds contain water vapor, and whether the dust forming their nucleus comes from the earth, from space, or both.

Moon Visit

Sending a rocket to the moon to drill into its surface and bring back a pound of moon is proposed in an engineering study.

This moon messenger, nicknamed Greencheese, would be spherical, about 44 inches in diameter, and would contain its own small rocket to return it home.

After a soft landing on the moon, the Greencheese vehicle would separate itself from its carrier and be equipped with retractable legs and small jets so it could hop around until it found a spot level enough to stand itself upright.

Then from the underside two drills would bore downward to collect moondust and penetrate a foot beneath he surface. The samples would be sealed inside the vehicle, the drills retracted, and Greencheese would send a signal to the earth for computers to work out the aiming and firing of the rocket for its journey home, ending with a parachute landing.

According to the study by Saul K. Fenster and William Peters of Sperry Rand Corporation, the mission seems technically feasible to be carried out by 1964, if a decision is made to do so.

Defense Dept. Opens Drive To Trim Staff

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department disclosed Wednesday it has launched a major effort to cut its own Washington personnel roster as well as the separate staffs of Army, Navy and Air Force headquarters here.

The Defense Department staff has been growing rapidly while studies aimed at cutting the services were in progress.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's order aimed at "reduction in manpower" in his staff of 29,338 military and civilian personnel, was brought to light after publication of details of his effort to trim the service's headquarters staffs.

X15 Pilot May Join U.S. Astronaut Team

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Neil A. Armstrong, one of five pilots assigned to the record-shattering X15 rocket plane, was given a "better than 75 per cent chance" Wednesday of making America's astronaut team.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration emphasized that none of the new astronauts has been selected and would not be until late summer or early fall.

Armstrong, who will be 32 on Aug. 5, is a native of Wapakoneta, Ohio. He joined the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, NASA's predecessor, in 1954, and recently has been connected with the Dyna Soar "space glider" project.

He has been active in the X15 program, and has flown the plane at speeds up to 3,715 miles per hour and altitudes up to 207,600 feet.

Hallanan Resigns, Reveals Alleged Conflict-Of-Interest Row

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Walter S. Hallanan resigned Wednesday as chairman of the National Petroleum Council and brought to light an alleged conflict-of-interest dispute between the council and the Interior Department.

The advisory council, composed of 100 oil industry leaders, was formed 16 years ago to help the government bring order to its chaotic postwar petroleum supply problems. Hallanan, former president of Plymouth Oil Co., had headed the council since its founding.

He said in his resignation statement that he was relinquishing his post reluctantly because he was no longer active in the industry. He named R. G. Follis, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of California, as acting chairman.

Then he said his decision "comes at a time when there has developed a seriously fundamental difference" between members of the council and Assistant Interior Secretary John M. Kelly over conflict-of-interest rules issued by President Kennedy last spring.

The rules among other things disqualified any consultant or adviser from performing government duties "involving transaction of business with a business firm of other organization by which he is employed, or to which he renders consultant service, or in which he has a financial interest."

Hallanan, who is also Republican National Committeeman for West Virginia, declared this remains "an important unsolved problem" between the council and Kelly, who presides as co-chairman when the council meets. But a spokesman for Kelly told UPI the assistant secretary has no knowledge of any such dispute or that there had been any rebellion against Kelly within the council. He suggested that Hallanan "spell out his charges for all to see."

A council spokesman told UPI that in May the council members received a memorandum from Kelly citing Kennedy's conflict-of-interest rules, plus an executive order on enforcement, he said Hallanan had asked Kelly for a statement clarifying both as they apply to the members but had received no response.

Science At Work

By The Associated Press

The science news ranges from a curious heating of the earth's high atmosphere to cloud sampling and a project to gather up a pound of the moon.

Heating Mechanism

Some variations in satellite orbits apparently are due to a heating of the earth's extremely tenuous upper atmosphere ranging from 180 to 1,270 miles high.

Here in the "thermosphere," the atmosphere breathes, lifting denser layers of air to higher levels, with this upper atmosphere reaching a maximum temperature about 2 p.m.

This heating comes not just from direct sunlight, but seemingly also from the "solar wind" of particles streaming from the sun, report Drs. Isadore Harris and Wolfgang Priester of the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md.

Loud Harvest

Swedish and American scientists have set out to capture samples of curious clouds which glow at night from 60 miles high over Scandinavia but not over some other areas just as far north.

Rockets equipped with special collectors will take samples from 55 to 75 miles high, firing two when clouds are present and two on clear evenings for comparison. Scientists hope to learn whether the clouds contain water vapor, and whether the dust forming their nucleus comes from the earth, from space, or both.

Moon Visit

Sending a rocket to the moon to drill into its surface and bring back a pound of moon is proposed in an engineering study.

This moon messenger, nicknamed Greencheese, would be spherical, about 44 inches in diameter, and would contain its own small rocket to return it home.

After a soft landing on the moon, the Greencheese vehicle would separate itself from its carrier and be equipped with retractable legs and small jets so it could hop around until it found a spot level enough to stand itself upright.

Then from the underside two drills would bore downward to collect moondust and penetrate a foot beneath he surface. The samples would be sealed inside the vehicle, the drills retracted, and Greencheese would send a signal to the earth for computers to work out the aiming and firing of the rocket for its journey home, ending with a parachute landing.

According to the study by Saul K. Fenster and William Peters of Sperry Rand Corporation, the mission seems technically feasible to be carried out by 1964, if a decision is made to do so.

Some cooks find that adding a teaspoon of vinegar to the water in which eggs are being poached helps to keep the egg whites from spreading unduly. Another protection against spreading is to use extremely fresh eggs!

When that yeast dough is rising, never keep it warm over a pilot flame because the chances are it will get too warm. The dough should rise at an 80 to 85 degree temperature.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Two Ways To Supple Loveliness

The secret of lissome grace reposes in your exterior muscles (those that do the stretching). Though the flexor muscles, which do the bending, are kept strong by constant use, the extensor muscles become less active in adult life. This results in gradual changes in the body that give the appearance of age. The body tends to shrink, sag, grow shorter or become bent with loss of tone in the exterior muscles. That's when the pounds move in and settle down to their flabby life in the spaces between the loosened muscles, and extra weight begins to tell.

Recapturing the grace of youth is a pleasant routine, because it consists of merely stretching the lax muscles, in order to retrain them. Make this routine your daily habit, and see how quickly your resilience returns!

1. Stand erect with your feet together and your arms at your sides. Fling both arms vigorously forward and upward overhead. At the same time, swing the left leg straight back from the hip. As you lower your arms with the same powerful swing, let your leg swing forward.

Keep your elbows and knees straight, but not stiff; be forceful in your movements and work up a good momentum. Perform this exercise five times without stopping before you switch to the right leg. Work up to ten times each for both legs.

2. Crouch down with your knees well bent and together. Curl your trunk forward until your head touches your knees. Place your hands on the floor for balance.

Straighten your legs very gradually, keeping your trunk curled. When your knees are completely straightened up, begin to uncurl your trunk, starting at the base of your spine and ending up with your shoulders and neck.

Then, very slowly start to s-t-r-e-t-c-h your arms toward the ceiling. Hold for a count of ten, relax and repeat the entire exercise. Three times for the routine is enough at first. Increase the number a bit each day until you have reached ten. That's when the results set in!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Two Ways To Supple Loveliness

The secret of lissome grace reposes in your exterior muscles (those that do the stretching). Though the flexor muscles, which do the bending, are kept strong by constant use, the extensor muscles become less active in adult life. This results in gradual changes in the body that give the appearance of age. The body tends to shrink, sag, grow shorter or become bent with loss of tone in the exterior muscles. That's when the pounds move in and settle down to their flabby life in the spaces between the loosened muscles, and extra weight begins to tell.

Recapturing the grace of youth is a pleasant routine, because it consists of merely stretching the lax muscles, in order to retrain them. Make this routine your daily habit, and see how quickly your resilience returns!

1. Stand erect with your feet together and your arms at your sides. Fling both arms vigorously forward and upward overhead. At the same time, swing the left leg straight back from the hip. As you lower your arms with the same powerful swing, let your leg swing forward.

Keep your elbows and knees straight, but not stiff; be forceful in your movements and work up a good momentum. Perform this exercise five times without stopping before you switch to the right leg. Work up to ten times each for both legs.

2. Crouch down with your knees well bent and together. Curl your trunk forward until your head touches your knees. Place your hands on the floor for balance.

Straighten your legs very gradually, keeping your trunk curled. When your knees are completely straightened up, begin to uncurl your trunk, starting at the base of your spine and ending up with your shoulders and neck.

Then, very slowly start to s-t-r-e-t-c-h your arms toward the ceiling. Hold for a count of ten, relax and repeat the entire exercise. Three times for the routine is enough at first. Increase the number a bit each day until you have reached ten. That's when the results set in!

Western District BPW Board To Meet Tomorrow

The executive committee of the Western District of the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., will meet at the Ali Ghan Country Club tomorrow. Miss. Gerardine Pritchard, district chairman, will preside.

By-laws, district emblem, woman of the year award, district meetings, a district workshop for October 20 and a membership clinic are to be discussed.

Members of the executive committee are Mrs. Lucille Wolford, Frederick, vice chairman; Miss Orpha-Bonita Pritchard, secretary; Miss Mary Jo Logsdon, president of the Cumberland club; Mrs. Mary Browning, president of the Garrett County Club; Mrs. Henrietta Sinn, president of the Hagerstown Club; and Mrs. Evelyn Ayersman, president of the Frederick Club.

Also attending will be Miss June Fishpaw, Baltimore, first vice president of the Maryland Federation and district co-ordinator; Mrs. Helen Mason, Wheaton, state membership chairman; Mrs. Ruth Fleming, Silver Spring, state chaplain; Miss Carrie Fishpaw, Uplands Club; and Miss Patricia White, recording secretary of the Garrett County Club.

Following the meeting those attending will be guests of the chairman at a luncheon.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market setback this week, sharp as it is, doesn't seem to have caused too much surprise or alarm on Wall Street.

Three weeks of advance after the long, deep slump was just about all that could be expected at this time, brokers felt.

And last week's spate of good business news played out and was superceded by economic reports which were not encouraging.

In the opinion of Joseph E. Granville, analyst for the brokerage house, E. F. Hutton & Co., the overbought condition of the market evident last week suggested some pause or setback in the almost unbroken advance since the June 25 turn.

Pointing out that the correction of the 65-point advance so far has run to about 21 per cent, he believes there is room for further retreat.

"The market is very sensitive at this point and, being a very nervous market, the temptation is strong to retreat from long positions on any signs of technical deterioration. This temptation is the strongest on the first break following an initial recovery swing from greatly depressed levels.

"However, past performance in such situations more often than not indicates that the first retreating movement presents some buying opportunities. Very seldom does the first reaction lead into a full-scale resumption of the previous declining trend."

Sidney B. Lurie of Josephthal & Co. said it seems to him that any reaction should be mild, that the highs for the current phase have yet to be seen, and that the market has discounted a great deal of the present environment.

Business Tabs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Phillips Petroleum Co. announced Wednesday that its development well in Lea County, New Mexico, has a flow rate of about 1,339 barrels of oil a day. The well is located in the Vacuum field where Phillips holds 2,360 net acres. The company said it is drilling a northeast offset to the well.

BOSTON (UPI)—Ingersoll-Rand Co. has acquired the Millers Falls Co. of Greenfield, Mass., it was jointly announced by both firms.

Ingersoll-Rand manufactures a broad line of air and gas compressors. Millers Falls Co. manufacturers tools for the home and industry.

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's nationalized coal industry, in its bid to fight off oil's competition, is organizing the first coal sales convention ever held here.

The National Coal Board (NCB) announced Wednesday the idea of the convention, scheduled for September, is to unite all organizations concerned with coal behind NCB's current massive sales effort.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The domestic airlines lost $874,000 in May despite a $25 million rise in business over a year ago, the Air Transport Association reported Wednesday.

The lines had an operating profit of $4.4 million, but taxes, non-operating expense and special charges wiped it all out.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Business failures across the nation declined for the second consecutive month, falling 7 per cent to 1,281 in June, Dun & Bradstreet Inc., reported Wednesday. This month's improvement was primarily among medium - sized traded and construction firms.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Electric energy output throughout the nation last week rose to 16,749,000,000 kilowatt hours from 15,442,000,000 the preceding week and compared with 15,071,000,000 in the same week last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported Wednesday.

All geographic sections showed substantial increases over the similar period last year.

FOR THE COED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Denim, never a fabric to take a back seat, moves up front in back-to-college clothes collections. Included are frontier pants, hip huggers with their low-waisted look, street length wrap skirts, Bermuda skirts with patch pockets and back wrap treatment to be worn with leotard tights and high boots, blazers with matching slacks, and ski parkas.

Titoland Looks Prosperous But There's Trouble Under Surface

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Marshal Tito's shiny brand of communism is in trouble — but Yugoslavs are confident the old Partisan leader will lead them out of the wood once again.

To the visitor from other Communist countries, Titoland looks remarkably prosperous.

Japanese radios, German cameras, American foods, Italian clothes, Scotch whiskies and Swiss watches are in the shops in Belgrade and in the provinces. You don't see them elsewhere in East Europe.

Stores are crowded and the streets bustling with activity. There are supermarkets, American style cafeteria and attractive restaurants.

Teen-agers sit in the parks with transistor radios glued to their ears, and girls in tight-fitting leotards get out from behind the wheels of Hillman and Mercedes automobiles.

The bookstores sell translations of Western best-sellers.

In short, you could be in a Western city. The classic signs of communism — slogans, marching organized crowds, political indoctrination classes — are scarcely evident.

Tito accomplished this with his own brand of communism, with American aid, and a great deal of popular support.

Tito found Russia's centralized state control of the entire national economy would not work. He therefore adopted certain practices found in capitalism — such as the principle that men need incentives to work and an economy must operate by supply and demand or stagnate.

For instance, a local community decides to set up a raincoat factory to stimulate local employment. It raises the money from local funds and from federal aid. When the plant is set up, it is up to the management to find its own source of textile, set its own production plans and its prices. The state has no control.

If the plant makes profits, the directors and the workers share them, while part goes to reserves and reinvestment.

This is one reason you get fast service in Belgrade restaurants. If business is good, the waiters share the profits. Under Soviet communism, it is the state, not the worker, that gets the profit.

Tito's system has worked well to a degree. Seventeen million Yugoslavs certainly are better off than any people anywhere else under communism.

But there is trouble beneath the surface.

There is inflation. Plant directors and workers distributed too much of the profits to themselves and plants are in debt to each other.

Additionally, Yugoslavia has debts of $800 million abroad, much of it to Italy, Germany, Britain and other West European countries. The country is spending more than it is producing.

In an effort to solve his problems, Tito has issued strict new regulations which limit the amount of profits which can be distributed. He has put a tight rein on the use of hard foreign capital, making it harder for Yugoslavs to travel abroad.

CARPET CARE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You add life and beauty to your rugs and carpets if you follow three basic rules of cleaning, says the National Institute of Rug Cleaning (NIRC). They are: daily cleaning with a carpet sweeper, careful vacuuming once or twice a week depending on the traffic and soil, and thorough professional cleaning once a year.

VIENNA (UPI)—The birth rate is dropping in Communist Hungary.

The reasons: More than half the women recently surveyed in a number of gynecological clinics were hospitalized for abortion; in the 12 years of Communist rule the number of childless marriages has increased 3.6 per cent; more than one third of Hungary's married couples in 1960 had only one child.

Hungarian couples seem less and less inclined to have children and also increasingly eager to dissolve their marriages.

In 1959, there was about one divorce for every two marriages in the capital city of Budapest.

The survey which produced the abortion statistics appeared in the Hungarian magazine Demografia this year. A questionnaire was given to 26,157 women.

The most frequently given reason for wanting an abortion differed between women who had had them and those who were requesting them. The first group most frequently said they had enough children already; the second that their living conditions were unsuitable for children.

The increase in abortion naturally has been accompanied by a decline in the birth rate. In 1956, the birth rate was about 150 per thousand of population compared to 204 in the years immediately after World War II.

In fact abortion was more frequent than birth in Budapest in 1959—over 187,000 abortions compared to about 151,000 live births. In the clinics surveyed, 37 per cent of the patients were hospitalized for childbirth, 52.3 per cent for abortion.

Meantime, the number of divorced women has increased remarkably to almost double what it was in 1949.

One of the reasons for the abortion rate may be that many more women are working these days and so are less inclined to endure pregnancy.

More than 37 per cent of Hungarian women now are working, many at hard farm labor. They work well into old age.

Of the women over 60 years of age, 43 per cent were at work, the survey showed.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Britt Sullivan broke a record when she swam 75 non-stop miles in sea water recently — but she's down about it.

"I didn't make my goal — 100 miles," the ex - WAVE said. "That's failure any way you look at it."

Miss Sullivan, 27, intends to try for 100 again next month, plunging into the Atlantic at Long Island's shore in New York — the place where she met her Waterloo.

Interviewed upon her release from Long Beach Memorial Hospital, the plucky "mermaid" said she also intends one day to swim the English Channel underwater, across and back.

The record stood at 31¾ miles before Miss Sullivan's feat.

"But I wasn't out to break a record," she said. "I wanted 100 miles. I didn't make it because I couldn't last more than three days and three nights in the ocean.

"I was out to prove that a human could survive such an ordeal by using a common sense approach."

A common sense approach included taking a hundred or so strokes at a time before allowing herself something she needed —food, a sweat shirt saturated with muscle ointment, a cigaret, a pep pill to keep her awake.

"Life doesn't offer challenges," she said. "This was a challenge I made for myself. It's hard to get along without challenge. You meet one successfully — and then you make another one."

Miss Sullivan said the experience was "soul-purifying." She explained it this way:

"At night when fear would seem to overtake me, I would think about big questions. For example, I would think about who's right: beatniks or the people who sit around waiting for the world to end on a certain day.

"I thought about the rat race and life."

Miss Sullivan ran up the white flag at the 75-mile mark when a water-logged condition plus chest congestion weakened her will to continue.

"I had just earned a cigaret," she said. "But when a hand in the boat accompanying me reached out to give me the reward, I grabbed at the wrist and hung on."

"It was over. The non-stop had stopped."

Deryl Nielsen, one of four in the boat accompanying Miss Sullivan, said spirits dropped when the challenge ended.

"But she was exhausted," he said. The sophomore from the University of Louisville said Miss Sullivan wanted a hamburger.

"But she needed oxygen," he added. "She got it on the way to the hospital and we all breathed a little easier."

During the swim Miss Sullivan's nourishment came from a liquid formula souped up with extra vitamins. She drank it from a baby's bottle while doing a lazy man's stroke.

Doctors kept the swimmer hospitalized for four days. The ordeal cost her "my life's savings" and 15 pounds.

Gains included new knowledge about sea creatures.

"Did you know," she asked, "a disturbance in the water makes jelly fish glow whitish blue at night. A beautiful sight."

Legionnaires Parade Tonight At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Some 3,000 legionnaires and their families settle down to the serious business of having fun Friday at the annual convention of the Maryland American Legion.

In addition to business meetings scheduled for the morning, the legionnaires will tour the Antietam battlefield; attend a 40 and 8 picnic; watch the competition in the Municipal Stadium of drum and bugle corps and color guards, and finally march in the grand parade scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Delegates meeting in the Maryland Theater Thursday approved annual reports and heard a speech by Joseph St. Germaine, Hagerstown, winner of the state oratorical contest.

The finance commission, headed by William F. Thomas of Riverdale, reported Thursday the state American Legion had appropriated $50,000 for the development of twin marinas at the terminals formerly used by the Chesapeake Bay ferries.

He said the legion has been negotiating with state agencies for lease of the land, at Sandy Point on the west and Matapeake on the east shore of the bay.

The purpose of the marinas, Thomas reported, would be to promote existing commercial facilities of the area. He said the legion planned no restaurant or overnight facilities. The marinas would function on a nonprofit basis, he said, and would offer fuel, water, ice and emergency repairs.

Miller Hails Medicare Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward T. Miller, Republican candidate for U. S. senator from Maryland, hailed Thursday the defeat of President Kennedy's medical care proposal for the aged.

"I know that I would have voted against the Kennedy proposal," Miller declared in a statement from his Washington office.

At the same time, he expressed doubt that Daniel B. Brewster, his Democratic opponent in the November election, "would have had the perception or the fortitude to vote as so many responsible senators did."

President Kennedy's plan of medical care for the aged through Social Security taxes was killed Tuesday in the Senate by a 52-48 vote.

"I have the greatest admiration for those senators who refused to bend under the frantic last-minute lobbying of the administration and their agents and voted their convictions," Miller stated.

"On so warmly contested an issue, the vote and the position of the senators from Maryland will continue to be important in the years to come when and if the administration attempts to push through its medical care program again."

Both of Maryland's incumbent Republican senators, John Marshall Butler and J. Glenn Beall, voted against President Kennedy's proposal. Miller and Brewster are running to replace Butler who decided not to seek a third term.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — David Shay, who works in the Baltimore office of an investment banking firm, is the new Republican candidate for the State Senate in the 2nd District.

Arthur W. Sherwood, GOP chairman in the 2nd District of Baltimore City, said Mrs. Helen Heaton had resigned as a candidate. Shay led the Republican ticket in a bid for the City Council from the 3rd District in 1959.

BUSHWOOD, Md. (AP) — The body of Jessie L. Lewis, 40, of Arlington, Va., was recovered Thursday from the Wicomico River. He had fallen from his boat while fishing.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — R. Crawford Holland, restaurant owner, filed Thursday to oppose the reelection of Hugh Cropper Jr. for mayor.

Cropper is seeking his second two-year term. Holland will be running for his first public office.

The election will be held Aug. 13.

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—The death of Marvil Wilbert Gibbs, 45, of Linwood, Pa., Thursday was the 284th on a Maryland highway this year. Last year's death toll at this time was 59 less.

The body of Gibbs' was found in a field. He apparently was pitched out of his car after it went off Route 16.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—Three young Baltimoreans were arrested Thursday on charges of stealing from parked cars. Ocean City police said the trio also is being questioned about a holdup and theft of checks in Baltimore.

Robert E. Elliott, 20, (201 Eastern Ave.) and Robert E. Pasch, 17, (625 South Tolna Ave.) were charged with carrying concealed weapons in addition to larceny.

John E. Pasch, 19, was charged only with stealing and breaking into cars.

Carroll County Oil Hunt Is On

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — An exploratory oil well is being drilled between Keymar and Middleburg in Carroll County.

It is being financed by the Donelson Co. of Hanover, Pa., a holding company owned by R. H. Sheppard, a Hanover industrialist. The well, on a 200-acre farm, already is 200 feet deep.

Sheppard said it is the third well he has drilled in the area. The other two were dry. Courthouse records showed that Sheppard holds at least 20 gas-oil leases with farmers elsewhere in the northwestern section of Carroll County.

"Our field explorations and geological determinations," Sheppard said, "lead us to believe that there are oil deposits in Carroll although the wildcat well is a long way from a proven field."

Sam Jacks of Avonmore, Pa., is drilling the well for Sheppard. A mast 139 feet high is in place.

Sheppard said other wells will be drilled even if this one is dry. "We learn a lot of history of the earth which we can apply in our search for oil each time we drill," he said.

Army-Bound Man Has One Hectic Day

BALTIMORE (AP) — Perhaps Willis Schonowski will find it more placid in the Army.

He was whisked through the police, firemen, doctors and a judge Thursday.

His busy day started when he had an argument with his girl friend. Willis went to the bridge over the Patapsco River in southeast Baltimore and jumped.

The water was only 2½ feet deep. But Schonowski got stuck in the mud.

Police called firemen to the rescue. Then they took him to the hospital where a check showed no ill effects physically.

Thence to municipal court to face a disorderly conduct charge. Judge Robert Watts, informed the 25-year-old Schonowski was awaiting a summons from the Army, released him.

Feather On Trial In Wife's Slaying

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — F. Keith Feather Jr. was pictured as a man tortured by his wife's infidelities Thursday as he went on trial charged with her murder.

Feather, 31, of Frederick, Md., is charged in the fatal shooting of his wife, Betty Jo, last Jan. 28. He is being represented by Edwin F. Nikirk, also of Frederick.

The trial is being held in Winchester Corporation Court after a long dispute between Maryland and Virginia authorities about where the shooting happened.

In his opening statement, Nikirk said Feather shot his wife "cloaked in the heat of passion, as the result of a tormented and twisted mind following discovery of his wife's infidelity."

Dabney Watts, the commonwealth attorney for Winchester, said in his opening statement the evidence would show Feather tried to visit his wife at the home of Mrs. Ruth Braithwaite in Winchester. Mrs. Braithwaite and Mr. and Mrs. Feather sat in Feather's car and talked. Watts said Mrs. Braithwaite had returned to her home when she heard four shots. She ran from the house, Watts said, saw her sister's body slumped over in the seat of Feather's car and then Feather drove away.

Water rose one foot a second during the Galveston, Tex., flood of 1900 in which 6,000 persons were drowned.

Legionnaires Parade Tonight At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Some 3,000 legionnaires and their families settle down to the serious business of having fun Friday at the annual convention of the Maryland American Legion.

In addition to business meetings scheduled for the morning, the legionnaires will tour the Antietam battlefield; attend a 40 and 8 picnic; watch the competition in the Municipal Stadium of drum and bugle corps and color guards, and finally march in the grand parade scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Delegates meeting in the Maryland Theater Thursday approved annual reports and heard a speech by Joseph St. Germaine, Hagerstown, winner of the state oratorical contest.

The finance commission, headed by William F. Thomas of Riverdale, reported Thursday the state American Legion had appropriated $50,000 for the development of twin marinas at the terminals formerly used by the Chesapeake Bay ferries.

He said the legion has been negotiating with state agencies for lease of the land, at Sandy Point on the west and Matapeake on the east shore of the bay.

The purpose of the marinas, Thomas reported, would be to promote existing commercial facilities of the area. He said the legion planned no restaurant or overnight facilities. The marinas would function on a nonprofit basis, he said, and would offer fuel, water, ice and emergency repairs.

Miller Hails Medicare Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward T. Miller, Republican candidate for U. S. senator from Maryland, hailed Thursday the defeat of President Kennedy's medical care proposal for the aged.

"I know that I would have voted against the Kennedy proposal," Miller declared in a statement from his Washington office.

At the same time, he expressed doubt that Daniel B. Brewster, his Democratic opponent in the November election, "would have had the perception or the fortitude to vote as so many responsible senators did."

President Kennedy's plan of medical care for the aged through Social Security taxes was killed Tuesday in the Senate by a 52-48 vote.

"I have the greatest admiration for those senators who refused to bend under the frantic last-minute lobbying of the administration and their agents and voted their convictions," Miller stated.

"On so warmly contested an issue, the vote and the position of the senators from Maryland will continue to be important in the years to come when and if the administration attempts to push through its medical care program again."

Both of Maryland's incumbent Republican senators, John Marshall Butler and J. Glenn Beall, voted against President Kennedy's proposal. Miller and Brewster are running to replace Butler who decided not to seek a third term.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — David Shay, who works in the Baltimore office of an investment banking firm, is the new Republican candidate for the State Senate in the 2nd District.

Arthur W. Sherwood, GOP chairman in the 2nd District of Baltimore City, said Mrs. Helen Heaton had resigned as a candidate. Shay led the Republican ticket in a bid for the City Council from the 3rd District in 1959.

BUSHWOOD, Md. (AP) — The body of Jessie L. Lewis, 40, of Arlington, Va., was recovered Thursday from the Wicomico River. He had fallen from his boat while fishing.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — R. Crawford Holland, restaurant owner, filed Thursday to oppose the reelection of Hugh Cropper Jr. for mayor.

Cropper is seeking his second two-year term. Holland will be running for his first public office.

The election will be held Aug. 13.

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—The death of Marvil Wilbert Gibbs, 45, of Linwood, Pa., Thursday was the 284th on a Maryland highway this year. Last year's death toll at this time was 59 less.

The body of Gibbs' was found in a field. He apparently was pitched out of his car after it went off Route 16.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—Three young Baltimoreans were arrested Thursday on charges of stealing from parked cars. Ocean City police said the trio also is being questioned about a holdup and theft of checks in Baltimore.

Robert E. Elliott, 20, (201 Eastern Ave.) and Robert E. Pasch, 17, (625 South Tolna Ave.) were charged with carrying concealed weapons in addition to larceny.

John E. Pasch, 19, was charged only with stealing and breaking into cars.

Carroll County Oil Hunt Is On

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — An exploratory oil well is being drilled between Keymar and Middleburg in Carroll County.

It is being financed by the Donelson Co. of Hanover, Pa., a holding company owned by R. H. Sheppard, a Hanover industrialist. The well, on a 200-acre farm, already is 200 feet deep.

Sheppard said it is the third well he has drilled in the area. The other two were dry. Courthouse records showed that Sheppard holds at least 20 gas-oil leases with farmers elsewhere in the northwestern section of Carroll County.

"Our field explorations and geological determinations," Sheppard said, "lead us to believe that there are oil deposits in Carroll although the wildcat well is a long way from a proven field."

Sam Jacks of Avonmore, Pa., is drilling the well for Sheppard. A mast 139 feet high is in place.

Sheppard said other wells will be drilled even if this one is dry. "We learn a lot of history of the earth which we can apply in our search for oil each time we drill," he said.

Army-Bound Man Has One Hectic Day

BALTIMORE (AP) — Perhaps Willis Schonowski will find it more placid in the Army.

He was whisked through the police, firemen, doctors and a judge Thursday.

His busy day started when he had an argument with his girl friend. Willis went to the bridge over the Patapsco River in southeast Baltimore and jumped.

The water was only 2½ feet deep. But Schonowski got stuck in the mud.

Police called firemen to the rescue. Then they took him to the hospital where a check showed no ill effects physically.

Thence to municipal court to face a disorderly conduct charge. Judge Robert Watts, informed the 25-year-old Schonowski was awaiting a summons from the Army, released him.

Feather On Trial In Wife's Slaying

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — F. Keith Feather Jr. was pictured as a man tortured by his wife's infidelities Thursday as he went on trial charged with her murder.

Feather, 31, of Frederick, Md., is charged in the fatal shooting of his wife, Betty Jo, last Jan. 28. He is being represented by Edwin F. Nikirk, also of Frederick.

The trial is being held in Winchester Corporation Court after a long dispute between Maryland and Virginia authorities about where the shooting happened.

In his opening statement, Nikirk said Feather shot his wife "cloaked in the heat of passion, as the result of a tormented and twisted mind following discovery of his wife's infidelity."

Dabney Watts, the commonwealth attorney for Winchester, said in his opening statement the evidence would show Feather tried to visit his wife at the home of Mrs. Ruth Braithwaite in Winchester. Mrs. Braithwaite and Mr. and Mrs. Feather sat in Feather's car and talked. Watts said Mrs. Braithwaite had returned to her home when she heard four shots. She ran from the house, Watts said, saw her sister's body slumped over in the seat of Feather's car and then Feather drove away.

Water rose one foot a second during the Galveston, Tex., flood of 1900 in which 6,000 persons were drowned.

Survey Sees "Twist" Following "Big Apple"

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's only a matter of time until the "Twist" goes the way of the "Black Bottom" and the "Big Apple," according to some experts on the subject—teen-agers.

That's one finding of a recent survey of the general attitudes, preferences, and savings habits of more than 1,500 class presidents in New York State high schools.

The survey, conducted by the Savings Banks Association of New York State, shows that more than three-fourths of the teen leaders feel that even though the dance is now popular now, it eventually will be displaced by another "craze."

The survey, part of a program to encourage thrift among young people brought these comments on the twist:

"I think it is just here temporarily. It is a strenuous dance which tires dancers comparatively easily."

"It won't last. I'm sick of it already."

"I think the Twist will be remembered as the Charleston is today."

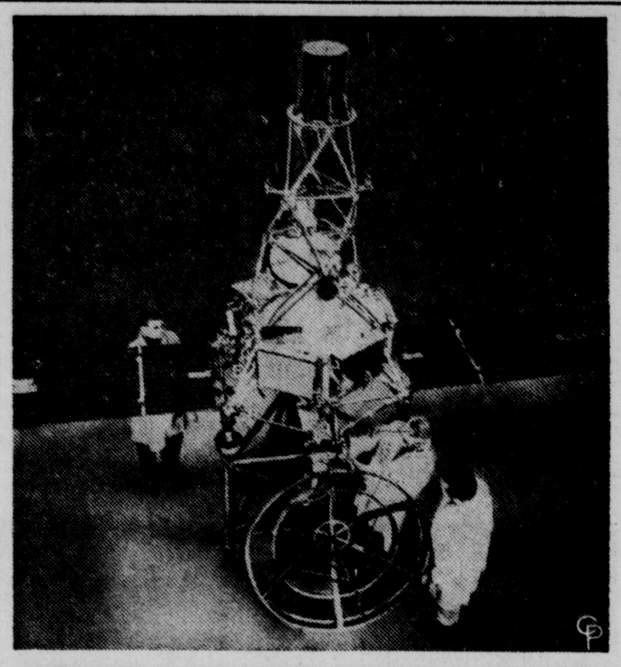

"It's a fad. . .a good dance when danced for the casualness of the dance itself. At more than a casual pace, it's ridiculous."

"Give it six months more. It's different and fun and healthy—but we'll all get tired of it."

The savings banks survey, incidentally showed that more than eight out of 10 teen leaders have savings accounts and nearly half save regularly. The average balance is $461.

Religious Ghettos Spread In Major American Cities

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans are sealing themselves into religious ghettos, a new study of social frictions and tensions reports.

The Jewish ghetto, instead of being wiped out, has been augmented by Roman Catholic and Protestant ghettos, the study found.

In major cities across the country, the intermingling of various groups reaches a sharp cutoff point at 5 p.m., with members of each of these three groups retreating to their separate ghettos, it said.

Published by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, which represents Reform Judaism, the report, entitled "A Tale of Ten Cities," charges that "religious bigotry is still widespread and deeply embedded" in American life.

"Beyond the question of anti-Catholicism, of anti-Semitism, or anti-Protestantism, is the stark fact that we Americans know precious little about the realities of religious relationships in America," the report said.

Two Authors

It was written by Rabbi Eugene J .Lipman, spiritual leader of Temple Sinai in Washington, D.C., and Albert Vorspan, director of the commission on Social Action of Reform Jdaism of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

They presented pictures of relgious tensions in Boston, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Muncie, Inc., Nashville, Tenn., New York, Philadelphia, Plainview, N.Y., and the Twin Cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

"There is a tendency among Americans to lump together interracial and interreligious relationships," the report said. "We tend to asm use that these two areas are either identical or so closely related both in causes and in means of resolution that working at one automatically helps with the other. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Can't Be Hidden

"...Interreligious tension can no longer be concealed, can no longer be swept under the rug as un-American."

Lipman and Vorspan said many justified criticisms could be made of contemporary American religion. It can be labeled superficial or irrelevant in many ways, they said, and social action is the main avenue found so far for improving interreligious relations.

"Indeed," they said, "there is some ground for fear that America is becoming not a triple melting pot but rather a triple ghetto. Evidence abounds that, while the legal walls of racial and religious segregation are tumbling down in the United States, the walls of self - segregation are springing up.

"...Our communities are not preparing Americans for leadership of a changing and plural world."

Martinsburg Workers Get Pay Raise

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — City Council has approved wage increases for all but a few city workers.

The pay for hourly-paid employes will be increased from $1.16 to $1.20, or about $96 a year, while salaried employes will receive a flat $100-a-year increase.

The mayor, city attorney, city recorder and the seven members of the council were not included in the pay adjustment. Also excluded were hourly-paid employes who have been working for the city less than a year.

Preliminary action on the pay boosts was taken by the retiring council last month. The new council took over July 1.

German City Reminds Of Roman Glory

By RALPH VILLIERS
United Press International

TRIER, Germany (UPI)—Here, in this German city, stand impressive reminders of the glory that was Rome.

Not content with being "the other Rome," Trier since medieval times has said in a plaque still emblazoned on a wall in the Central Market:

"Ante Roman Treviris stetit annis mille trecentis, perstet et aeterna pace fruatur, Amen" — or:

"Trier stood thirteen hundred years before Rome. May it continue to exist and enjoy eternal peace, Amen."

Well might Trier boast. The most magnificent and well - preserved Roman ruins north of the Alps stand about this pleasant Mosel Valley city. Romans founded Augusta Treverorum about 15 B.C. in a much earlier inhabited area and built industriously before their rule was broken by the Franks in the 5th Century.

An impressive sight is the Porta Nigra, a massive sandstone block gate 98 feet tall which the Romans erected in the 4th Century to help defend this onetime capital of their western empire and sometimes residence of the emperors.

The arched windows in the black and pitted sandstone (pitted by long ago metal thieves digging for the iron clamps used to hold the blocks instead of mortar) look down onto the relatively recent courtyard and cloister of the former St. Simeon's Monastery, dating from the 11th Century, where the tired traveler can pause and sip cool Mosel wine.

Another Reminder

Just a half-mile from the Porta Nigra stands a still used reminder of Roman rule, the Basilica.

It was the throne room that Constantine had built for himself in a style befitting an emperor: 219 feet long, 88 feet wide and 98 feet high. Two of the plain, red brick walls with their high rows of arched windows are originals, the others are restored. The Basilica now is used as a Protestant church, the only one in predominantly Roman Catholic Trier.

Within walking distance are traditional ruins, those of the Imperial Thermae, a massive Roman bath built in the 4th Century.

Trier's oldest Roman remains is a 25,000 - seat amphitheatre built in the 1st Century.

A Roman bridge still carries traffic across the Mosel River.

One Of Earliest

The Church of Our Lady, a few feet away, is one of the earliest Gothic churches in Germany. Built in the shape of a Greek cross, its 12 supporting pillars, each with a painting of an apostle, can all be seen at once by standing on a gray stone in the center aisle.

Trier's most important religious treasure is rarely seen. What is believed to be Christ's seamless tunic is secreted in the Cathedral and was last displayed in 1959, and then it was the first time in 26 years.

Traveling from one Roman reminder to another takes the visitor past sights from the other eras of Trier, such as the 1,000-year-old stone cross at the Market Place, a medieval home with a second story door that once was the main entrance, permitting the stairs to be pulled up at night in those more uncertain times, and the Electoral Palace, the elaborately fronted palace built when Trier was the residence of prince electors of the Holy Roman Empire.

The twin complex of the Cathedral and the Church of Our Lady trace their history to ancient Rome. The Cathedral stands on the site of the palace of the Empress Helena, a patron of the then-young Christian faith.

One Of Earliest

The Church of Our Lady, a few feet away, is one of the earliest Gothic churches in Germany. Built in the shape of a Greek cross, its 12 supporting pillars, each with a painting of an apostle, can all be seen at once by standing on a gray stone in the center aisle.

Trier's most important religious treasure is rarely seen. What is believed to be Christ's seamless tunic is secreted in the Cathedral and was last displayed in 1959, and then it was the first time in 26 years.

Traveling from one Roman reminder to another takes the visitor past sights from the other eras of Trier, such as the 1,000-year-old stone cross at the Market Place, a medieval home with a second story door that once was the main entrance, permitting the stairs to be pulled up at night in those more uncertain times, and the Electoral Palace, the elaborately fronted palace built when Trier was the residence of prince electors of the Holy Roman Empire.

SHARP EYES

NEW YORK (UPI)—Women do read the fine print on packages and labels, a magazine study shows. They absorb the printing on everything from food items to beauty preparations, says the magazine (Good Housekeeping), which polled 2,500 females and drew an 80 per cent return to the questionaire.

Religious Ghettos Spread In Major American Cities

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans are sealing themselves into religious ghettos, a new study of social frictions and tensions reports.

The Jewish ghetto, instead of being wiped out, has been augmented by Roman Catholic and Protestant ghettos, the study found.

In major cities across the country, the intermingling of various groups reaches a sharp cutoff point at 5 p.m., with members of each of these three groups retreating to their separate ghettos, it said.

Published by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, which represents Reform Judaism, the report, entitled "A Tale of Ten Cities," charges that "religious bigotry is still widespread and deeply embedded" in American life.

"Beyond the question of anti-Catholicism, of anti-Semitism, or anti-Protestantism, is the stark fact that we Americans know precious little about the realities of religious relationships in America," the report said.

Two Authors

It was written by Rabbi Eugene J .Lipman, spiritual leader of Temple Sinai in Washington, D.C., and Albert Vorspan, director of the commission on Social Action of Reform Jdaism of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

They presented pictures of relgious tensions in Boston, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Muncie, Inc., Nashville, Tenn., New York, Philadelphia, Plainview, N.Y., and the Twin Cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

"There is a tendency among Americans to lump together interracial and interreligious relationships," the report said. "We tend to asm use that these two areas are either identical or so closely related both in causes and in means of resolution that working at one automatically helps with the other. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Can't Be Hidden

"...Interreligious tension can no longer be concealed, can no longer be swept under the rug as un-American."

Lipman and Vorspan said many justified criticisms could be made of contemporary American religion. It can be labeled superficial or irrelevant in many ways, they said, and social action is the main avenue found so far for improving interreligious relations.

"Indeed," they said, "there is some ground for fear that America is becoming not a triple melting pot but rather a triple ghetto. Evidence abounds that, while the legal walls of racial and religious segregation are tumbling down in the United States, the walls of self - segregation are springing up.

"...Our communities are not preparing Americans for leadership of a changing and plural world."

Martinsburg Workers Get Pay Raise

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — City Council has approved wage increases for all but a few city workers.

The pay for hourly-paid employes will be increased from $1.16 to $1.20, or about $96 a year, while salaried employes will receive a flat $100-a-year increase.

The mayor, city attorney, city recorder and the seven members of the council were not included in the pay adjustment. Also excluded were hourly-paid employes who have been working for the city less than a year.

Preliminary action on the pay boosts was taken by the retiring council last month. The new council took over July 1.

Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, the first area industry to participate in the Red Cross blood program, is preparing for a two-day visit of the mobile unit from the Johnstown (Pa.) Regional Blood Center.

E. Victor Long, plant coordinator for the visit, said the bloodmobile will be at ABL on Monday and Tuesday, August 6-7, and that the two-day quota has been set at 300 pints.

The unit will be in operation from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. on the first day of the visit, and from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m. on the second day, Long stated.

A total of 380 pints of blood collected on the last two-day visit at ABL, February 5-6, and according to Red Cross officials, employes there have contributed 681 pints at the last two visits for an average of 340.5 pints per visit.

In the 11 years the Red Cross program has been operating in this region, ABL employes have donated 2,050 pints of blood, or an average of 186 pints for each of the 11 visits of the bloodmobile at the rocket facility.

Red Cross officials point out that a one-day visit record of 301 pints of blood were collected at ABL last August.

Cumberland Continentals, local Civil War unit, will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. at Constitution Park to prepare for their participation in the reenactment of Fisher Hill battle at Strasburg, Va., August 4, and the battle at Antietam in Sharpsburg, September 15-16.

Plans for using Fort Hill rifle range also will be made.

Robert Martin, captain of the unit, and Boyd Dawson, first lieutenant, urged all members to attend the meeting. They also said that persons interested in joining should attend so that equipment can be obtained for them in time for the upcoming reenactments.

He replaces Thomas Wagner as principal at Centre Street with the latter being named principal at John Humbird School.

Thomas is married to the former Peggy Burkett and they have a son, Harry Robert Thomas Jr.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter signed "Horse's Mouth" angered me to the point where I simply must write.

My father was a philanderer who took a mistress many long years ago. My mother asked for a divorce, but he refused to give her one. He simply moved out of the house and sent her a nice fat check every two weeks. This was supposed to take care of everything. Within three years my mother was a severe alcoholic. She suffered the tortures of the damned and died a few years later. My father married his mistress "because he felt obligated" — he told the family. Strange that he never felt any obligation to his wife, other than to pay her bills.

The whole rotten business added up to a miserable childhood for me. I'm trying to rid myself of this terrible resentment against my father, but I still wish I could send him my psychiatric bills every month.

I hope you will print this letter for the benefit of other women who may be thinking about embarking on a Great Love with a married man. Or perhaps this will catch the eye of some father who may be considering checking out on his wife and children.—NIGHTMARES

DEAR NIGHTMARES: You are fighting a tough battle — and winning. I hope you will forgive your father, not for HIS sake, but for your own. Hatred does more harm to the vessel in which it is stored than to the object on which it is poured.

DEAR READERS: The wet noodle comes out of retirement. This time it seems I've stepped on the feelings of the most fiercely loyal segment of American society — adoptive parents.

The question was: "What wording should be used by parents who wish to send announcements letting the world know they have adopted a child? Should it read "Reginald was born — Reginald arrived — or Reginald was adopted?"

True to my personal aversion to announcements of any kind, I advised the writer to skip the whole thing and write notes or telephone close friends and members of the immediate family. (Even this seemed unnecessary, since close friends and family ordinarily would know.)

Hundreds of adoptive parents informed me that they have just as much right to send out announcements as natural parents. Wording was suggested. Many readers sent me samples of THEIR announcements. One said "Our chosen child has big blue eyes and weighs 16 pounds." Another said "We welcomed into our home a darling little girl whose name is Martha."

So — I accept six lashes with a very wet noodle. Parents of adopted children, do indeed, have as much right to send out invoices — I mean announcements, as anyone else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After two years of marriage my husband still carries in his wallet seven pictures of girls he used to date. My picture is not among them. The snapshots he had of me when we were going together went into the family album.

I don't want to say anything to him because he's the stubborn type who would carry the pictures forever just to prove he's the boss.

We are expecting our first baby in September. I want those pictures out of his wallet before the baby arrives. It makes me sick to think that our baby's picture might be sandwiched between a redhead and a platinum blonde. Please tell me what to do.—NOT IN THE PICTURE

DEAR NOT: Do nothing. Chances are good that when the baby arrives the proud papa will unload the girlie gallery in favor of seven pictures of his first born.

CONFIDENTIAL TO STEPPY SITUATION: Even though your mother married his father you two are not blood relatives, and there is no reason why you shouldn't marry. (What a peachy way to avoid in-law problems!)

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD — Stricken 20th Century - Fox, beset by every ailment known to movie making, is beginning to show signs of recuperation.

Aaron Rosenberg has been handed "Morituri" as his first picture on his new contract and Rosey hopes to have Deborah Kerr, Steve Boyd, Joanne Woodward and Maximilian Shell reporting for his World War II thriller in short order.

It's also working out better than anyone had hoped to reactivate "Something's Got to Give" with Marilyn Monroe and Dean Martin (you read it right) right back where they started—which means dropping those million dollar suits on both sides.

And, with good old "Cleopatra" in the can and off the front pages — yep, 20th is beginning to breathe again.

Despite the front she puts up, Jayne Mansfield (and I'll thank you for no cracks) may be getting ready to push a panic button of her own on "Panic Button" in Rome. Reports are her marriage to Mickey Hargitay is getting shakier and shakier. And something or someone must be bothering him about her working hours because Mickey shows up on the set every day and hangs around until finishing time. He never did that in Hollywood.

Mickey and Jayne had a grand bust-up in Hollywood just a week before they left for Rome, the blonde gal even going so far as to file a 24-hour suit for divorce before they kissed and made up. Just how solid the reconciliation is, remains to be seen.

Marlon Brando's wife Movita was in the original "Mutiny on the Bounty" and it was he who invited her, along with about a dozen others, to look at his new version at MGM the other night. But if Movita and Marlon exchanged more than a couple of words, no one caught it.

After the showing, headman Joe Vogel and Marlon had a huddle which resulted in Brando's getting the three weeks vacation he was asking for. He's very cooperative about the new ending which will be filmed, but also very tired after just completing "The Ugly American," and Vogel agreed that a holiday wouldn't hurt him.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Rhonda Fleming leaves for Europe Friday so Rod Taylor will have to find new love to dine with nightly — or will he?

The Santa Monica home where the late Douglas Fairbanks lived during his marriage to Sylvia Ashley, has been rented by Janet Leigh who will move in with the children when she finishes "Bye Bye Birdie."

Added entry in the race for Professor Higgins in "My Fair Lady" is British Peter O'Toole.

Good-looking Columbia publicity prexy, John Flinn, doesn't look old enough, but his daughter Mrs. William Cameron made him a grandpappy Monday when she welcomed a little debutante at St. Joseph Hospital.

Marjorie Lord posed for a magazine layout at Cook's Steak House so she just marched in the kitchen and broiled herself a steak.

Walter O'Malley, back at Pacific Dining Car, his favorite dinery away from Dodger Stadium, managing to enjoy his dinner despite those walloping city taxes just levèled against his baseball park.

Diane McBain and Jimmy Boyd a woosome at Quo Vadis.

The first date George Hamilton's had since the broken engagement with Susan Kohner was with Rita Le Baron dancing to Orrin Tucker's smooth melodies at Star on the Roof.

If Tay Garnett has his way, Barry Sullivan and Glynis Johns will join Brod Crawford in Tay's "Billy Easter" cast.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter signed "Horse's Mouth" angered me to the point where I simply must write.

My father was a philanderer who took a mistress many long years ago. My mother asked for a divorce, but he refused to give her one. He simply moved out of the house and sent her a nice fat check every two weeks. This was supposed to take care of everything. Within three years my mother was a severe alcoholic. She suffered the tortures of the damned and died a few years later. My father married his mistress "because he felt obligated" — he told the family. Strange that he never felt any obligation to his wife, other than to pay her bills.

The whole rotten business added up to a miserable childhood for me. I'm trying to rid myself of this terrible resentment against my father, but I still wish I could send him my psychiatric bills every month.

I hope you will print this letter for the benefit of other women who may be thinking about embarking on a Great Love with a married man. Or perhaps this will catch the eye of some father who may be considering checking out on his wife and children.—NIGHTMARES

DEAR NIGHTMARES: You are fighting a tough battle — and winning. I hope you will forgive your father, not for HIS sake, but for your own. Hatred does more harm to the vessel in which it is stored than to the object on which it is poured.

DEAR READERS: The wet noodle comes out of retirement. This time it seems I've stepped on the feelings of the most fiercely loyal segment of American society — adoptive parents.

The question was: "What wording should be used by parents who wish to send announcements letting the world know they have adopted a child? Should it read "Reginald was born — Reginald arrived — or Reginald was adopted?"

True to my personal aversion to announcements of any kind, I advised the writer to skip the whole thing and write notes or telephone close friends and members of the immediate family. (Even this seemed unnecessary, since close friends and family ordinarily would know.)

Hundreds of adoptive parents informed me that they have just as much right to send out announcements as natural parents. Wording was suggested. Many readers sent me samples of THEIR announcements. One said "Our chosen child has big blue eyes and weighs 16 pounds." Another said "We welcomed into our home a darling little girl whose name is Martha."

So — I accept six lashes with a very wet noodle. Parents of adopted children, do indeed, have as much right to send out invoices — I mean announcements, as anyone else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After two years of marriage my husband still carries in his wallet seven pictures of girls he used to date. My picture is not among them. The snapshots he had of me when we were going together went into the family album.

I don't want to say anything to him because he's the stubborn type who would carry the pictures forever just to prove he's the boss.

We are expecting our first baby in September. I want those pictures out of his wallet before the baby arrives. It makes me sick to think that our baby's picture might be sandwiched between a redhead and a platinum blonde. Please tell me what to do.—NOT IN THE PICTURE

DEAR NOT: Do nothing. Chances are good that when the baby arrives the proud papa will unload the girlie gallery in favor of seven pictures of his first born.

CONFIDENTIAL TO STEPPY SITUATION: Even though your mother married his father you two are not blood relatives, and there is no reason why you shouldn't marry. (What a peachy way to avoid in-law problems!)

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD — Stricken 20th Century - Fox, beset by every ailment known to movie making, is beginning to show signs of recuperation.

Aaron Rosenberg has been handed "Morituri" as his first picture on his new contract and Rosey hopes to have Deborah Kerr, Steve Boyd, Joanne Woodward and Maximilian Shell reporting for his World War II thriller in short order.

It's also working out better than anyone had hoped to reactivate "Something's Got to Give" with Marilyn Monroe and Dean Martin (you read it right) right back where they started—which means dropping those million dollar suits on both sides.

And, with good old "Cleopatra" in the can and off the front pages — yep, 20th is beginning to breathe again.

Despite the front she puts up, Jayne Mansfield (and I'll thank you for no cracks) may be getting ready to push a panic button of her own on "Panic Button" in Rome. Reports are her marriage to Mickey Hargitay is getting shakier and shakier. And something or someone must be bothering him about her working hours because Mickey shows up on the set every day and hangs around until finishing time. He never did that in Hollywood.

Mickey and Jayne had a grand bust-up in Hollywood just a week before they left for Rome, the blonde gal even going so far as to file a 24-hour suit for divorce before they kissed and made up. Just how solid the reconciliation is, remains to be seen.

Marlon Brando's wife Movita was in the original "Mutiny on the Bounty" and it was he who invited her, along with about a dozen others, to look at his new version at MGM the other night. But if Movita and Marlon exchanged more than a couple of words, no one caught it.

After the showing, headman Joe Vogel and Marlon had a huddle which resulted in Brando's getting the three weeks vacation he was asking for. He's very cooperative about the new ending which will be filmed, but also very tired after just completing "The Ugly American," and Vogel agreed that a holiday wouldn't hurt him.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Rhonda Fleming leaves for Europe Friday so Rod Taylor will have to find new love to dine with nightly — or will he?

The Santa Monica home where the late Douglas Fairbanks lived during his marriage to Sylvia Ashley, has been rented by Janet Leigh who will move in with the children when she finishes "Bye Bye Birdie."

Added entry in the race for Professor Higgins in "My Fair Lady" is British Peter O'Toole.

Good-looking Columbia publicity prexy, John Flinn, doesn't look old enough, but his daughter Mrs. William Cameron made him a grandpappy Monday when she welcomed a little debutante at St. Joseph Hospital.

Marjorie Lord posed for a magazine layout at Cook's Steak House so she just marched in the kitchen and broiled herself a steak.

Walter O'Malley, back at Pacific Dining Car, his favorite dinery away from Dodger Stadium, managing to enjoy his dinner despite those walloping city taxes just leveled against his baseball park.

Diane McBain and Jimmy Boyd a woosome at Quo Vadis.

The first date George Hamilton's had since the broken engagement with Susan Kohner was with Rita Le Baron dancing to Orrin Tucker's smooth melodies at Star on the Roof.

If Tay Garnett has his way, Barry Sullivan and Glynis Johns will join Brod Crawford in Tay's "Billy Easter" cast.

Director Henry King is piloting his own plane to Puerto Rico to look over a coffee plantation.

The Roman emperor Diocletian gave lavish parties at which a thousand persons took steam baths at one time.

North	East	South	West

1 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

A rather unusual entry-destroying play by West in today's hand forced declarer to pay a toll for the touch of greed which he had exhibited during the bidding.

The first two rounds of bidding were normal. When South made a game forcing jump rebid of three hearts, North proceeded naturally to three no trump. At this point, the proper procedure by South is to pass inasmuch as his hand is quite suitable for no trump. His decision to continue in hearts was influenced by an undue desire to cash the 100 honors.

West opened the jack of clubs. The queen was played from dummy, and East began an echo with the six in order to show a doubleton. Declarer proceeded to draw trumps at once by leading a small heart to the king in his hand. West now made the very astute play of permitting South to hold the trick. Unless East had the king of spades which was an eventuality that would take care of itself, the only hope West had to defeat the contract was to give his partner a club ruff. In order to produce this effect, the trump drawing process must be interrupted.

Declarer continued with a second heart and West was in. He returned the ten of clubs, duly noting his partner's five. South was in dummy at this point with no quick reëntry to his hand to draw the last trump. He led a spade to the king which lost to West's ace. The latter cashed his ace of diamonds and then led another club which East trumped with the eight of hearts for the setting trick.

Declarer could have nullified the effect of West's fine defense by going after the spades in order to establish a club discard, before he attacked trumps. However, this was not necessarily an indicated line of play and, in any event, North would have had no problems had he been permitted to remain in three no trump.

Coal Mining In Allegany County Continued To Decline During 1961

Production in the soft coal mines of Western Maryland continued to decline during the year ending December 31, according to the annual report of Maryland Bureau of Mines released yesterday.

Tonnage dropped from 759,686 in 1960 to 718,039 for the past year.

Allegany County showed a drop from 213,004 in 1960 to 186,826 tons in 1961.

Garrett County's output was down from 546,681 tons in 1960 to 531,212 tons in 1961.

Nearly two thirds of all coal produced came from strip mines in Allegany and Garrett counties, the only counties in Maryland where coal is mined.

During the past year, 434,782 tons came from strip mines, while 283,256 tons came from deep mines.

Like production, employment was down. In 1960, a total of 670 men made their living as miners, drivers, and inside and outside laborers.

During the past year, 130 men less were working in the bituminous field. Actual employment for 1961 was 540 men.

Fatalities in the mines showed a drop, with only one man killed as compared to three the previous year.

A roof fall on April 5 at the W&W Coal Company mine near Westernport killed Leo Wilt, a coal loader from near Westernport.

The report also stated that during 1961 it was necessary to obtain a warrant against a strip mine operator for failure to obtain the necessary permit to strip coal. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine and costs. Upon payment of costs, the fine was suspended.

A strip operator must post a bond of $400 per acre, and can mine only four acres at a time.

Clay mining, which comes under the bureau's jurisdiction, accounted for 11,472 tons as compared to 18,080 tons for the previous year.

Clay mining ceased in Garrett County in 1952 and has never been resumed.

The fire clay is used to supply Allegany County's two refractories, the Mt. Savage Refractory Company and the Zihlman Plant of Kaiser-Marietta Refractories.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

A rather unusual entry-destroying play by West in today's hand forced declarer to pay a toll for the touch of greed which he had exhibited during the bidding.

The first two rounds of bidding were normal. When South made a game forcing jump rebid of three hearts, North proceeded naturally to three no trump. At this point, the proper procedure by South is to pass inasmuch as his hand is quite suitable for no trump. His decision to continue in hearts was influenced by an undue desire to cash the 100 honors.

West opened the jack of clubs. The queen was played from dummy, and East began an echo with the six in order to show a doubleton. Declarer proceeded to draw trumps at once by leading a small heart to the king in his hand. West now made the very astute play of permitting South to hold the trick. Unless East had the king of spades which was an evenmuality that would take care of itself, the only hope West had to defeat the contract was to give his partner a club ruff. In order to produce this effect, the trump drawing process must be interrupted.

Declarer continued with a second heart and West was in. He returned the ten of clubs, duly noting his partner's five. South was in dummy at this point with no quick reentry to his hand to draw the last trump. He led a spade to the king which lost to West's ace. The latter cashed his ace of diamonds and then led another club which East trumped with the eight of hearts for the setting trick.

Declarer could have nullified the effect of West's fine defense by going after the spades in order to establish a club discard, before he attacked trumps. However, this was not necessarily an indicated line of play and, in any event, North would have had no problems had he been permitted to remain in three no trump.

Coal Mining In Allegany County Continued To Decline During 1961

Production in the soft coal mines of Western Maryland continued to decline during the year ending December 31, according to the annual report of Maryland Bureau of Mines released yesterday.

Tonnage dropped from 759,686 in 1960 to 718,039 for the past year. Allegany County showed a drop from 213,004 in 1960 to 186,826 tons in 1961.

Garrett County's output was down from 546,681 tons in 1960 to 531,212 tons in 1961.

Nearly two thirds of all coal produced came from strip mines in Allegany and Garrett counties, the only counties in Maryland where coal is mined.

During the past year, 434,782 tons came from strip mines, while 283,256 tons came from deep mines.

Like production, employment was down. In 1960, a total of 670 men made their living as miners, drivers, and inside and outside laborers.

During the past year, 130 men less were working in the bituminous field. Actual employment for 1961 was 540 men.

Fatalities in the mines showed a drop, with only one man killed as compared to three the previous year.

A roof fall on April 5 at the W&W Coal Company mine near Westernport killed Leo Wilt, a coal loader from near Westernport.

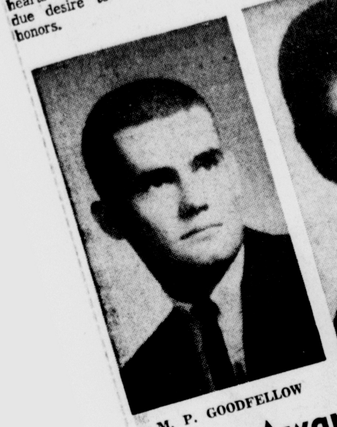

The report also stated that during 1961 it was necessary to obtain a warrant against a strip mine operator for failure to obtain the necessary permit to strip coal. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine and costs. Upon payment of costs, the fine was suspended.

A strip operator must post a bond of $400 per acre, and can mine only four acres at a time.

Clay mining, which comes under the bureau's jurisdiction, accounted for 11,472 tons as compared to 18,080 tons for the previous year.

Clay mining ceased in Garrett County in 1952 and has never been resumed.

The fire clay is used to supply Allegany County's two refractories, the Mt. Savage Refractory Company and the Zihlman Plant of Kaiser-Marietta Refractories.

B&O Engineer Testifies In Fatal Crash

Hearing Expected To End Today

WESTMINSTSER, Md. (AP) — A Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineer testified Thursday of watching helplessly as his train smashed into a Garrett County school bus loaded with 26 children.

Otto Droege of Cumberland, the engineer, told the Carroll County Circuit Court that threw on the emergency brakes when he saw the bus on the track at the Mountain Lake crossing Sept. 10, 1959. After that, he said, there was nothing more he could do.

Olen Roy Hinkle Jr., 15, and Frances Dixon, 17, both of Deer Park, have asked a total of $240,000 damages from the B&O and the bus driver, LeRoy Campbell, 52, for injuries they received in the accident.

Their lawyers ended presentation of their case Thursday. The defense immediately began its side. There was a possibility the trial would end Friday, although it may last until sometime next week. The civil damage suit opened Tuesday.

Campbell had testified earlier that he heard no warning of the approach of the train. But Droege said Thursday he sounded the train whistle when he saw the rear of the school bus on the track. Droege estimated the speed of his train at 48 to 50 m.p.h. when he started application of the brakes.

Campbell has testified the bus stalled on the tracks.

Seven children were killed in the collision and 11 others were hospitalized with injuries.

Gasoline Company Files Damage Suit

The Atlantic Refining Company, Philadelphia, Pa., has filed a damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against a Cresaptown man as a result of property damage to a service state north of Cumberland on Bedford Road.

The company contends that on August 19, 1961, Richard A. Leavitt, of Cresaptown, was driving his car south on Route 220 about a mile north of Cumberland when the vehicle went out of control.

The car, they claim, crossed the highway, hit one of the company's service stations, damaged two gas pumps, a spotlight pole, spotlights and other equipment.

Pinto Man Wins Trip To Coast

Harold W. Biesemeier, McMullen Highway, Pinto, was the winner of a week-end trip to San Francisco as the fifth prize winner in the "Tour of the World" sweepstakes sponsored by the Coco-Cola Company and bottlers of Coca-Cola.

Announcement of the local winner was made by Roy C. Lottig, manager of Cumberland Coca-Cola Bottling Works, Inc.

Mr. Biesemeier, an employe of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory since January 1961, chose San Francisco for his trip with his wife because it was there that they met when both were in service during World War II. They were married there in December 1944. They plan the trip for August 18.

The Pinto man commented last night that it was a coincidence that it was on Tuesday, July 17, that Mr. Lottig informed him of his prize. It was on July 17, 1944, that he met his wife.

First prize in the sweepstakes was $25,000 in American Express Travelers Cheques, won by Wendell Council Phillips of Albany, Ga.

Over 9,200,00 entries were submitted in the contest.

Insurance Payments Are Cited In Report

Maryland policyholders and beneficiaries of the Prudential Insurance Company were paid $11,528,000 during the first six months of 1962, it was announced yesterday by the company.

This compares with $10,739,000 paid during the corresponding period in 1961, and includes all types of claim payments, dividends, annuities, and other insurance benefits.

Total Prudential payments in the United States and Canada for the first half of 1962 were $781,549,000, setting a new record. The old record was $740,642,000, set during the first half of 1961.

Philadelphia Finds Delinquency Cure

Philadelphia has found a formula to successfully combat juvenile delinquency. It is not revolutionary, dictatorial or superficial. It works simply by giving the hundreds of teenage youths who roam the streets looking for trouble something constructive to do.

In 1960, Philadelphians were shocked by the record of their 17th Police District. Referred to more often as "the jungle," the 17th witnessed three wanton gang slayings in that year, and dozens of gang wars, lootings, and violent crimes of all descriptions. Even social workers steered clear of the district.

Since December, 1960, there has not been a murder in the district and incidences of violence have dropped dramatically. Gang warfare has all but ceased, and the occasional clashes which still occur are between small, leaderless groups, in sharp contrast to the hundreds of youths who formerly participated in gang rumbles.

What happened to change the 17th? Nothing more extraordinary than a decision to ferret out the gang ringleaders and divert their attentions, voluntarily, to other pursuits they would find equally enjoyable. Social clubs and athletic contests have provided the therapy needed to convert the area from a jungle to a neighborhood where citizens are no longer afraid to walk the streets.

Boys like to congregate in groups, so no attempt was made to break up the gangs. Instead, young men hired by the Crime Prevention Association of Philadelphia have joined the gangs and slowly worked their way into the confidence of the members. Before long, they are able to suggest things for the gangs to do which do not involve violence or breaking the law.

The association sees that gymnasiums are open after school hours in strategically located schools. Private individuals offer the use of vacant storerooms for clubhouses.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Professional Revolution

The strikes of school teachers in various cities, particularly New York; the doctors' strikes in Saskatchewan and Vienna are straws in the wind. The professional man is weary of earning less than a plumber; he sees no justification for the trend to proletarize the intellectual classes. In an era in which revolution has become almost permanent, the attitude of persons and governments to those who have devoted their time and energy to the development of the mind is disrespectful.

At a time when it is believed that everyone is entitled to his opinion, it is true that only the expert can have an opinion on an increasing number of subjects. For instance, how many persons in this country have the qualifications to have any opinion whatsoever on the structure and function of the cell and why some cells go wild and produce what is popularly called a cancer? How many persons in the whole world can have an opinion based on any knowledge as to the functioning of the pituitary gland when affected by certain hormones? How many of us base opinions on hearsay and slogans without adequate knowledge whether the slogans and hearsay have any basis in fact?

I receive a very large mail and like to publish letters from time to time. It once occurred to me, after checking a number of statements in such a letter, that it would be cruel to publish a letter from a writer who wrote of the foundations of the United States without any specific knowledge of the subject, although he could have found the required information with a few hours of effort.

The professional man may not be as smart as the plumber who charges by the hour and keeps his tools so distant from his work that hours are spent walking to and fro. He may not be as smart as the butcher who squeezes water into tongues or who puts 50 percent fat into hamburger meat.

But the professional man does know how to deal with a sick kidney or a fractured heart or with the physics and chemistry of life prolongation.

It used to be that human beings respected each other for their worth, but today the motto seems to be, "I'm as good as you are." How does one measure worth? No one has an inherent right to anything except life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And there are enormous limitations upon these rights. What an individual does not earn, he does not deserve.

The great honors in this age go to scientists because the success of the survival of any nation depends upon the achievements of science, but such a survival may be an empty cask if the spiritual, the nonmaterial, even the mystical life of man is not preserved and cultivated. The totally secular life, which seems to be the aim of some of the justices of the Supreme Court, can leave us so bankrupt that our survival may not be worth-while.

The doctors in Saskatchewan have performed a very valuable service because they have established this: the professional man, who is everywhere few in number, cannot be treated by the politician as the politician dare not treat a truck driver. If the truck drivers can unite for their protection, so can professional men.

The "scabs" who went to Saskatchewan from Great Britain and the United States have learned that those who still have freedom of choice, exercise it. "We want our doctors," was the outcry of the people. But when a professional man becomes a "scab" and a strikebreaker against his own class, he is not serving mankind. He is denying the advantage of a professional class experimenting, analyzing, researching, discovering in an atmosphere of free trial and error.

How would such a "scab" like to work under such conditions as existed in Soviet Russia when Stalin determined what was correct in the field of genetics? It was only when Khrushchev saw American corn grow in freedom, where anyone could experiment in genetics who knew how, that he realized why we are over-produced while people in Communist countries starve.

It is tough to prepare to possess knowledge; it is tougher still to continue to remain alert and to know what is developing even in one's own field. The world needs to respect such men, even if it does not compensate them.

'Spending' Not Magic Cure For Economic Ills

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Everybody, irrespective of party or faction, wants America to enjoy an era of prosperity, but if unsound counsel prevails at the White House and in Congress, the United States may experience in the next few years its deepest depression of this century.

A dangerous doctrine has lately been warmed up from New Deal days and has been given respectability by advisers to President Kennedy. It is that "spending" by the federal government, even if it produces deficits, will somehow, by some magic of its own, produce an economic utopia.

If "spending" were the solution to economic ills, then the United States should still be going through the most prosperous 45-year period in its history. The World War I spending reached a peak of nearly $20 bililon in 1919. At the end of World War II, spending reached another peak—nearly $100 billion—in 1945. But the big war was over only five years when the Korean Conflict sent federal spending upward to around $75 billion in 1953. Instead of tapering off substantially after the Korean War, the spending during the "cold war" has kept on climbing, and this year is back up to around $90 billion.

The idea that mere spending of money produces prosperity is fallacious. It is the way the money is spent which counts — especially whether the funds are used in private investment for productive purposes that last beyond just a short-term period.

The key is not how much is spent, but what the money is spent for. Defense money expended on weapons doesn't develop a high volume of transactions that percolate through the whole economy. Private spending, on the other hand, is usually for goods that have a long-term value and that multiply the number of transactions in the business world.

A devastating rebuttal of the "spending" theory was made recently by Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier. He was chairman of the President's council of economic advisers from 1957 through 1960, but his advice wasn't always followed. In a speech on June 18 before the Babson Institute of Business Administration, he said in part:

"What recent history tells us about the effect of increases in federal spending is not very favorable to the view that an economy such as ours can spend itself into prosperity via the federal budget. . . .

"What this experience tells us is that, if the environment is not favorable to an increase in private spending, an increase in federal spending, even a large increase, is a well-nigh futile exercise. . . .

"In the first four months of this calendar year, the cash budget of the United States ran a deficit of close to $10 billion, on a seasonably adjusted annual-rate basis. In the comparable four months of the 1958-59 recovery, the federal cash budget showed a surplus of $4.6 billion, on an annual-rate basis.

"Yet the unemployment rate has actually been somewhat higher under the recently deficit than it was under the earlier surplus. There were clouds on the economic horizon in those months of surplus in 1960, but it must be conceded that the economic sky in 1962, under very large deficits, is far from entirely clear."

Dr. Saulnier said pointedly that to those "who regard budgetary deficits as a more or less guaranteed formula for producing a brisk recovery, the present cycle must be a veritable nightmare." He argued bluntly that tax reductions will not by themselves furnish a remedy. He added:

"If there is a need to cut taxes in the expansion phase of a cycle, when we already have a large deficit, then there is equally a need to consider whether we are now spending too much money on programs that make no contribution whatever to our capacity for growth and to consider whether we are doing other things, entirely outside of the tax field, that are tending to suppress private investment spending.

"If this is what we are doing, and I think it is, then we cannot retrieve the situation with governmental red ink, and very few really sophisticated people will believe that we can."

This is a period of self-examination, and it is becoming clearer every day that "across-the-board" tax cuts or simplified tax rules on depreciation or other artificial measures will not and cannot of themselves do as much good for the economy as can a healthy reduction in unproductive expenditures for armament and an avoidance of excessive spending for social-welfare programs that the national economy at this time cannot really afford.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BETTER FOR KENNEDY — Congress is beginning to perk up on legislative matters as summer drags into the dog days and there are signs that President Kennedy may get more of his program enacted before adjournment than seemed likely only a few short weeks ago.

When a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats in the House beat back the administration's farm bill, the universal reaction was that Congress was in a conservative mood that seriously threatened major chunks of the Kennedy program. But a week later, the House approved his liberal foreign trade and tariff bill in handsome fashion.

Since then, the Senate Finance Committee has shown signs of acting on the Kennedy bill to provide tax incentives to modernize business, and the upper chamber seems ready to find a way to bring the medical aid program for the aged through social security to the floor for a vote.

These actions of the past few weeks have caused congressional experts to take another look at the vote that defeated the farm bill. Their new conclusion is that it was less a defeat for Kennedy than was first assessed, but rather a reflection on the diversity of the farm problem and an inability to obtain a majority congressional sentiment for any one solution.

Meantime, the number one topic in Washington is the matter of the timing of a tax-cutting bill to thwart a recession, if one is in the offing. Pressures are mounting on the Kennedy administration to act now, even if a recessio should not be in the offing.

Administration Advisers Against President's Woo - Business Policy

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—John F. Kennedy was a boy in knee pants when his father, as first chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, was wrestling with the problems of the great depression. However, some of those who weathered those tough days of the 1930's are still around, and you will find they have some very firm ideas about pulling the country out of business storms.

One is that you can't appease business and that JFK's woo-business policy just won't work.

In elaboration, they cite the following historical facts; all of them going to the point that business has shirked its past obligations and will continue to shirk them in the future:

Historical Fact 1—When Hitler had French and British backs to the wall in 1940, the Roosevelt Administration, seeing the inevitability of America's entrance into the war, tried to place orders with Packard Motors for airplane engines on behalf of the French and British. The orders were refused unless Packard got the right to depreciate new equipment in five years.

Other companies followed suit, and this accelerated tax write-off became the pattern followed by American industry all during the war. This is the same principle at issue in faster tax write-offs which industry wants—and, up to a point, is now getting—on new equipment today.

Some White House advisers say new equipment could be paid for out of dividends instead of from tax concessions.

Historical Fact 2—As war approached, the automobile industry refused to convert from peacetime operation. Steel was vitally needed. The auto industry was and is the biggest user of steel. It took tough pressure from the White House—not appeasement—to persuade the motor moguls to curtail production.

Historical Fact 3—The business community made tremendous profits during World War II and the Korean War. They enjoyed cost-plus contracts, took no chances on losses, wrote their own ticket on terms. During this period, industry lost the practice of getting out to rustle for new business. It was handed business on a silver platter. So say some of the economic experts in Washington.

Historical Fact 4—During the immediate postwar period, the world was hungry for goods. The United States was about the only country which could supply those goods, and industry continued to be handed new business on a silver platter. Even inefficient compaies could make money.

Historical Fact 5—After the war, American industry became the beneficiary of massive war research by the U. S. government, of excess equipment which the government sold for a song, and of surplus war plants paid for by the taxpayers but almost given away to the companies which had operated them.

Never has business had it so good.

Historical Fact 6—During this period, American business became spoiled, flabby, unpracticed in rubbing up against foreign competition, out of touch with the world, as recently described by Clarence Randall, chairman of Inland Steel, in the New York Times Sunday Magazine.

Company executives have had fat expense accounts, private airplanes, some even charged up the cost of divorces to company expense.

Cultivation of foreign markets is a long, slow, painstaking process which our German and Japanese competitors have been willing to undertake. Many American firms haven't.

All of this is a damning indictment. Nevertheless, many industry leaders privately agree with it.

The above facts have led to a state wherein the production of real goods in this country has increased only 1 per cent in the last 12 years. The population has gone up 15 per cent in 12 years but production only 1 per cent. Our only real increase has been in services. Like the British Empire when it passed the peak of its prime, we have become a predominant service nation, so that in 1961, for the first time in history, services—insurance, interest on loans, transportation, handling of goods, etc.—became the larger part of our gross national product.

Historical Fact 7—The dividend has become sacrosanct. It has been put ahead of the welfare of the company, not used for investments in new capital equipment or drives for foreign business.

For instance, U. S. Steel has just cut back $100,000,000 of capital investment for new plant equipment, but is not touching dividends.

All this is why business today is demanding a tax cut, plus accelerated depreciation on new equipment, plus a tax allowance on capital investment. Actually, this is equivalent to a bribe to get a man to do what he should have been doing during the past 12 years.

This is not a delicate way of expressing it, but more candid business leaders will admit, privately, that it's true.

This bribe to get industry to do what it should have been doing for years is now necessary — partly because business has waited too long, partly because the stock market has become a state of mind and has to be bolstered.

All of this means that business has Kennedy over the barrel when it comes to tax concessions. But that doesn't mean, according to contemporaries of Kennedy's father in the last depression, that business should be appeased. For business, they say, will kick the President in the teeth no matter how many luncheons and conferences he invited them to—just as it is laughing about these luncheons today.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

She was tall. And straight. There was a double braid of copper hair wound around her head. It is white now but, in the time of which I speak, Mrs. Katherine Godfrey was a rare woman. She was filled with perpetual optimism, beautiful music, sublime faith in a husband who had lost his own, and a faculty for making hard luck look like a blessing.

It wasn't easy. She had five children: Arthur, Kathy, Charlie, Bob and Dorothy Jean. The family was so poor that, one Christmas, when they lived in a store with Bon Ami covering the windows, all they had to eat was mashed potatoes and gravy. There were no gifts, no tree, nothing but the amazing love that all the Godfreys had for each other.

This is better than food, but the little Godfreys missed lots of meals. It wasn't anyone's fault. Dad Godfrey was a good man caught in the wrong era. He was an Englishman by birth, and an expert writer on hackney horses. These are high-stepping trotters and they were being replaced by the Chalmers, the Chandler, the Dort and the Stanley Steamer at a time when Mr. Godfrey was prepared to enlighten readers about nags.

"Don't worry, Darl'," Mrs. Godfrey used to say. "Your ship will come it." It didn't. It never would. But Dad Godfrey wore spats, sported a cane, hobnobbed with the Vanderbilts and Whitneys, and owed the butcher, the grocer, the shoemaker—all merchants in Hasbrouck Heights, New Jersey. The only unforgivable thing he ever did was to die early. That left the whole family with no one to tell them what it was going to be like when the ship came in.

Katherine Godfrey insisted that all her children were geniuses. "You are," she would say. "Some day you will all be on the stage. You'll be famous. You can sing, dance, compose. You're geniuses." They weren't. But it was nice to hear because she was sincere. She truly believed it. She still argues that she was right because her oldest boy, Arthur, is famous: Kathy was a radio announcer when she was 16; Dorothy Jean is a playwright.

Could anyone ask more proof? Mother played the piano in a silent movie house and earned $6 a week. She composed music; she could make a fairy queen costume for one of her girls out of an old newspaper and a dozen straight pins; Arthur had a bakery route when he was 13; Charlie delivered milk and sneaked two quarts into the house every day; the kids would baby-sit, mow a lawn, deliver a package and mother would walk eight miles to Paterson to sell crocheting and walk back to save trolley fare.

This, my friends, was a family. Arthur, at 15, was the new father, ordering the others to help clean the house, sell the empty soda bottles, make the beds, empty the garbage. Twice in his life, matters became so bad that he could stand it no longer, and both times he ran away. Once he got a job in Ohio. Once he joined the Navy.

The gas an electricity had been shut off many times. Once when a woman delivered a basket of food out of charity, Mrs. Katherine Godfrey carried the basket back to the car, dropped it inside with a large thank you, and said: "You must have the wrong family."

For a long while, the family lived on peanut butter for all meals. When money came in, Mrs. Godfrey bought 15-cent margarine for the bread. "What's margarine?" the children said. Mother beamed. "It isn't fattening," she said. "They just take the butter out of it."

When a youngster complained of having nothing to do, Mrs. Godfrey would look to heaven for forgiveness. "There's always something to do," she would say. "See how many flat stones you can find. Then figure out a game to play with them. Find a colony of ants and watch them. Make perfume out of flower petals. Do something nice for somebody, like cutting somebody's lawn when they're away."

She sold her wedding ring. She sold her great-grandmother's quilts. She painted bowls, chopped up kitchen chairs for firewood, radiated happiness, and said: "You're all geniuses. Every one of you." Two of the girls, Jean and Kathy, have written a book called "Genius in the Family." I don't like I-Remember-Momma books, but this one is so good, so rich with anecdotes about Mrs. Godfrey, that I laughted until the tears came, and sometimes when the tears came, they came to stay.

Mother sang on radio in 1924. Her announcer was Norman Brokenshire. She earned $5 per program. One day, Mrs. Frank Burr stopped in at the house and "borrowed" a crocheted tablecloth which required six months of work. The kids knew mother had planned to sell it for food. "Grace Burr," she said, "can have anything I own."

Mrs. Burr returned two weeks later with a check. The women had raffled off the tablecloth. Mrs. Godfrey wept—an unusual thing for her—and used the money to pay her husband's funeral expenses.

There was a genius in that family all right. It was Mrs. Katherine Godfrey . . .

Anger Gets Blame For Some Heart Attacks

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Coronary thrombosis is our number one cause of death. It was described by the late Dr. James B. Herrick in 1912. Angina pectoris, a precursor of this condition, was known and discussed long before but up to Dr. Herrick's time, sudden death from a heart attack usually was blamed on "acute indigestion."

Why did so few people have heart attacks prior to 200 years ago? Dr. Samuel J. Kowal of Boston has his own ideas along this line, based on an old observation that a bout of angina often followed a fit of anger or rage. The victim is blocked by a situation beyond his control and, instead of letting off steam in a less dangerous way, develops chest pain. Some go a step further and get an attack of coronary thrombosis.

The solution to this type of problem prior to the 16th or 17th century was easier than it is today. Life was cheap and the opponent could be poisoned, stabbed, or shot. In addition, there was less gluttony among the masses and left expectancy was not high; only a small number lived to an age when hardening of the coronary arteries developed.

Narrowed blood vessels curtail circulation to the heart muscle. Chest pain occurs when the old pump needs more nourishment during exercise or emotional upheavals.

In our day and age, society requires man to suppress his rage and restrain his violence. The anginal reaction to anger is the result.

It is interesting to note that physicians of past centuries were familiar with a medical syndrome in which anger was followed by chest pain and sudden death. The old, oldtimers blamed this syndrome on anger and the old-timers on indigestion. We now know it is caused by narrowing of the coronary arteries.

It is much better to work off your anger through physical exercise than to let it damage your heart. Golf is a life saver for many men: whacking at a golf ball is a substitute for punching an enemy in the nose. Others release their rage by taking a long walk, swinging the arms vigorously, by sawing wood, or working with a punching bag in the rumpus room.

Still others take the intellectual approach; they look at their grim vistage in the mirror and think, "How ridiculous can I get?" Talking over the problem with a sympathetic friend or spouse helps put the situation in a new light. Regardless of the way you blow off steam, your coronary arteries will appreciate the release and will not cry out with a bout of angina pectoris.

WHO'S CRAZY?

V. P. writes: Is it true that 67 per cent of the people in the U. S. A. are mentally unbalanced?

REPLY

No, and should the percentage get that high we might be forced to change our definition of normalcy.

FUSED VERTEBRAS

G. F. writes: What causes a fusion of the spine?

REPLY

Joints fuse (become stiff) when the opposing surfaces are destroyed by injury, degeneration, or infection. Arthritis is a common cause of fusion of the spine.

PORTWINE STAIN

Nothing at this time.

MEDICAL CURE OF ULCER

M. F. writes: Is it possible to cure ulcers by diet or is surgery always needed eventually?

REPLY

The majority of ulcers heal by diet, alkalis, and drugs that reduce acid formation and lessen the churning movements of the stomach. Surgery is needed when pain persists or complications develop.

TOMORROW: Shingles, an outside job.

Try And Stop Me

The late Albert Einstein was not the one to bother his head with the mazes of modern finance. No sooner did he arrive in America than he was persuaded by an unscrupulous broker to put all his savings — some $22,000 — into a list of veritable "cats and dogs." An indignant friend made him sell them at once, and undertook to reinvest the funds in gilt-edged securities.

For twenty years Dr. Einstein never questioned him once about his holdings. Then the friend informed him that the securities had vaulted to a market value of over $200,000! "Listen," Dr. Einstein interrupted him crossly. "I don't bother you about relativity. Don't you bother me about stocks and bonds!"

Peter Lind Hayes spotted the most poignant classified ad of the year on the inside page of an East Berlin newspaper. It reads—if you can believe Peter — "WILL EXCHANGE: One fourteen room, fully air-conditioned East Berlin villa for a hole in the wall."

Samuel Pepys, whose diaries faithfully reported London goings-on in the late seventeenth century, and have been required reading for college students ever since, reflect a dim view of the plays of William Shakespeare.

Of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Pepys wrote, "This is the most insipid, ridiculous play I ever saw in my life." He called "Romeo and Juliet," "The very worst play that ever I heard," and dismissed "Twelfth Night" as "silly." In fairness to Mr. Pepys, points out drama critic George Oppenheimer, he did admit he enjoyed "Hamlet."

Philadelphia Finds Delinquency Cure

Philadelphia has found a formula to successfully combat juvenile delinquency. It is not revolutionary, dictatorial or superficial. It works simply by giving the hundreds of teenage youths who roam the streets looking for trouble something constructive to do.

In 1960, Philadelphians were shocked by the record of their 17th Police District. Referred to more often as "the jungle," the 17th witnessed three wanton gang slayings in that year, and dozens of gang wars, lootings, and violent crimes of all descriptions. Even social workers steered clear of the district.

Since December, 1960, there has not been a murder in the district and incidences of violence have dropped dramatically. Gang warfare has all but ceased, and the occasional clashes which still occur are between small, leaderless groups, in sharp contrast to the hundreds of youths who formerly participated in gang rumbles.

What happened to change the 17th? Nothing more extraordinary than a decision to ferret out the gang ringleaders and divert their attentions, voluntarily, to other pursuits they would find equally enjoyable. Social clubs and athletic contests have provided the therapy needed to convert the area from a jungle to a neighborhood where citizens are no longer afraid to walk the streets.

Boys like to congregate in groups, so no attempt was made to break up the gangs. Instead, young men hired by the Crime Prevention Association of Philadelphia have joined the gangs and slowly worked their way into the confidence of the members. Before long, they are able to suggest things for the gangs to do which do not involve violence or breaking the law.

The association sees that gymnasiums are open after school hours in strategically located schools. Private individuals offer the use of vacant storerooms for clubhouses.

These Days

The Professional Revolution

The strikes of school teachers in various cities, particularly New York; the doctors' strikes in Saskatchewan and Vienna are straws in the wind. The professional man is weary of earning less than a plumber; he sees no justification for the trend to proletarize the intellectual classes. In an era in which revolution has become almost permanent, the attitude of persons and governments to those who have devoted their time and energy to the development of the mind is disrespectful.

At a time when it is believed that everyone is entitled to his opinion, it is true that only the expert can have an opinion on an increasing number of subjects. For instance, how many persons in this country have the qualifications to have any opinion whatsoever on the structure and function of the cell and why some cells go wild and produce what is popularly called a cancer? How many persons in the whole world can have an opinion based on any knowledge as to the functioning of the pituitary gland when affected by certain hormones? How many of us base opinions on hearsay and slogans without adequate knowledge whether the slogans and hearsay have any basis in fact?

I receive a very large mail and like to publish letters from time to time. It once occurred to me, after checking a number of statements in such a letter, that it would be cruel to publish a letter from a writer who wrote of the foundations of the United States without any specific knowledge of the subject, although he could have found the required information with a few hours of effort.

The professional man may not be as smart as the plumber who charges by the hour and keeps his tools so distant from his work that hours are spent walking to and fro. He may not be as smart as the butcher who squeezes water into tongues or who puts 50 percent fat into hamburger meat.

But the professional man does know how to deal with a sick kidney or a fractured heart or with the physics and chemistry of life prolongation.

It used to be that human beings respected each other for their worth, but today the motto seems to be, "I'm as good as you are." How does one measure worth? No one has an inherent right to anything except life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And there are enormous limitations upon these rights. What an individual does not earn, he does not deserve.

The great honors in this age go to scientists because the success of the survival of any nation depends upon the achievements of science, but such a survival may be an empty cask if the spiritual, the nonmaterial, even the mystical life of man is not preserved and cultivated. Since then, the Senate Finance Committee has shown signs of acting on the Kennedy bill to provide tax incentives to modernize business, and the upper chamber seems ready to find a way to bring the medical aid program for the aged through social security to the floor for a vote.

These actions of the past few weeks have caused congressional experts to take another look at the vote that defeated the farm bill. Their new conclusion is that it was less a defeat for Kennedy than was first assessed, but rather a reflection on the diversity of the farm problem and an inability to obtain a majority congressional sentiment for any one solution.

Meantime, the number one topic in Washington is the matter of the timing of a tax-cutting bill to thwart a recession, if one is in the offing. Pressures are mounting on the Kennedy administration to act now, even if a recessio should not be in the offing.

Administration Advisers Against President's Woo - Business Policy

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—John F. Kennedy was a boy in knee pants when his father, as first chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, was wrestling with the problems of the great depression. However, some of those who weathered those tough days of the 1930's are still around, and you will find they have some very firm ideas about pulling the country out of business storms.

One is that you can't appease business and that JFK's woo-business policy just won't work.

In elaboration, they cite the following historical facts: all of them going to the point that business has shirked its past obligations and will continue to shirk them in the future:

Historical Fact 1—When Hitler had French and British backs to the wall in 1940, the Roosevelt Administration, seeing the inevitability of America's entrance into the war, tried to place orders with Packard Motors for airplane engines on behalf of the French and British. The orders were refused unless Packard got the right to depreciate new equipment in five years.

Other companies followed suit, and this accelerated tax write-off became the pattern followed by American industry all during the war. This is the same principle at issue in faster tax write-offs which industry wants—and, up to a point, is now getting—on new equipment today.

Some White House advisers say new equipment could be paid for out of dividends instead of from tax concessions.

Historical Fact 2—As war approached, the automobile industry refused to convert from peacetime operation. Steel was vitally needed. The auto industry was and is the biggest user of steel. It took tough pressure from the White House—not appeasement—to persuade the motor moguls to curtail production.

Historical Fact 3—The business community made tremendous profits during World War II and the Korean War. They enjoyed cost-plus contracts, took no chances on losses, wrote their own ticket on terms. During this period, industry lost the practice of getting out to rustle for new business. It was handed business on a silver platter. So say some of the economic experts in Washington.

Historical Fact 4—During the immediate postwar period, the world was hungry for goods. The United States was about the only country which could supply those goods, and industry continued to be handed new business on a silver platter. Even inefficient compaies could make money.

Historical Fact 5—After the war, American industry became the beneficiary of massive war research by the U. S. government, of excess equipment which the government sold for a song, and of surplus war plants paid for by the taxpayers but almost given away to the companies which had operated them.

Never has business had it so good.

Historical Fact 6—During this period, American business became spoiled, flabby, unpracticed in rubbing up against foreign competition, out of touch with the world, as recently described by Clarence Randall, chairman of Inland Steel, in the New York Times Sunday Magazine.

Company executives have had fat expense accounts, private airplanes, some even charged up the cost of divorces to company expense.

Cultivation of foreign markets is a long, slow, painstaking process which our German and Japanese competitors have been willing to undertake. Many American firms haven't.

All of this is a damning indictment. Nevertheless, many industry leaders privately agree with it.

The above facts have led to a state wherein the production of real goods in this country has increased only 1 per cent in the last 12 years. The population has gone up 15 per cent in 12 years but production only 1 per cent. Our only real increase has been in services. Like the British Empire when it passed the peak of its prime, we have become a predominant service nation, so that in 1961, for the first time in history, services—insurance, interest on loans, transportation, handling of goods, etc.—became the larger part of our gross national product.

Historical Fact 7—The dividend has become sacrosanct. It has been put ahead of the welfare of the company, not used for investments in new capital equipment or drives for foreign business.

For instance, U. S. Steel has just cut back $100,000,000 of capital investment for new plant equipment, but is not touching dividends.

All this is why business today is demanding a tax cut, plus accelerated depreciation on new equipment, plus a tax allowance on capital investment. Actually, this is equivalent to a bribe to get a man to do what he should have been doing during the past 12 years.

This is not a delicate way of expressing it, but more candid business leaders will admit, privately, that it's true.

This bribe to get industry to do what it should have been doing for years is now necessary — partly because business has waited too long, partly because the stock market has become a state of mind and has to be bolstered.

All of this means that business has Kennedy over the barrel when it comes to tax concessions. But that doesn't mean, according to contemporaries of Kennedy's father in the last depression, that business should be appeased. For business, they say, will kick the President in the teeth no matter how many luncheons and conferences he invited them to—just as it is laughing about these luncheons today.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

She was tall. And straight. There was a double braid of copper hair wound around her head. It is white now but, in the time of which I speak, Mrs. Katherine Godfrey was a rare woman. She was filled with perpetual optimism, beautiful music, sublime faith in a husband who had lost his own, and a faculty for making hard luck look like a blessing.

It wasn't easy. She had five children: Arthur, Kathy, Charlie, Bob and Dorothy Jean. The family was so poor that, one Christmas, when they lived in a store with Bon Ami covering the windows, all they had to eat was mashed potatoes and gravy. There were no gifts, no tree, nothing but the amazing love that all the Godfreys had for each other.

This is better than food, but the little Godfreys missed lots of meals. It wasn't anyone's fault. Dad Godfrey was a good man caught in the wrong era. He was an Englishman by birth, and an expert writer on hackney horses. These are high-stepping trotters and they were being replaced by the Chalmers, the Chandler, the Dort and the Stanley Steamer at a time when Mr. Godfrey was prepared to enlighten readers about nags.

"Don't worry, Darl'," Mrs. Godfrey used to say. "Your ship will come it." It didn't. It never would. But Dad Godfrey wore spats, sported a cane, hobnobbed with the Vanderbilts and Whitneys, and owed the butcher, the grocer, the shoemaker—all merchants in Hasbrouck Heights, New Jersey. The only unforgivable thing he ever did was to die early. That left the whole family with no one to tell them what it was going to be like when the ship came in.

Katherine Godfrey insisted that all her children were geniuses. "You are," she would say. "Some day you will all be on the stage. You'll be famous. You can sing, dance, compose. You're geniuses." They weren't. But it was nice to hear because she was sincere. She truly believed it. She still argues that she was right because her oldest boy, Arthur, is famous; Kathy was a radio announcer when she was 16; Dorothy Jean is a playwright.

Could anyone ask more proof? Mother played the piano in a silent movie house and earned $6 a week. She composed music; she could make a fairy queen costume for one of her girls out of an old newspaper and a dozen straight pins; Arthur had a bakery route when he was 13; Charlie delivered milk and sneaked two quarts into the house every day; the kids would baby-sit, mow a lawn, deliver a package and mother would walk eight miles to Paterson to sell crocheting and walk back to save trolley fare.

This, my friends, was a family. Arthur, at 15, was the new father, ordering the others to help clean the house, sell the empty soda bottles, make the beds, empty the garbage. Twice in his life, matters became so bad that he could stand it no longer, and both times he ran away. Once he got a job in Ohio. Once he joined the Navy.

The gas an electricity had been shut off many times. Once when a woman delivered a basket of food out of charity, Mrs. Katherine Godfrey carried the basket back to the car, dropped it inside with a large thank you, and said: "You must have the wrong family."

For a long while, the family lived on peanut butter for all meals. When money came in, Mrs. Godfrey bought 15-cent margarine for the bread. "What's margarine?" the children said. Mother beamed. "It isn't fattening," she said. "They just take the butter out of it."

When a youngster complained of having nothing to do, Mrs. Godfrey would look to heaven for forgiveness. "There's always something to do," she would say. "See how many flat stones you can find. Then figure out a game to play with them. Find a colony of ants and watch them. Make perfume out of flower petals. Do something nice for somebody, like cutting somebody's lawn when they're away."

She sold her wedding ring. She sold her great-grandmother's quilts. She painted bowls, chopped up kitchen chairs for firewood, radiated happiness, and said: "You're all geniuses. Every one of you." Two of the girls, Jean and Kathy, have written a book called "Genius in the Family." I don't like I-Remember-Momma books, but this one is so good, so rich with anecdotes about Mrs. Godfrey, that I laughted until the tears came, and sometimes when the tears came, they came to stay.

Mother sang on radio in 1924. Her announcer was Norman Brokenshire. She earned $5 per program. One day, Mrs. Frank Burr stopped in at the house and "borrowed" a crocheted tablecloth which required six months of work. The kids knew mother had planned to sell it for food. "Grace Burr," she said, "can have anything I own."

Mrs. Burr returned two weeks later with a check. The women had raffled off the tablecloth. Mrs. Godfrey wept—an unusual thing for her—and used the money to pay her husband's funeral expenses.

There was a genius in that family all right. It was Mrs. Katherine Godfrey . . .

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Coronary thrombosis is our number one cause of death. It was described by the late Dr. James B. Herrick in 1912. Angina pectoris, a precursor of this condition, was known and discussed long before but up to Dr. Herrick's time, sudden death from a heart attack usually was blamed on "acute indigestion."

Why did so few people have heart attacks prior to 200 years ago? Dr. Samuel J. Kowal of Boston has his own ideas along this line, based on an old observation that a bout of angina often followed a fit of anger or rage. The victim is blocked by a situation beyond his control and, instead of letting off steam in a less dangerous way, develops chest pain. Some go a step further and get an attack of coronary thrombosis.

The solution to this type of problem prior to the 16th or 17th century was easier than it is today. Life was cheap and the opponent could be poisoned, stabbed, or shot. In addition, there was less gluttony among the masses and left expectancy was not high; only a small number lived to an age when hardening of the coronary arteries developed.

Narrowed blood vessels curtail circulation to the heart muscle. Chest pain occurs when the old pump needs more nourishment during exercise or emotional upheavals.

In our day and age, society requires man to suppress his rage and restrain his violence. The anginal reaction to anger is the result.

It is interesting to note that physicians of past centuries were familiar with a medical syndrome in which anger was followed by chest pain and sudden death. The old, oldtimers blamed this syndrome on anger and the old-timers on indigestion. We now know it is caused by narrowing of the coronary arteries.

It is much better to work off your anger through physical exercise than to let it damage your heart. Golf is a life saver for many men: whacking at a golf ball is a substitute for punching an enemy in the nose. Others release their rage by taking a long walk, swinging the arms vigorously, by sawing wood, or working with a punching bag in the rumpus room.

Still others take the intellectual approach; they look at their grim vistage in the mirror and think, "How ridiculous can I get?" Talking over the problem with a sympathetic friend or spouse helps put the situation in a new light. Regardless of the way you blow off steam, your coronary arteries will appreciate the release and will not cry out with a bout of angina pectoris.

WHO'S CRAZY?

V. P. writes: Is it true that 67 per cent of the people in the U. S. A. are mentally unbalanced?

REPLY

No, and should the percentage get that high we might be forced to change our definition of normalcy.

FUSED VERTEBRAS

G. F. writes: What causes a fusion of the spine?

REPLY

Joints fuse (become stiff) when the opposing surfaces are destroyed by injury, degeneration, or infection. Arthritis is a common cause of fusion of the spine.

PORTWINE STAIN

M. P. writes: What is done about a portwine birthmark that has disfigured the face of a 2 month old girl?

REPLY

Nothing at this time.

MEDICAL CURE OF ULCER

M. F. writes: Is it possible to cure ulcers by diet or is surgery always needed eventually?

REPLY

The majority of ulcers heal by diet, alkalis, and drugs that reduce acid formation and lessen the churning movements of the stomach. Surgery is needed when pain persists or complications develop.

TOMORROW: Shingles, an outside job.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

The late Albert Einstein was not the one to bother his head with the mazes of modern finance. No sooner did he arrive in America than he was persuaded by an unscrupulous broker to put all his savings — some $22,000 — into a list of veritable "cats and dogs." An indignant friend made him sell them at once, and undertook to reinvest the funds in gilt-edged securities.

For twenty years Dr. Einstein never questioned him once about his holdings. Then the friend informed him that the securities had vaulted to a market value of over $200,000! "Listen," Dr. Einstein interrupted him crossly. "I don't bother you about relativity. Don't you bother me about stocks and bonds!"

Peter Lind Hayes spotted the most poignant classified ad of the year on the inside page of an East Berlin newspaper. It reads—if you can believe Peter — "WILL EXCHANGE: One fourteen room, fully air-conditioned East Berlin villa for a hole in the wall."

Samuel Pepys, whose diaries faithfully reported London goings-on in the late seventeenth century, and have been required reading for college students ever since, reflect a dim view of the plays of William Shakespeare.

Of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Pepys wrote, "This is the most insipid, ridiculous play I ever saw in my life." He called "Romeo and Juliet," "The very worst play that ever I heard," and dismissed "Twelfth Night" as "silly." In fairness to Mr. Pepys, points out drama critic George Oppenheimer, he did admit he enjoyed "Hamlet."

Incinerator May Be Built By Frostburg

City Engineer Is Reviewing Plans

FROSTBURG — City Council held a special meeting Wednesday evening to discuss the erection of an incinerator and trash burner this summer on the proposed new location for the city dump.

Negotiations are now underway with the Borden Mining Company to secure a location for a new dump in the old strip mining operations on Big Savage Mountain.

The previous dump located on Midlothian Road, close to the city limits, will be closed as soon as possible.

Numerous complaints during the past year caused the State Board of Health to issue a directive to close the area as it was not being operated by the private owner as it was originally intended. When opened it was to be a sanitary land fill in that all refuse would be leveled, tamped and covered each day to prevent the spreading of flies, rats and odors.

The proposed dump will be enclosed with a hurricane fence and also be covered over with a screen so that nothing can blow out of the area. It is planned to erect an incinerator and burn everything that is dumped then cover the balance.

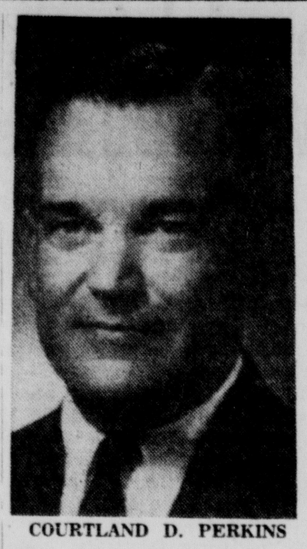

City Engineer Gerald Arthur has been instructed to review tentative plans for the burner. Construction will then start as soon as possible.

Fire Unit Begins Fund Drive

PETERSBURG—The Petersburg Volunteer Fire Company has launched its annual fund-raising drive. Proceeds will be used for payment on new fire equipment.

Man Is Acquitted In Arson Case

ROMNEY—A Hampshire County Circuit Court jury Wednesday acquitted Mark Edward Scheuch, 45, of near Kirby, of an arson charge.

Scheuch had been indicted on the charge following a fire last May 25 that leveled his two-story dwelling. The jury was out only a short time before returning its verdict.

Prosecuting Attorney Loudon Thompson called on two experts to testify in the case. E. L. Roush, of the State Fire Marshal's office, explained his investigation of the blaze, and Murlin Mitten, of the Fire Underwriters Association, told how the depth of char indicated a hotter fire in one section of the Scheuch dwelling where there were no stove or electrical appliances to explain the heat.

Judge H. G. Muntzing presided at the trial. Scheuch was defended by Attorneys Herndon R. Athey and Ralph W. Haines.

Eight of 345 utilities in West Virginia are contributing more than 80 per cent of West Virginia's utility taxes, Gainer said. The largest of these is Norfolk & Western Railway with a net tax of $3,185,945.

Other major utilities and their tax assessments are:

Appalachian Power Co. $3,141,280; Monongahela Power Co. $1,649,582 Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. $1,275,921; Hope Natural Gas Co. $1,331,195; United Fuel Gas Co. $1,673,306; Baltimore & Ohio Railroad $1,709,492, and Chesapeake & Ohio Railway $2,859,931.

KEYSER — The Mayor and Council met Tuesday and appointed two members to serve on the new Keyser Sanitary Board, of which the mayor is chairman of the three-member body.

Named were David E. Long, Bonneyview, and Arthur E. Tenney, Hawthorne Heights. Long was selected to fill the engineer's post on the board while Tenney was named a member. Mayor Richard E. Romig will fill the chairmanship.

Long is project engineer in the Maintenance Department at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper. A graduate of West Virginia University, he is a registered engineer. He has resided here and worked at Luke for 11 years.

Tenney is road foreman of engines with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, a post he has held for a number of years.

The board will supervise the planning and construction, including improvements and expansion of the municipal sewerage system and sewage disposal system.

Three residents of Old Orchard section appeared before council in regard to problems being faced in certain sections of the area. After pointing out a number of matters they felt should be done, Mayor Romig said council will meet with the builders and developers to discuss problems presented by the delegates.

Three building permits were approved by council, two being for houses. Robert Evans Lewis Jr. had one approved for a one story, five-room house and garage in the South End. The size will be 24 by 25 feet. Approximate cost was estimated at $5,000.

The other was issued to Richard Hamman for a one story, seven-room residence at Hill Top and Chestnut. The size is 38 by 44 feet and the approximate cost is $13,750. Another permit was granted Harry Stewart, 85 B Street, to erect a driveway, fence and gate.

Councilman Lester H. Oates said an attempt will be made to add more time to eastbound green traffic light at Piedmont and Mineral Streets, which would allow more cars to move.

Incinerator May Be Built By Frostburg

City Engineer Is Reviewing Plans

FROSTBURG — City Council held a special meeting Wednesday evening to discuss the erection of an incinerator and trash burner this summer on the proposed new location for the city dump.

Negotiations are now underway with the Borden Mining Company to secure a location for a new dump in the old strip mining operations on Big Savage Mountain.

The previous dump located on Midlothian Road, close to the city limits, will be closed as soon as possible.

Numerous complaints during the past year caused the State Board of Health to issue a directive to close the area as it was not being operated by the private owner as it was originally intended. When opened it was to be a sanitary land fill in that all refuse would be leveled, tamped and covered each day to prevent the spreading of flies, rats and odors.

The proposed dump will be enclosed with a hurricane fence and also be covered over with a screen so that nothing can blow out of the area. It is planned to erect an incinerator and burn everything that is dumped then cover the balance.

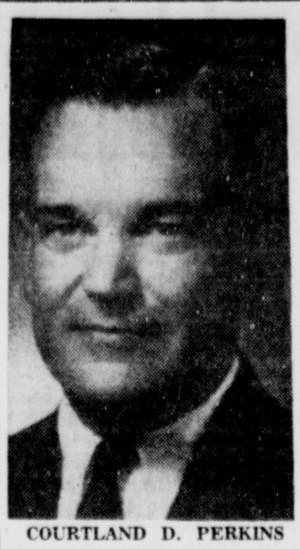

City Engineer Gerald Arthur has been instructed to review tentative plans for the burner. Construction will then start as soon as possible.

Fire Unit Begins Fund Drive

PETERSBURG—The Petersburg Volunteer Fire Company has launched its annual fund-raising drive. Proceeds will be used for payment on new fire equipment.

For 15 days, members of the company will distribute coin cards to the homes of all area residents.

The cards used for the fund campaign make it easy to contribute. They are actually savings cards with convenient slots for inserting quarters at regular stipulated times. Members of the fund drive committee hope to cover every home in the community served by the fire company.

Prosecuting Attorney Loudon Thompson called on two experts to testify in the case. E. L. Roush, of the State Fire Marshal's office, explained his investigation of the blaze, and Murlin Mitten, of the Fire Underwriters Association, told how the depth of char indicated a hotter fire in one section of the Scheuch dwelling where there were no stove or electrical appliances to explain the heat.

Charleston Recalls 1961 Flash Flood

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—One year ago Friday, the cold harsh light of day broke on the most disheartening devastation which ever hit the Charleston area.

It had rained steadily for six days until the ground was saturated with water. Then the clouds opened up on the terror - filled night of July 19, 1961, and deluged the area with as much as 5 inches of water in four hours.

The earth could hold no more water and the narrow hollows that surround the capital poured out a rampaging torrent which swept away houses, roads and bridges, leaving piles of rubble and broken hearts along the way.

The flash flood left 22 persons dead and $5 million property damage in its awesome wake. About 125 houses were destroyed and more than 1,000 others were heavily damaged as city streets, state roads and federal highways were left a shambles in the flooded area.

Hundreds of washed out residents were forced to turn to schools, armories and other places for lodging as religious groups, civic organizations and individual citizens joined together to help those who could do little to help themselves.

The worst part was over as the city was declared a major disaster area and the thankless job of cleaning up after the worst calamity ever to hit Charleston its 168 year history began—one year ago today.

Vandalism Cases Are Probed By Frostburg Police

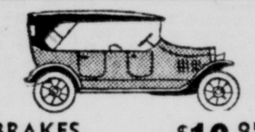

FROSTBURG — Assistant Police Chief Leslie Bevans stated today that numerous complaints have been received at the police station of vandalism caused by youths of the community who are "sleeping out" at night but who wander around damaging property of persons not at home or on vacation.

He said parents should warn their children to "stay put" at night and that any future violators or any youths apprehended on the streets during the morning hours will be arrested and charged with vandalism.

Charleston Recalls 1961 Flash Flood

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—One year ago Friday, the cold harsh light of day broke on the most disheartening devastation which ever hit the Charleston area.

It had rained steadily for six days until the ground was saturated with water. Then the clouds opened up on the terror - filled night of July 19, 1961, and deluged the area with as much as 5 inches of water in four hours.

The earth could hold no more water and the narrow hollows that surround the capital poured out a rampaging torrent which swept away houses, roads and bridges, leaving piles of rubble and broken hearts along the way.

The flash flood left 22 persons dead and $5 million property damage in its awesome wake. About 125 houses were destroyed and more than 1,000 others were heavily damaged as city streets, state roads and federal highways were left a shambles in the flooded area.

Hundreds of washed out residents were forced to turn to schools, armories and other places for lodging as religious groups, civic organizations and individual citizens joined together to help those who could do little to help themselves.

The worst part was over as the city was declared a major disaster area and the thankless job of cleaning up after the worst calamity ever to hit Charleston its 168 year history began—one year ago today.

Pirates Beat Mets, 5-1, 7-6, Trail Dodgers By 2½ Games

Bob Skinner's Home In 10th Wins Nightcap

Friend Bags 10th, Maz Wallops Two, Stuart Belts 14th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two home runs by Bill Mazeroski and one each by Dick Stuart and Bob Skinner powered the Pittsburgh Pirates to within 2½ games of first-place tonight with 5-1 and 7-6 victories over the New York Mets.

Bob Friend struck out nine and yielded only five hits to win his 10th game in the opener while ElRoy Face gained credit for his seventh victory in the 10th inning nightcap with two shutout innings of relief. The Pirates have won eight of their last nine games, 16 of their last 19, and 22 of their last 28.

Skinner broke up the nightcap by lifting a "wrong field" homer into the left field stands to hand Jay Hook his 10th loss of the season. Hook, tagged for four runs including a two-run homer by Mazeroski in the second inning, had limited the Pirates to four hits after that and struck out nine until Skinner's decisive hit.

Pinch-hitter Marv Throneberry's eighth-inning single gave the Mets a 6-5 lead, but the Pirates tied the score in the top of the ninth on a walk, Hook's second wild pitch and outfield flies by Jim Marshall and Bill Virdon.

Stuart singled home the Pirates' first run of the opener and followed a single by Roberto Clemente with his 14th homer of the season in the third to boost the Pirates to an early 3-0 lead. The Pirates added a fourth-inning run on Virdon's sacrifice fly and Mazeroski's first homer of the night rounded out their scoring in the sixth.

Friend faced only three batters in five of the nine innings and the Mets made more than one hit off him in only one inning—the sixth when Rod Kanehl homered and Felix Mantilla tripled.

Manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pirates was ejected by third base umpire Frank Walsh for arguing over a play at third in the fifth inning of the second game.

Cincy Spills Dodgers, 4-3

Score Two Runs In Ninth To Win

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-3, Thursday night in a game which featured a 500-foot home run by Frank Howard of the Dodgers.

With the Dodgers leading, 3-2, Johnny Podres walked Gordy Coleman to open the bottom of the ninth. Ron Perranoski then replaced Podres and after Don Blasingame sacrificed, Don Zimmer singled with two out to drive in the tying run. Eddie Kasko then lined a triple into the right-field corner to drive in Zimmer with the winning run.

Howard's homer in the second inning — his third in two nights against Cincinnati pitching—cleared the center-field fence 390 feet from home plate and sailed over a three-lane highway and two rows of parked cars, landing about halfway up a 20-foot dirt embankment.

The Reds tied the score in the sixth inning on a double by Wally Post and after the two teams traded tallies in the eighth inning, the Dodgers pushed across the leading run in the ninth.

Tommy Davis opened the inning with a single against winning relief pitcher Bill Henry, took second on a sacrifice bunt, and raced home on a single by John Roseboro.

The defeat cut the dodgers' first-place margin to one game over the San Francisco Giants.

Friend Bags 10th, Maz Wallops Two, Stuart Belts 14th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two home runs by Bill Mazeroski and one each by Dick Stuart and Bob Skinner powered the Pittsburgh Pirates to within 2½ games of first-place tonight with 5-1 and 7-6 victories over the New York Mets.

Bob Friend struck out nine and yielded only five hits to win his 10th game in the opener while ElRoy Face gained credit for his seventh victory in the 10th inning nightcap with two shutout innings of relief. The Pirates have won eight of their last nine games, 16 of their last 19, and 22 of their last 28.

Skinner broke up the nightcap by lifting a "wrong field" homer into the left field stands to hand Jay Hook his 10th loss of the season. Hook, tagged for four runs including a two-run homer by Mazeroski in the second inning, had limited the Pirates to four hits after that and struck out nine until Skinner's decisive hit.

Pinch-hitter Marv Throneberry's eighth-inning single gave the Mets a 6-5 lead, but the Pirates tied the score in the top of the ninth on a walk, Hook's second wild pitch and outfield flies by Jim Marshall and Bill Virdon.

Stuart singled home the Pirates' first run of the opener and followed a single by Roberto Clemente with his 14th homer of the season in the third to boost the Pirates to an early 3-0 lead. The Pirates added a fourth-inning run on Virdon's sacrifice fly and Mazeroski's first homer of the night rounded out their scoring in the sixth.

Friend faced only three batters in five of the nine innings and the Mets made more than one hit off him in only one inning—the sixth when Rod Kanehl homered and Felix Mantilla tripled.

Manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pirates was ejected by third base umpire Frank Walsh for arguing over a play at third in the fifth inning of the second game.

Cincy Spills Dodgers, 4-3

Score Two Runs In Ninth To Win

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-3, Thursday night in a game which featured a 500-foot home run by Frank Howard of the Dodgers.

With the Dodgers leading, 3-2, Johnny Podres w a l k e d Gordy Coleman to open the bottom of the ninth. Ron Perranoski then replaced Podres and after Don Blasingame sacrificed, Don Zimmer singled with two out to drive in the tying run. Eddie Kasko then lined a triple into the right-field corner to drive in Zimmer with the winning run.

Howard's homer in the second inning — his third in two nights against Cincinnati pitching—cleared the center-field fence 390 feet from home plate and sailed over a three-lane highway and two rows of parked cars, landing about halfway up a 20-foot dirt embankment.

The Reds tied the score in the sixth inning on a double by Wally Post and after the two teams traded tallies in the eighth inning, the Dodgers pushed across the leading run in the ninth.

Tommy Davis opened the inning with a single against winning relief pitcher Bill Henry, took second on a sacrifice bunt, and raced home on a single by John Roseboro.

The defeat cut the dodgers' first-place margin to one game over the San Francisco Giants.

John Barnum Fires Record 4-Under-Par 66 In PGA Tourney

Chick Harbert Trails Leader By Two Strokes

Palmer, Nicklaus Post 71s; 17,000 Attend First Round

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. — (UPI) — John Barnum, a 50-year-old Michigan giant with pin-splitting irons, fired a course record four under par 32-34—66 Thursday to grab the first round lead in the PGA golf championship.

While favored Arnold Palmer and second choice Jack Nicklaus were shooting one over par 71's—in what the camera - pestered Palmer called "like playing in a movie house" — Barnum stalked over the sun-baked acres at Aronimink Golf Club to take a two-shot lead over the 171-man field.

17,000 Pursue Golfers

Most of the day's shirt-sleeved gallery of 17,000 pursued Palmer, shooting for a "three quarter slam" after his Masters and British Open victories, and the husky young Nicklaus, whose playoff victory in the U.S. Open kept Palmer from the biggest slam golf has ever seen.

But it was Barnum, a six foot, three inch 225-pounder from Grand Rapids who "never has won anything to speak about," who stole the show as he stalked and slashed in virtual anonymity to grab the lead from the "name" stars.

Holds Two Stroke Lead

The blazing round of the big man who didn't turn golf professional until he was 36 years old gave him a two-stroke lead over another veteran, 47-year-old Chick Harbert, as the "old men" from Michigan made a one-two run at the lead.

"I came along for the ride," said Harbert, after his 32-36—68 matched the former course record held by Bobby Nichols and Marty Furgol. "But after this round I feel like the youngest 47-year-old in the country and I may stay awhile."

Four Tied At 69

Four of them were banked at 69 — one under par on this par 35-35—70 course of 7,045 yards and three shots off the lead—including George Bayer, Frank Stranahan, Doug Ford and Bob Goalby.

Then at even par 70 were Paul Harney, Don January, Leo Biagetti, Joe Campbell and Dick Hart.

Palmer and Nicklaus, both at 71 after playing head and head in a supposedly "blind" draw, thus were five shots back of the leading Barnum along with Dave Marr, Johnny Pott, Marty Furgol and Bob Gajda.

The field was well bunched after that. Those at 72 included former champion Wally Burkemo, Tommy Bolt, Art Wall and Gary Player. At 73 were former champions Dow Finsterwald and Jackie Burke, along with Bill Collins, Gene Littler, Julius Boros, Jay Hebert, Ken Venturi and Cary Middlecoff.

Billy Casper, another of the top choices in this four - day scramble, was among those at 74 while Sammy Snead, shooting for a fourth victory, limped off with a 75 as did young Phil Rodgers, outstanding rookie of the year on the tour.

Barber Far Behind

Far back at 79 was defending champion Jerry Barber, who had described his chances as "little, or none."

Palmer had to make a comeback to finish the first round even with Nicklaus. Young Jack was out in a two under par 33 against Palmer's two over par 37. But Nicklaus skyrocketed to a 38 on the home nine as Palmer fired a one under par 34 to keep his hopes alive.

Criticizes Photogs

Palmer was outspoken in his criticism of press photographers and growled that "some of them didn't seem to know the rules.

"One of them asked me to move on the sixth green so that he could take a picture of Nicklaus putting," said Palmer, adding as he doubled his fingers into a menacing fist, "and he almost got this.

"Then, too," Palmer continued, "we had enough marshals with us to start a war. They had a good view of us playing, at least."

Palmer's mood lightened when he opened a telegram, chuckled briefly and said "get a load of this."

"There is more energy in peanuts than raisins. Sending you two cases from the peanut capital of America."

It was signed by the mayor of Pendleton, N.C.

Russ-U.S. Track Meet Will Attract 100,000

98,600 Tickets Are Already Sold For Two-Day Program

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Attendance of more than 100,000 for the weekend's Russian-United States track meet at Stanford Stadium was assured Thursday, and could set a record for this international competition.

Stanford Athletic Director Al Masters reported ticket sales already total 98,600, ssuring a greater spectator turnout than the stadium saw in 1960 when 82,519 watched the two-day United States Olympic tryouts. It could exceed the 130,000 who watched the U.S.-Russian meet in Moscow last year.

Fans jam the stands daily at Stanford's Angell Field for the practices as both Russians and Yankees work out at the same time.

Starter Berney Wagner observed, "I think most of these people thought they could tell a Russian just by looking and are surprised when they can't."

A feeling of good fellowship exists between the athletes. Washington pole vaulter John Cramer and Soviet decatholon star Yuriy Kutenko trotted around the field together and did handsprings.

Russian hurdler Anatoliy Mikhailov responded to pleas from a group of youngsters and signed autographs.

Tamara Press, the Russian woman shot put champion, walked with Stanford coach Payton Jordan and tossed the iron sphere up and down in her hand, much as you would a tennis ball.

"I've never seen so much spectator interest in the training," Jordan declared. "There wasn't this much in Moscow in 1958."

Coaches John Oelkers of the Yankee and Gavriel Korobkov of the Soviets must decide at noon Friday on their final lineups. After that there can be no changes except in emergency.

Angels Shake Bunning Jinx, Sweep Series

Moran's Hit In 7th Decides 2-1 Battle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Billy Moran drove in Albie Pearson with the winning run in the top of the seventh to give the Los Angeles Angels a 2-1 victory Thursday over the Detroit Tigers.

The win gave the Angels a sweep of the three-game series and left them solidly in second place, 3½ games behind New York.

Eli Grba, the silent Serb with the high serve, was the winning pitcher but gave way to pinch-hitter Earl Averill, who knocked in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

The loser was Jim Bunning, who took his first loss in two years against the Angels. He had set Los Angeles down four times last year and twice this season.

Grba pitched hitless ball for the first three innings, but the Tigers led off the fourth with a single by Jake Wood who ultimately came home on Rocky Colavito's sacrifice fly. The lead held until the seventh, when Angel first baseman Tom Burgess led off with a single to right, gave way to pinch runner Gordon Windhorn who was sacrificed to second. Windhorn went to third on Bunning's wild pitch and came home on Averill's long fly to center. Pearson followed with a single to center, then stole second and came home on Moran's line single to left.

Boston Denies De-Emphasizing

BOSTON (UPI)—The president of the Boston University Varsity Club thursday brushed off claims that the university was de emphasizing intercollegiate thletics.

Jim Smith said the university is now seeking athletes who are good students as well. He said the new policy will strengthen teams at the school.

"The false notion that BU is going small time in sports started last fall when it was feared football would be dropped," Smith said. "Actually that crisis was a blessing in disguise as it led to a stronger posture for intercollegiate athletics at the school."

"This de-emphasis talk is the bunk," Smith said. "We've simply removed the rose - colored glasses and realize we can't compete with national football power."

23 Newcomers In Baltimore Colts' Camp

Training Starts At Westminster

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Twenty-three newcomers, including two National Football League veterans, reported Thursday as the Baltimore Colts opened their training camp at Western Maryland College.

R. C. Owens, an offensive end who spent five years with the San Francisco 49ers before playing out his option, headed the list of new Colts.

The other veteran was Pat Heenan, a defensive halfback who played with the Washington Redskins in 1960 and sat out last season with a broken clavicle.

All other players making their debuts were rookies, either drafted by the Colts from college ranks or signed as free agents. The largest was Bob Hogue, a 310-pound defensive tackle from Shepherd College (W. Va.).

Five of the newcomers were defensive halfbacks, underlining one of the prime needs of the Colts for the coming season.

Elbert Harris, a defensive halfback from Southeastern Louisiana, was added to the roster Thursday. He was claimed on waivers from the Dallas Cowboys.

A 30-minute workout was held during the afternoon, and a squad meeting followed dinner.

The Colt veterans are scheduled to report Monday. Physical examinations will be given Tuesday morning, and the first full scale workout will be held that afternoon.

Jockey Denies Payoff Before Laurel Victory

Battery Was Found In McIvor's Stall

BALTIMORE (AP)—Suspended jockey Edward McIvor denied Thursday that he had accepted a payoff prior to riding a 17-to-1 longshot to victory at Laurel Race Course last April 24.

McIvor testified before the Maryland Racing Commission, which held a lengthy hearing in the case and then announced it would hand down a decision Friday.

The 32-year-old jockey was suspended by stewards after a starter's assistant found a battery in the stall used by McIvor's mount, Rapid Rise, in the first race of April 24. He also was charged with violating a Maryland racing rule involving association with undesirable elements.

Anthony Petro, of Hillside, Md., a commission witness, testified he saw McIvor accept money from John Roy of Washington, and discuss the mechanism of a battery similar to one found in the starting gate stall.

Petro, a former used car dealer who said he operated a carpet cleaning firm, said Roy was his employe at the time of the alleged payoff at a horsemen's cafe in Bowie, Md.

Petro testified that Roy, on the advice of McIvor, had withdrawn money frm an Upper Marlboro bank to bet on the horse.

Palmer and Nicklaus, both at 71 after playing head and head in a supposedly "blind" draw, thus were five shots back of the leading Barnum along with Dave Marr, Johnny Pott, Marty Furgol and Bob Gajda.

The field was well bunched after that. Those at 72 included former champion Wally Burkemo, Tommy Bolt, Art Wall and Gary Player. At 73 were former champions Dow Finsterwald and Jackie Burke, along with Bill Collins, Gene Littler, Julius Boros, Jay Hebert, Ken Venturi and Cary Middlecoff.

Billy Casper, another of the top choices in this four - day scramble, was among those at 74 while Sammy Snead, shooting for a fourth victory, limped off with a 75 as did young Phil Rodgers, outstanding rookie of the year on the tour.

Barber Far Behind

Far back at 79 was defending champion Jerry Barber, who had described his chances as "little, or none."

Palmer had to make a comeback to finish the first round even with Nicklaus. Young Jack was out in a two under par 33 against Palmer's two over par 37. But Nicklaus skyrocketed to a 38 on the home nine as Palmer fired a one under par 34 to keep his hopes alive.

Criticizes Photogs

Palmer was outspoken in his criticism of press photographers and growled that "some of them didn't seem to know the rules.

"One of them asked me to move on the sixth green so that he could take a picture of Nicklaus putting," said Palmer, adding as he doubled his fingers into a menacing fist, "and he almost got this.

"Then, too," Palmer continued, "we had enough marshals with us to start a war. They had a good view of us playing, at least."

Palmer's mood lightened when he opened a telegram, chuckled briefly and said "get a load of this."

"There is more energy in peanuts than raisins. Sending you two cases from the peanut capital of America."

It was signed by the mayor of Pendleton, N.C.

Russ-U.S. Track Meet Will Attract 100,000

98,600 Tickets Are Already Sold For Two-Day Program

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Attendance of more than 100,000 for the weekend's Russian-United States track meet at Stanford Stadium was assured Thursday, and could set a record for this international competition.

Stanford Athletic Director Al Masters reported ticket sales already total 98,600, ssuring a greater spectator turnout than the stadium saw in 1960 when 82,519 watched the two-day United States Olympic tryouts. It could exceed the 130,000 who watched the U.S.-Russian meet in Moscow last year.

Fans jam the stands daily at Stanford's Angell Field for the practices as both Russians and Yankees work out at the same time.

Starter Berney Wagner observed, "I think most of these people thought they could tell a Russian just by looking and are surprised when they can't."

A feeling of good fellowship exists between the athletes. Washington pole vaulter John Cramer and Soviet decatholon star Yuriy Kutenko trotted around the field together and did handsprings.

Russian hurdler Anatoliy Mikhailov responded to pleas from a group of youngsters and signed autographs.

Tamara Press, the Russian woman shot put champion, walked with Stanford coach Payton Jordan and tossed the iron sphere up and down in her hand, much as you would a tennis ball.

"I've never seen so much spectator interest in the training," Jordan declared. "There wasn't this much in Moscow in 1958."

Coaches John Oelkers of the Yankee and Gavriel Korobkov of the Soviets must decide at noon Friday on their final lineups. After that there can be no changes except in emergency.

Angels Shake Bunning Jinx, Sweep Series

Moran's Hit In 7th Decides 2-1 Battle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Billy Moran drove in Albie Pearson with the winning run in the top of the seventh to give the Los Angeles Angels a 2-1 victory Thursday over the Detroit Tigers.

The win gave the Angels a sweep of the three-game series and left them solidly in second place, 3½ games behind New York.

Eli Grba, the silent Serb with the high serve, was the winning pitcher but gave way to pinch-hitter Earl Averill, who knocked in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

The loser was Jim Bunning, who took his first loss in two years against the Angels. He had set Los Angeles down four times last year and twice this season.

Grba pitched hitless ball for the first three innings, but the Tigers led off the fourth with a single by Jake Wood who ultimately came home on Rocky Colavito's sacrifice fly. The lead held until the seventh, when Angel first baseman Tom Burgess led off with a single to right, gave way to pinch runner Gordon Windhorn who was sacrificed to second. Windhorn went to third on Bunning's wild pitch and came home on Averill's long fly to center. Pearson followed with a single to center, then stole second and came home on Moran's line single to left.

23 Newcomers In Baltimore Colts' Camp

Training Starts At Westminster

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Twenty-three newcomers, including two National Football League veterans, reported Thursday as the Baltimore Colts opened their training camp at Western Maryland College.

R. C. Owens, an offensive end who spent five years with the San Francisco 49ers before playing out his option, headed the list of new Colts.

The other veteran was Pat Heenan, a defensive halfback who played with the Washington Redskins in 1960 and sat out last season with a broken clavicle.

All other players making their debuts were rookies, either drafted by the Colts from college ranks or signed as free agents. The largest was Bob Hogue, a 310-pound defensive tackle from Shepherd College (W. Va.).

Five of the newcomers were defensive halfbacks, underlining one of the prime needs of the Colts for the coming season.

Elbert Harris, a defensive halfback from Southeastern Louisiana, was added to the roster Thursday. He was claimed on waivers from the Dallas Cowboys.

A 30-minute workout was held during the afternoon, and a squad meeting followed dinner.

The Colt veterans are scheduled to report Monday. Physical examinations will be given Tuesday morning, and the first full scale workout will be held that afternoon.

Boston Denies De-Emphasizing

BOSTON (UPI)—The president of the Boston University Varsity Club thursday brushed off claims that the university was de emphasizing intercollegiate thletics.

Jim Smith said the university is now seeking athletes who are good students as well. He said the new policy will strengthen teams at the school.

"The false notion that BU is going small time in sports started last fall when it was feared football would be dropped," Smith said. "Actually that crisis was a blessing in disguise as it led to a stronger posture for intercollegiate athletics at the school."

"This de-emphasis talk is the bunk," Smith said. "We've simply removed the rose - colored glasses and realize we can't compete with national football power."

Jockey Denies Payoff Before Laurel Victory

Battery Was Found In McIvor's Stall

BALTIMORE (AP)—Suspended jockey Edward McIvor denied Thursday that he had accepted a payoff prior to riding a 17-to-1 longshot to victory at Laurel Race Course last April 24.

McIvor testified before the Maryland Racing Commission, which held a lengthy hearing in the case and then announced it would hand down a decision Friday.

The 32-year-old jockey was suspended by stewards after a starter's assistant found a battery in the stall used by McIvor's mount, Rapid Rise, in the first race of April 24. He also was charged with violating a Maryland racing rule involving association with undesirable elements.

Anthony Petro, of Hillside, Md., a commission witness, testified he saw McIvor accept money from John Roy of Washington, and discuss the mechanism of a battery similar to one found in the starting gate stall.

Petro, a former used car dealer who said he operated a carpet cleaning firm, said Roy was his employe at the time of the alleged payoff at a horsemen's cafe in Bowie, Md.

Petro testified that Roy, on the advice of McIvor, had withdrawn money frm an Upper Marlboro bank to bet on the horse.

Passed Balls Help St. Louis Top Cubs, 5-4

Bertell Has Three, Cards Sweep Series

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Three passed balls by catcher Dick Bertell, one shy of the National League record for one inning, gave the St. Louis Cardinals a tie-breaking run in the seventh inning thursday and they defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-4 for a sweep of their three-game series.

The three passed balls by Bertell, who was using an out-sized mitt, handed the loss to reliever Barney Schultz, a right-handed knuckleballer who now is 4-5 although he didn't allow a hit and struck out four in his two innings.

In the decisive seventh, Fred Whitfield struck out for what should have been the final out, but reached first base safely on the first passed ball. Attempting to steal, Whitfield advanced all the way to third on the second passed ball, and then scored on the third.

The National League record for passed balls in one inning is four, set by Ray Katt of the New York Giants in 1954.

Bolin's Relief Pitching Helps Giants Win, 7-3

Two Players Injured In Milwaukee Game

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, stunned by the loss of three starters, including pitcher Mike McCormick, made the most of nine hits and defeated the Milwaukee Braves 7-3 Thursday behind the brilliant relief pitching of Bob Bolin.

Bolin, the third San Francisco hurler, allowed only two hits over the last five innings in posting his fifth victory without defeat. All of the 23-year-old right-hander's triumphs have come since June 27.

McCormick, a southpaw, was forced to leave the game after he was hit on the left forearm by Joe Torre's line drive in the fourth. The Giants also lost the services of slugging first baseman Orlando Cepeda, who was ejected for arguing a first base call in the fourth, and second baseman Chuck Hiller, who was hit on the right arm by a pitch in the fifth.

The Braves scored two runs in the second on Hank Aaron's 24th homer and Lee Maye's fourth round-trip blow. Willie Mays hit his 26th homer in the fourth.

Howard, Skowron Boyer Pound Ball; Arroyo To Rescue

BOSTON (AP)—New York rode the booming bats of Elston Howard, Cletis Boyer and Bill Skowron to a 10-6 victory over Boston Thursday, matching its season's longest winning streak of seven games.

Manager Ralph Houk switched from the red hot Yogi Berra to Howard for his catcher and it paid handsome dividends for the American League leaders.

Howard had a triple and two singles, drove in three runs and scored twice.

Boyer, the fielding sensation of the series sweep from the Red Sox, hit his 12th home run with Howard aboard, capping a five-run seventh inning.

Boyer also singled to send in a run as did slump-ridden Skowron who crashed a bases empty homer.

Twins Defeat Cleveland, 8-0, Cop 3d Place

Kaat Hurls 3-Hitter; Allison Clouts Pair

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) —Two home runs by Bob Allison and Jim Kaat's three-hit pitching gave the Minnesota Twins an 8-0 victory over Cleveland Thursday and boosted the Twins into third place in the American League.

The Twins, sweeping the three-game set, had been tied with the Indians before the game.

Allison drove in four runs with a two-run homer in the eighth, a solo shot in the second and a single in the fourth. His homers were his 12th and 13th of the season.

Kaat (9-9) allowed only singles to Bubba Phillips, Willie Tasby and Tito Francona. The left-hander's victory was his first after a five-game losing streak.

Bernie Allen's run-scoring single in the fourth after Allison's homer sent loser Dick Donovan (12-4) to the showers.

President Is Letterman

West Virginia University's new president, Dr. Paul A. Miller, was captain of the 1939 boxing team as an undergraduate. Michigan State, against whose teams he used to box, returned him to the alma mater after he rose in 12 years from assistant professor to provost.

Passed Balls Help St. Louis Top Cubs, 5-4

Bertell Has Three, Cards Sweep Series

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Three passed balls by catcher Dick Bertell, one shy of the National League record for one inning, gave the St. Louis Cardinals a tie-breaking run in the seventh inning thursday and they defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-4 for a sweep of their three-game series.

The three passed balls by Bertell, who was using an out-sized mitt, handed the loss to reliever Barney Schultz, a right-handed knuckleballer who now is 4-5 although he didn't allow a hit and struck out four in his two innings.

In the decisive seventh, Fred Whitfield struck out for what should have been the final out, but reached first base safely on the first passed ball. Attempting to steal, Whitfield advanced all the way to third on the second passed ball, and then scored on the third.

The National League record for passed balls in one inning is four, set by Ray Katt of the New York Giants in 1954.

Bolin's Relief Pitching Helps Giants Win, 7-3

Two Players Injured In Milwaukee Game

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, stunned by the loss of three starters, including pitcher Mike McCormick, made the most of nine hits and defeated the Milwaukee Braves 7-3 Thursday behind the brilliant relief pitching of Bob Bolin.

Bolin, the third San Francisco hurler, allowed only two hits over the last five innings in posting his fifth victory without defeat. All of the 23-year-old right-hander's triumphs have come since June 27.

McCormick, a southpaw, was forced to leave the game after he was hit on the left forearm by Joe Torre's line drive in the fourth. The Giants also lost the services of slugging first baseman Orlando Cepeda, who was ejected for arguing a first base call in the fourth, and second baseman Chuck Hiller, who was hit on the right arm by a pitch in the fifth.

The Braves scored two runs in the second on Hank Aaron's 24th homer and Lee Maye's fourth round-trip blow. Willie Mays hit his 26th homer in the fourth.

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) —Bob Rosburg of Portland, Ore., 1959 winner, pulled out of the PGA Golf Championship because of an injury to his left hand Thursday.

"It's a tendon just below my wrist," he said. "I hurt it about four years ago in the Los Angeles Open. It's given me a lot of trouble since."

Yanks Trim Boston, 10-6, For 7th Victory In Row

Howard, Skowron Boyer Pound Ball; Arroyo To Rescue

BOSTON (AP)—New York rode the booming bats of Elston Howard, Cletis Boyer and Bill Skowron to a 10-6 victory over Boston Thursday, matching its season's longest winning streak of seven games.

Manager Ralph Houk switched from the red hot Yogi Berra to Howard for his catcher and it paid handsome dividends for the American League leaders.

Howard had a triple and two singles, drove in three runs and scored twice.

Boyer, the fielding sensation of the series sweep from the Red Sox, hit his 12th home run with Howard aboard, capping a five-run seventh inning.

Boyer also singled to send in a run as did slump-ridden Skowron who crashed a bases empty homer.

The Yankees experienced only one anxious moment when Jim Pagliaroni's three-run homer drove out starter Roland Sheldon in the ninth.

Kaat Hurls 3-Hitter; Allison Clouts Pair

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) —Two home runs by Bob Allison and Jim Kaat's three-hit pitching gave the Minnesota Twins an 8-0 victory over Cleveland Thursday and boosted the Twins into third place in the American League.

The Twins, sweeping the three-game set, had been tied with the Indians before the game.

Allison drove in four runs with a two-run homer in the eighth, a solo shot in the second and a single in the fourth. His homers were his 12th and 13th of the season.

Kaat (9-9) allowed only singles to Bubba Phillips, Willie Tasby and Tito Francona. The left-hander's victory was his first after a five-game losing streak.

Bernie Allen's run-scoring single in the fourth after Allison's homer sent loser Dick Donovan (12-4) to the showers.

Market Scores Moderate Gain Despite Late Selling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were in a slow climb until the final half hour Thursday when moderate selling swept away half their gain.

Nevertheless, the slight rise in the averages was the first in the last five sessions, and brokers attributed the turnabout to the bullish rise in the market's short interest position to the highest level in nearly four years.

Trading tapered off to 3,090,000 shares from 3,620,000 in the prior session despite some morning lateness on the tape during the initial stages of the upswing.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index closed with a modest gain of 0.22 in the Dow-Jones averages, industrials gained 1.92 and utilities rose 0.28 with Houston Lighting up 3⅛ points, but rails eased 0.07, reflecting fears of labor strife when new work rules take effect Aug. 16.

The market was quite narrow with only 1,224 issues traded. Of these 585 advanced, none reaching new highs for the year, and 393 declined, 17 striking new lows.

Polaroid was again the market's most active issue. After losing more than 13 points on Wednesday on lower earnings, it covered a 6¼ point range to finish unchanged at its low of the day.

Market Scores Moderate Gain Despite Late Selling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were in a slow climb until the final half hour Thursday when moderate selling swept away half their gain.

Nevertheless, the slight rise in the averages was the first in the last five sessions, and brokers attributed the turnabout to the bullish rise in the market's short interest position to the highest level in nearly four years.

Trading tapered off to 3,090,000 shares from 3,620,000 in the prior session despite some morning lateness on the tape during the initial stages of the upswing.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index closed with a modest gain of 0.22 in the Dow-Jones averages, industrials gained 1.92 and utilities rose 0.28 with Houston Lighting up 3⅛ points, but rails eased 0.07, reflecting fears of labor strife when new work rules take effect Aug. 16.

The market was quite narrow with only 1,224 issues traded. Of these 585 advanced, none reaching new highs for the year, and 393 declined, 17 striking new lows.

Polaroid was again the market's most active issue. After losing more than 13 points on Wednesday on lower earnings, it covered a 6¼ point range to finish unchanged at its low of the day.

Congressional Viewpoint
by Sen. John M. Butler

WASHINGTON — More alarming proof has recently come to light which vindicates the real concern of many of us that the Federal Government has attained awesome power over the nation's economy — and is seeking increased controls. The latest revelation occurred when Budget Director David Bell declared during a Congressional hearing that the Administration is studying ways to put ceilings on the salaries paid top executives and experts of defense firms which do business with the Federal Government.

Mr. Bell suggested that some private research and development salaries above $25,000 would be controlled through an administrative order from the Government or those companies which refused to comply with the order would be denied contracts. The Budget Director conceded that many defense and space firms would have no alternative but to accept the contract with Federally-imposed salary scales or "fold up shop."

In other words, the Administration appears to be annoyed because certain executives, in its opinion, are making too much money and feels that it is the duty of the Government to control these wages. One possible extension of this policy is that the Federal Government would attempt to regulate the salary of every business firm which receives a Federal contract.

As we are all aware, the Government has attempted to regulate income through the graduated income tax, and it could also reduce to a more or less common denominator the salaries of employees in thousands of companies — if it pursues to a logical end the above policy outlined by Mr. Bell.

Because the Federal Government operates in almost every metropolis and hamlet of the land there are very few areas of our economy which are not touched by Washington. For example, the Government owns $122 billion of military weapons, equipment and supplies; it has $15 billion of farm commodities and stockpiled strategic materials; it owns about 768 million acres of land (1 out of every 3 acres in the country); and it owns 421,360 buildings with nearly 2.5 billion square feet of floor space in the United States.

And yet, why do we have such a big Government? Maurice Stans, one of the nation's outstanding economists, has stated: "The more we ask Government to take over our problems and with them a larger share of our incomes to finance their handling, the more the Government will grow. And the more it grows and taxes climb, the less freedom of choice will remain for us in our personal and community affairs."

Brazil State Seizes U.S.-Owned Firm

RECIFE, Brazil (UPI) — State court officers Wednesday seized the U. S.-owned Pernambuco Tramways and Power Company, Limited. Its owners valued the properties at between $8-million and $12-million.

Company officers had refused to surrender the properties without prior compensation. The company asked state courts several months ago to set a figure for compensation. The state government position was that the company lost the business earlier this week with expiration of its 50-year franchise.

Capitol Comment
by Rep. Charles Mathias

There has been a great deal of legislative activity in Washington during the past week. The Senate Finance Committee has been studying and acting upon portions of the President's tax program; you have probably followed the developments in this interesting and heated debate in the Senate. In the House there has been a very liviely debate on the foreign aid program. The news from Washington this week which is going to have the most impact on your lives and the taxes you pay is not from the legistlative branch, however, but from the executive.

An order has been issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, revising depreciation rates, which will afffect every American to some degree. I personally have been advocating a reform and revision of depreciation rates for some time; therefore, I welcome the action that the Secretary of the Treasury has taken. I still believe that this action would be more appropriate if it were to come through the legislative process. Nevertheless, I believe that this executive action, which follows the practice of recent years, will be helpful.

First of all, what is depreciation? It is a bookkeeping device which is intended to compensate those who have made capital or similar fields of endeavor, for the fact that they are wearing out their equipment or buildings in the course of doing business. It gives them an opportunity to refund the cost of equipment, machinery and buildings as they are wearing out, without taxing them on the funds set aside for replacement, Now, this concept is somewhat complicated, but it is expressed very simply in the fact there is a stated life for a given piece of business property, a machine, a buliding, or a retail fixture that is used in the business. The stated life, that is, the number of years of life expectancy, will govern the percentage of cost that is written off, or depreciated, each year.

The reason we have needed reform of our depreciation practices is that the old tables which have been used by the Treasury Department for a good many years have become completely unrealistic. They have been based on buisness practices of years gone by, and they have not reflected the very quick pace of economic and tecnological changes which have characterized every form of American Business. Farming is a good example. Years ago a man might have had only one piece of major machinery on his farm, a tractor, and that would have lasted him many, many years with kinds of equipment but it becomes obsolete very quickly. A new kind of hay baler may be introduced which saves labor or bales hay faster than the farmer's present machine. In such cases the time within which any given piece of machinery may become obsolete is shorter and the depreciation rate should be greater.

We have accomplished this result to some degree by the action of the government this week. I hope that Secretary of the Treasury Dillon is right when he says that the new guidelines and procedures for determining depreciation on machinery and equipment used by American business constitute a fundamental reform in the tax treatment of depreciation which will provide a major stimulus to economic growth.

Senate Cloakroom
by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

Washington, D. C.

Dear Friends:

Taxes have reached the breaking point — Notwithstanding the fact that the Administration has not withdrawn any of the Government spending proposals which require additional revenue, it is talking about the desirability of lowering taxes as an incentive to business.

It is generally agreed that taxes as a means of revenue can reach the point of no return. That is, there is a point beyond which the rate of taxes cannot go without bringing about a net loss in revenue rather than a net gain. Business expansion can be blocked by excessive taxation. If our national economy is to grow, then something has to be done about taxes.

After taxes, what's left? Generally speaking, not enough to justify expanding a business. Take, as an illustration, the case of a company with 100 employees doing a gross annual business of $2,000,000, with the owner getting a salary of $25,000 as president and general manager. Such a business obviously would require an initial investment of some magnitude. Let us assume that after paying State and local taxes of, say, $30,000 and Federal payroll taxes of $15,000, the company is left with $100,000 profit before Federal income taxes. The Federal corporate income tax would come to $46,500. Assume that the owner puts $10,700, 20% of what is left, in new equipment and takes 80%, $42,800, as dividends on his investment. The Federal government would then take $28,500 in personal income taxes from the owner. In addition, the Federal government would take something like $57,000 in personal income taxes from the other employees, bringing the total government bite to $177,000, while the owner, the one who takes all the risks, is left with $39,300 for his time, his talent and his investment. And that's not all! When the owner starts spending his $39,300, a large part of it goes for sales taxes and all kinds of hidden taxes. In an article in the U. S. News & World Report, describing a somewhat similar case, the writer points out that such a businessman winds up working more for the Government than for himself. Many a would-be investor must ask himself: "A business of my own—is it worth the trouble?"

Taxes have gone up as the Government has increased in size. Today it costs the taxpayers 90 times as much to govern only twice as many people as it did 50 years ago. The Government started to grow with the beginning of the Federal income tax. It grew slowly at first, because our people were used to freedom and not used to excessive taxes and excessive government. But in less than 50 years we have seen an innocent appearing tax of 3% on a few rich people grow until today those "rich" people are paying 91% Federal income tax and the poor people who were to have been the beneficiaries of the tax are paying 20%. With every increase in taxes, there has been an increase in government, and a corresponding loss in our freedoms. It has been a vicious circle.

Something has to be done about taxes, of course.

The first step should be to stop unnecessary government spending and see that proposals for more government controls, bigger government, are blocked here and now!

Our grandchildren's legacy — Last month, one schoolboy orator said this: "It's too bad that future generations cannot be here to see the wonderful things we are doing with their money."

PRESIDENT'S ADVISERS HAVE FAILED HIM—The President's economic advisers prophesied a sustained, rapid business upswing, which is not materializing. Having failed to recognize the omnious signals of a slowdown, they are now feverishly searching for potential business stimulants, for shots-in-the-arm, apparently not understanding the reasons for the slowdown. Confidence will return only when the Presidential advisers, instead of defending 93-billion-dollar budgets, an unbroken series of deficits, a staggering Federal debt, a crumbling dollar, the prospect of resumed inflation and the grab for more Executive power, begin to show awareness that these are the very things which impair confidence. Personalities of the Kennedy regime are coming in for closer scrutiny as a result of the failure of the United States to follow the high road to prosperity. We are reminded that the top White House advisers are men trying to manage this nation's complex economy and not one of them has had a day's experience in a business job.

The President, in his recent address at Yale University, spoke of "myths." Here are some myths, not mentioned by him, which apparently his advisers blindly follow:

Myth No. 1: Pump-priming deficit spending is not to be feared.

Myth No. 2: Unemployment compensation is an acceptable way of life.

Myth No. 3: People have a right to Federal "aid."

Myth No. 4: Creeping inflation —"watering" of money—is not to be feared.

Myth No. 5: Mounting National Debt is not to be feared.

Myth No. 7: Only the group at the White House expresses the national interest.

Official policies predicted on these fallacies have brought us inflation and debt. They have encouraged people to ask the Government to do for them what they should be doing for themselves and to ask the Government to give what it does not have, except through higher taxes or borrowing. In 1930, the Federal budget totaled 3.3 billion; now it is 28 times that, and the Federal debt has catapulted from 16 billion dollars to 300 billion dollars.

The President's advisers offer no solutions to the fiscal problems of Government or the national economic problems; what is worse, they do not understand the causes of the problems. The President's advisers have failed him at every turn.

A WARNING TO AMERICAN CITIZENS—In his Farewell Address, George Washington spoke these solemn words to all Americans of all generations:

"The apprehension of danger natural to solicitude urges me to recommend to your frequent review some sentiments which are the result of much reflection . . . It is easy to foresee that from different causes and from different quarters much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth (that love of individual freedom is the main pillar of national independence). This is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively—though often covertly and insidiously—directed . . . It is important that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those entrusted with its administration to confine themselves within their respective constitutional sphere, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers . . . and thus create . . . a real despotism . . . It is of infinite moment that you should . . . (watch) for the preservation (of individual freedom from government domination) with jealous anxiety, discontenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned, and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to . . . enfeeble the sacred ties . . ."

Sincerely yours,
J. GLENN BEALL

Congressional Viewpoint
by Sen. John M. Butler

WASHINGTON — More alarming proof has recently come to light which vindicates the real concern of many of us that the Federal Government has attained awesome power over the nation's economy — and is seeking increased controls. The latest revelation occurred when Budget Director David Bell declared during a Congressional hearing that the Administration is studying ways to put ceilings on the salaries paid top executives and experts of defense firms which do business with the Federal Government.

Mr. Bell suggested that some private research and development salaries above $25,000 would be controlled through an administrative order from the Government or those companies which refused to comply with the order would be denied contracts. The Budget Director conceded that many defense and space firms would have no alternative but to accept the contract with Federally-imposed salary scales or "fold up shop."

In other words, the Administration appears to be annoyed because certain executives, in its opinion, are making too much money and feels that it is the duty of the Government to control these wages. One possible extension of this policy is that the Federal Government would attempt to regulate the salary of every business firm which receives a Federal contract.

As we are all aware, the Government has attempted to regulate income through the graduated income tax, and it could also reduce to a more or less common denominator the salaries of employees in thousands of companies — if it pursues to a logical end the above policy outlined by Mr. Bell.

Because the Federal Government operates in almost every metropolis and hamlet of the land there are very few areas of our economy which are not touched by Washington. For example, the Government owns $122 billion of military weapons, equipment and supplies; it has $15 billion of farm commodities and stockpiled strategic materials; it owns about 768 million acres of land (1 out of every 3 acres in the country); and it owns 421,360 buildings with nearly 2.5 billion square feet of floor space in the United States.

And yet, why do we have such a big Government? Maurice Stans, one of the nation's outstanding economists, has stated: "The more we ask Government to take over our problems and with them a larger share of our incomes to finance their handling, the more the Government will grow. And the more it grows and taxes climb, the less freedom of choice will remain for us in our personal and community affairs."

Spaghetti King Plans Carnegie Hall Concert

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spaghetti king Giovanni Buitoni announced Wednesday he will give his second Carnegie Hall vocal concert Nov. 6.

Buitoni, who sailed Wednesday for Europe aboard the Queen Elizabeth, said the concert will be a benefit for Fight for Sight, Inc. His first concert last season was by invitation only. The November concert will have several Metropolitan Opera singers as guest stars, he said.

Buitoni, 71, had a lifelong ambition to be a concert and opera singer but did not attempt a public appearance until 1961. He is a member of the Italian family which controls several food product and candy companies, and is president of Buitoni Foods, Inc., an American firm.

Brazil State Seizes U.S.-Owned Firm

RECIFE, Brazil (UPI) — State court officers Wednesday seized the U. S.-owned Pernambuco Tramways and Power Company, Limited. Its owners valued the properties at between $8-million and $12-million.

Company officers had refused to surrender the properties without prior compensation. The company asked state courts several months ago to set a figure for compensation. The state government position was that the company lost the business earlier this week with expiration of its 50-year franchise.

Senate Cloakroom
by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

Washington, D. C.

Dear Friends:

Taxes have reached the breaking point — Notwithstanding the fact that the Administration has not withdrawn any of the Government spending proposals which require additional revenue, it is talking about the desirability of lowering taxes as an incentive to business.

It is generally agreed that taxes as a means of revenue can reach the point of no return. That is, there is a point beyond which the rate of taxes cannot go without bringing about a net loss in revenue rather than a net gain. Business expansion can be blocked by excessive taxation. If our national economy is to grow, then something has to be done about taxes.

After taxes, what's left? Generally speaking, not enough to justify expanding a business. Take, as an illustration, the case of a company with 100 employees doing a gross annual business of $2,000,000, with the owner getting a salary of $25,000 as president and general manager. Such a business obviously would require an initial investment of some magnitude. Let us assume that after paying State and local taxes of, say, $30,000 and Federal payroll taxes of $15,000, the company is left with $100,000 profit before Federal income taxes. The Federal corporate income tax would come to $46,500. Assume that the owner puts $10,700, 20% of what is left, in new equipment and takes 80%, $42,800, as dividends on his investment. The Federal government would then take $28,500 in personal income taxes from the owner. In addition, the Federal government would take something like $57,000 in personal income taxes from the other employees, bringing the total government bite to $177,000, while the owner, the one who takes all the risks, is left with $39,300 for his time, his talent and his investment. And that's not all! When the owner starts spending his $39,300, a large part of it goes for sales taxes and all kinds of hidden taxes. In an article in the U. S. News & World Report, describing a somewhat similar case, the writer points out that such a businessman winds up working more for the Government than for himself. Many a would-be investor must ask himself: "A business of my own—is it worth the trouble?"

Taxes have gone up as the Government has increased in size. Today it costs the taxpayers 90 times as much to govern only twice as many people as it did 50 years ago. The Government started to grow with the beginning of the Federal income tax. It grew slowly at first, because our people were used to freedom and not used to excessive taxes and excessive government. But in less than 50 years we have seen an innocent appearing tax of 3% on a few rich people grow until today those "rich" people are paying 91% Federal income tax and the poor people who were to have been the beneficiaries of the tax are paying 20%. With every increase in taxes, there has been an increase in government, and a corresponding loss in our freedoms. It has been a vicious circle.

Something has to be done about taxes, of course.

The first step should be to stop unnecessary government spending and see that proposals for more government controls, bigger government, are blocked here and now!

Our grandchildren's legacy — Last month, one schoolboy orator said this: "It's too bad that future generations cannot be here to see the wonderful things we are doing with their money."

PRESIDENT'S ADVISERS HAVE FAILED HIM—The President's economic advisers prophesied a sustained, rapid business upswing, which is not materializing. Having failed to recognize the omnious signals of a slowdown, they are now feverishly searching for potential business stimulants, for shots-in-the-arm, apparently not understanding the reasons for the slowdown. Confidence will return only when the Presidential advisers, instead of defending 93-billion-dollar budgets, an unbroken series of deficits, a staggering Federal debt, a crumbling dollar, the prospect of resumed inflation and the grab for more Executive power, begin to show awareness that these are the very things which impair confidence. Personalities of the Kennedy regime are coming in for closer scrutiny as a result of the failure of the United States to follow the high road to prosperity. We are reminded that the top White House advisers are men trying to manage this nation's complex economy and not one of them has had a day's experience in a business job.

The President, in his recent address at Yale University, spoke of "myths." Here are some myths, not mentioned by him, which apparently his advisers blindly follow:

Myth No. 1: Pump-priming deficit spending is not to be feared.

Myth No. 2: Unemployment compensation is an acceptable way of life.

Myth No. 3: People have a right to Federal "aid."

Myth No. 4: Creeping inflation —"watering" of money—is not to be feared.

Myth No. 5: Mounting National Debt is not to be feared.

Myth No. 6: Big, centralized government is not to be feared.

Myth No. 7: Only the group at the White House expresses the national interest.

Official policies predicted on these fallacies have brought us inflation and debt. They have encouraged people to ask the Government to do for them what they should be doing for themselves and to ask the Government to give what it does not have, except through higher taxes or borrowing. In 1930, the Federal budget totaled 3.3 billion; now it is 28 times that, and the Federal debt has catapulted from 16 billion dollars to 300 billion dollars.

The President's advisers offer no solutions to the fiscal problems of Government or the national economic problems; what is worse, they do not understand the causes of the problems. The President's advisers have failed him at every turn.

A WARNING TO AMERICAN CITIZENS—In his Farewell Address, George Washington spoke these solemn words to all Americans of all generations:

"The apprehension of danger natural to solicitude urges me to recommend to your frequent review some sentiments which are the result of much reflection . . . It is easy to foresee that from different causes and from different quarters much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth (that love of individual freedom is the main pillar of national independence). This is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively—though often covertly and insidiously—directed . . . It is important that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those entrusted with its administration to confine themselves within their respective constitutional sphere, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers . . . and thus create . . . a real despotism . . . It is of infinite moment that you should . . . (watch) for the preservation (of individual freedom from government domination) with jealous anxiety, discontenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned, and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to . . . enfeeble the sacred ties . . ."

Sincerely yours,
J. GLENN BEALL

by Rep. Charles Mathias

There has been a great deal of legislative activity in Washington during the past week. The Senate Finance Committee has been studying and acting upon portions of the President's tax program; you have probably followed the developments in this interesting and heated debate in the Senate. In the House there has been a very lively debate on the foreign aid program. The news from Washington this week which is going to have the most impact on your lives and the taxes you pay is not from the legislative branch, however, but from the executive.

An order has been issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, revising depreciation rates, which will afffect every American to some degree. I personally have been advocating a reform and revision of depreciation rates for some time; therefore, I welcome the action that the Secretary of the Treasury has taken. I still believe that this action would be more appropriate if it were to come through the legislative process. Nevertheless, I believe that this executive action, which follows the practice of recent years, will be helpful.

First of all, what is depreciation? It is a bookkeeping device which is intended to compensate those who have made capital or similar fields of endeavor, for the fact that they are wearing out their equipment or buildings in the course of doing business. It gives them an opportunity to refund the cost of equipment, machinery and buildings as they are wearing out, without taxing them on the funds set aside for replacement. Now, this concept is somewhat complicated, but it is expressed very simply in the fact there is a stated life for a given piece of business property, a machine, a buliding, or a retail fixture that is used in the business. The stated life, that is, the number of years of life expectancy, will govern the percentage of cost that is written off, or depreciated, each year.

The reason we have needed reform of our depreciation practices is that the old tables which have been used by the Treasury Department for a good many years have become completely unrealistic. They have been based on buisness practices of years gone by, and they have not reflected the very quick pace of economic and tecnological changes which have characterized every form of American Business. Farming is a good example. Years ago a man might have had only one piece of major machinery on his farm, a tractor, and that would have lasted him many, many years with kinds of equipment but it becomes obsolete very quickly. A new kind of hay baler may be introduced which saves labor or bales hay faster than the farmer's present machine. In such cases the time within which any given piece of machinery may become obsolete is shorter and the depreciation rate should be greater.

We have accomplished this result to some degree by the action of the government this week. I hope that Secretary of the Treasury Dillon is right when he says that the new guidelines and procedures for determining depreciation on machinery and equipment used by American business constitute a fundamental reform in the tax treatment of depreciation which will provide a major stimulus to economic growth.

Woman Robbed In Store At Knife Point

Hooded Youth Is Sought By Police

A youth early yesterday afternoon slipped a cloth bag over his face and a knife into his hand before robbing a North Centre Street store.

The armed robbery occurred about 1:40 p.m. in the office of the Keystone Home Furnishing Company store at 198 North Centre Street.

The youth, who is being sought by city police, escaped from the establishment after taking about $20 in cash from a metal box in the office.

Capt. James E. Van, who is heading the investigation, said Mrs. Ethelyn Morrocco, secretary of the firm, reported she returned to the store about 1:10 p.m. after getting her lunch.

She told police that as she sat at her desk, she noticed a youth walking up and down the sidewalk past the window of the office.

At about 1:40 p.m., she told police, the youth entered the office wearing on his head a cloth sack, with one slot cut out for the eyes.

Mrs. Morocco told police the youth, about 17 or 18, walked up to her, with a four-inch bladed knife in his hand, and said "Give me the money," and threatened to cut her if the money were not produced.

Police said the youth forced the woman to go to the back of the store while he rifled a metal box of the cash.

Capt. Van said police were unable to get a detailed description of the robber, except for an estimate on age and approximate height.

W. Va. Solons Protest Halt At Sugar Grove

Ask Some Other Use For Big Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—West Virginia members of Congress protested strongly Thursday to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that he did not give them advance notice of his decision to halt construction of a huge space telescope in their state.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., said he learned about it only in a Defense Department letter Wednesday, the same day the cancellation was announced.

McNamara, in a closed meeting with the delegation, was urged to find some other use for the big project at Sugar Grove, W. Va., and to provide more defense work in West Virginia, hard hit by unemployment.

Now Obsolete

The Pentagon announced Wednesday it is abandoning the huge Navy project because scientific advances have rendered it obsolete before it is nearly finished. Another factor was skyrocketing costs since the project began in 1958.

Three government agencies, meanwhile, said they were considering possible use of part of the work accomplished on the project, originally designed to be the world's largest movable radio telescope.

Since 1958, the government had spent $41.7 million of the $126.2 million voted by Congress for the research station at Sugar Grove, W.Va.

Foundation Study

A spokesman for the National Science Foundation said it is studying whether it can use any part of the project as it now stands.

"There is no prospect of taking over the whole thing," the spokesman said.

The NSF, an independent government agency, has a radio astronomical observatory at Green Bank, W.Va., about 30 miles as the crow flies from Sugar Grove. It is a non-military, basic scientific research, unclassified project.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., meanwhile said he was advised by Dr. Allen V. Astin, director of the bureau of standards, that Astin is definitely interested in taking a look at the big telescope at Sugar Grove to see if it can be used in conjunction with the bureau's central radio propagation laboratory.

That laboratory, at Boulder, Colo., is doing research work in outer space influence on radio communication.

Byrd said he has urged the National Aeronautical and Space Administration and others to consider use of the "big dish" antenna at Sugar Grove. He quoted James E. Webb, NASA administrator, as saying "it does not look very promising, but we will look at this with considerable care."

The West Virginia congressional delegation asked Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to meet with them and explain why the Sugar Grove radio installation is being abandoned.

The legislators made public a telegram to McNamara which said:

"The West Virginia delegation has your totally unexpected notice that the Sugar Grove installation is to be closed. We regard this surprise announcement as an unwarranted violation of the cooperation between the administrative and the legislative branches of government."

Tawes Answers Opponent On Blakiston Island Plan

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Tawes said Thursday he was astonished at "an amazing lack of knowledge" displayed by Frank Small Jr. in criticizing the state's action in acquiring Blakiston Island from the federal government.

Small, Republican candidate for governor who will run against Tawes in November, criticized the transfer of the island, located off St. Mary's County, at a meeting of the Maryland Tobacco Growers Association Wednesday at Seaside Park in Calvert County.

Tawes said Small was quoted in newspapers as saying "the island will be primarily a wild bird sanctuary" and that it "will mean that no action will be taken to stop erosion which threatens the island with extinction." Small's objection was aimed at plans to put it under administration of the state's game and fish commission.

Blakiston Island, formerly called St. Clement's, was the site of the first landing in Maryland by Lord Baltimore's colonists in 1634.

Tawes, explaining that he wanted to set the record straight again, said "on February of last year, I learned that there was a possibility that Blakiston Island ... might be declared surplus property by the federal government and offered for sale."

He said he wrote to federal authorities expressing Maryland's desire to acquire the entire island and make it a state shrine.

The governor said that federal authorities advised that it was doubtful if the state could acquire the entire island under the category of "public park, public recreational area and-or historic monument." The authorities said the state could probably acquire the lower end under that category and that the balance would be made available to private bidding.

He said he was informed that the entire island could be secured if an application were filed under the "real property for the conservation of wildlife" category.

Tawes said the state filed two applications, one under each of the designations, and the General Services Administration approved them.

"The state of Maryland, through the department of public improvements, is now drawing up the proper quit claim deed which will transfer to the state of Maryland from the federal government the entire 60 acres which now compose this historic island," Gov. Tawes said.

"I want to make it clear, once and for all, that it is the intention of the state to make available funds to restore the island and area adjacent thereto, to provide proper access and to take the necessary action to protect the shoreline from further erosion."

New Record Set In Mail Obscenity Investigations

The Post Office Department established new record highs in mail obscenity investigations, arrests and convictions during fiscal year 1962, according to a report received by Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon.

More obscenity investigations were conducted by the department last year than in any previous year in postal history and convictions were obtained in 98.8 per cent of all cases brought to trial.

Success of the obscenity law enforcement program was attributed to three factors. Cooperation between the Justice Department, Postal Inspection service and state law enforcement agencies, Postmaster General J. Edward Day's decision early in his tenure of office to emphasize criminal action against offenders, rather than administrative proceedings. And a de-emphasis on publicizing mail obscenity cases.

Mr. Day noted that not one obscenity case during the year was handled through the administrative procedure of which the Supreme Court was critical in its "Manual Enterprises" decision of June 25. The high court ruling came in a case on which the Post Office Department had taken administrative action on April 28, 1960.

Postal service investigations resulted in 605 obscenity arrests during the fiscal year ending June 30, and 503 convictions. Trials still pend in a number of arrests made during the fiscal year.

In his report, Mr. Day said, "The Supreme Court decision in the Manuel Enterprises case only serves to strengthen my long-held conviction that the way to stop these peddlers of pornography from polluting the minds and undermining the morals of our society is to bring criminal indictments against them."

Explosive Note Marks End Of Highway Probe

Contributions Cited During Squabble

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House investigation of West Virginia federal highway practices ended Thursday night on an explosive political note and an assertion of colossal non-compliance with federal law.

Apolitical squabble erupted concerning contributions sought by the state Democratic party—with Burl A. Sawyers, the state's road commissioner, sitting in the crossfire as a witness.

Republican members of the House Highway Investigating Committee contended coercion was used in soliciting funds from West Virginia Road Commission employees in violation of federal and state laws.

Sawyers Ahead

Sawyers testified he wrote a letter as a directive to commission department heads saying the pledge cards and contribution coupon books were being distributed at the request of the West Virginia Democratic Committee. The letter said workers were to understand that all contributions were on a voluntary basis and would be required of no one.

But Reps. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., and Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, asserted there was a violation of the law.

"The way you do it in West Virginia," Schwengel said, "is not a voluntary plan."

Cramer quoted from letters he said were received from former road commission workers. The workers, he said, related that they had been threatened by superiors with job or overtime losses if they did not contribute.

Chairman John A. A. Blatnik, D-Minn., criticized Cramer's reading of what Blatnik called crackpot letters.

Cramer said he was willing for the committee staff to get affidavits from the letter-writers.

Blatnik then called a short recess which halted the exchange between Democratic and Republican members.

Acting chairman Jim Wright, D-Tex., in summing up the hearings started last week, said the evidence shows "that what has been going on in that state (West Virginia) for years is an insufferable example of administrative impetitude, inefficiency and incompetence."

In fairness, Wright added, there is no evidence of outright fraud.

Wright said there is abundance of evidence showing "only reluctant and ineffective efforts, at best, by the state to comply with U. S. Bureau of Public Roads directives."

Democrat Unit Backs Two Men For Judgeship

Party Candidates To Share Position

Howard P. Loughrie, 301 Baltimore Avenue, and Samuel T. Weatherholt, 322 Avirett Avenue, both were recommended last night by the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee last night to share the vacant Orphans Court judgeship created by the death Sunday of Chief Judge J. French Van Meter.

Under the plans as evolved by the committee at a meeting last night at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, Mr. Weatherholt would serve as judge during August and September and Mr. Loughrie during October and November. Judges elected in November will qualify for four-year terms early in December.

William L. Wilson, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, announced the committee's recommendation. It will be submitted to Governor J. Millard Tawes, who will make the appointment.

Both Candidates

Both Mr. Loughrie and Mr. Weatherholt filed as Democratic candidates for judge of Orphans Court, joining Judge Raymond T. Farrell, who was appointed earlier this year by Governor Tawes. As there were only three Democratic candidates all were certified to the November general election without having to undergo a primary contest. There are three judges of Orphans Court.

In another action, the committee, acting on the recommendation of Judge Farrell, voted to recommend that Judge Hugh Stevenson of Ellerslie, the lone Republican judge, be made chief judge of Orphans Court. He is the last surviving judge of the three selected in 1958. Judge William C. Abbott died in January.

Mr. Wilson's statement read as follows:

"Both Qualified"

"The Democratic State Central Committee has carefully considered the qualifications of Howard P. Loughrie and Samuel T. Weatherholt for the appointment to the current vacancy on Orphans Court and is of the opinion that both Mr. Loughrie and Mr. Weatherholt are eminently qualified to fill this position and in order to give both of these gentlemen an opportunity to render service to the people of Allegany County, the committee has unanimously recommended Mr. Weatherholt to fill the vacancy and to serve half of the balance of the term of the vacancy and Mr. Loughrie will then be recommended to fill the remainder of the vacancy on the Orphans Court.

"The committee, on the recommendation of Judge Raymond T. Farrell, has unanimously recommended the appointment of Judge Hugh Stevenson, the Republican member of the Orphans Court, and the senior member in length of service, as chief judge."

Mr. Loughrie was a United States deputy marshal for 21 years, from 1933 to 1954, and served as clerk of Trial Magistrates Court from February 1959 until last October. He was a Democratic candidate for sheriff of Allegany County in 1958.

Mr. Weatherholt has operated the S. T. Weatherholt and Sons insurance agency for many years. It is now located at 235 Henderson Avenue.

Bedford County Boy Dies After Fall From Car

Perry Donald Howsare, 15, of RFD 1, Bedford, Pa., died last night in Bedford County Memorial Hospital of a broken neck sustained earlier when he fell out of an automobile on Township Route 408 some six miles north of Bedford.

Pennsylvania State Trooper Adam J. Kachurik, who investigated, said that young Howsare died about 15 minutes after he was brought to the hospital. The mishap occurred about 7:45 p. m. DST.

Young Howsare was a passenger in an automobile being driven south on the dirt road by his brother, John Robert Howsare, 17.

When the driver observed a group of horsemen in front of him, he applied his brakes suddenly, the trooper said. The right front door, which apparently had not been closed securely, flew open and Perry Howsare was tossed out of the car.

No charges have been placed against the driver and the investigation is continuing, according to Trooper Kachurik.

Not Entitled To Special Aid

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The attorney general contended Thursday that Maryland's suburban counties are not entitled to the same treatment given Baltimore City by having more than one senator in the legislature.

The city which has six senators, became a separate and independent political subdivision of the state in 1851 and still has interests which are different from those of any Maryland county, the chief law officer added in a brief filed with the Court of Appeals.

The court is to hear arguments Monday on whether the metropolitan counties of Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince Georges and Anne Arundel are entitled to more representation in the Senate.

The Maryland Committee for Fair Representation contends the present Senate makeup of one senator for each county and one for each of Baltimore City's six legislative districts violates the constitutional rights of metropolitan residents to fair representation.

The committee asked that the growing suburban counties be accorded the same privilege given Baltimore City in the last century, when it gained extra seats in both houses of the legislature because of population.

The state said in its reply brief that the constitution of 1867 which still governs the makeup of the legislature, "recognized the "domination of Baltimore City in the economic, political and social structure of the state," and was a sound and reasonable policy.

"The city of Baltimore at that time, and today, houses a vast industrial complex and is the state center of commerce," the attorney general said. "In addition, it is a major world seaport, which places Baltimore in a special trading position requiring a vast transportation and communications network."

Woman Robbed In Store At Knife Point

Hooded Youth Is Sought By Police

A youth early yesterday afternoon slipped a cloth bag over his face and a knife into his hand before robbing a North Centre Street store.

The armed robbery occurred about 1:40 p.m. in the office of the Keystone Home Furnishing Company store at 198 North Centre Street.

The youth, who is being sought by city police, escaped from the establishment after taking about $20 in cash from a metal box in the office.

Capt. James E. Van, who is heading the investigation, said Mrs. Ethelyn Morrocco, secretary of the firm, reported she returned to the store about 1:10 p.m. after getting her lunch.

She told police that as she sat at her desk, she noticed a youth walking up and down the sidewalk past the window of the office.

At about 1:40 p.m., she told police, the youth entered the office wearing on his head a cloth sack, with one slot cut out for the eyes.

Mrs. Morocco told police the youth, about 17 or 18, walked up to her, with a four-inch bladed knife in his hand, and said "Give me the money," and threatened to cut her if the money were not produced.

Police said the youth forced the woman to go to the back of the store while he rifled a metal box of the cash.

Capt. Van said police were unable to get a detailed description of the robber, except for an estimate on age and approximate height.

W. Va. Solons Protest Halt At Sugar Grove

Ask Some Other Use For Big Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—West Virginia members of Congress protested strongly Thursday to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that he did not give them advance notice of his decision to halt construction of a huge space telescope in their state.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., said he learned about it only in a Defense Department letter Wednesday, the same day the cancellation was announced.

McNamara, in a closed meeting with the delegation, was urged to find some other use for the big project at Sugar Grove, W. Va., and to provide more defense work in West Virginia, hard hit by unemployment.

Now Obsolete

The Pentagon announced Wednesday it is abandoning the huge Navy project because scientific advances have rendered it obsolete before it is nearly finished. Another factor was skyrocketing costs since the project began in 1958.

Three government agencies, meanwhile, said they were considering possible use of part of the work accomplished on the project, originally designed to be the world's largest movable radio telescope.

Since 1958, the government had spent $41.7 million of the $126.2 million voted by Congress for the research station at Sugar Grove, W.Va.

Foundation Study

A spokesman for the National Science Foundation said it is studying whether it can use any part of the project as it now stands.

"There is no prospect of taking over the whole thing," the spokesman said.

The NSF, an independent government agency, has a radio astronomical observatory at Green Bank, W.Va., about 30 miles as the crow flies from Sugar Grove. It is a non-military, basic scientific research, unclassified project.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., meanwhile said he was advised by Dr. Allen V. Astin, director of the bureau of standards, that Astin is definitely interested in taking a look at the big telescope at Sugar Grove to see if it can be used in conjunction with the bureau's central radio propagation laboratory.

That laboratory, at Boulder, Colo., is doing research work in outer space influence on radio communication.

Byrd said he has urged the National Aeronautical and Space Administration and others to consider use of the "big dish" antenna at Sugar Grove. He quoted James E. Webb, NASA administrator, as saying "it does not look very promising, but we will look at this with considerable care."

The West Virginia congressional delegation asked Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to meet with them and explain why the Sugar Grove radio installation is being abandoned.

The legislators made public a telegram to McNamara which said:

"The West Virginia delegation has your totally unexpected notice that the Sugar Grove installation is to be closed. We regard this surprise announcement as an unwarranted violation of the cooperation between the administrative and the legislative branches of government."

Tawes Answers Opponent On Blakiston Island Plan

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Tawes said Thursday he was astonished at "an amazing lack of knowledge" displayed by Frank Small Jr. in criticizing the state's action in acquiring Blakiston Island from the federal government.

Small, Republican candidate for governor who will run against Tawes in November, criticized the transfer of the island, located off St. Mary's County, at a meeting of the Maryland Tobacco Growers Association Wednesday at Seaside Park in Calvert County.

Tawes said Small was quoted in newspapers as saying "the island will be primarily a wild bird sanctuary" and that it "will mean that no action will be taken to stop erosion which threatens the island with extinction." Small's objection was aimed at plans to put it under administration of the state's game and fish commission.

Blakiston Island, formerly called St. Clement's, was the site of the first landing in Maryland by Lord Baltimore's colonists in 1634.

Tawes, explaining that he wanted to set the record straight again, said "on February of last year, I learned that there was a possibility that Blakiston Island ... might be declared surplus property by the federal government and offered for sale."

He said he wrote to federal authorities expressing Maryland's desire to acquire the entire island and make it a state shrine.

The governor said that federal authorities advised that it was doubtful if the state could acquire the entire island under the category of "public park, public recreational area and-or historic monument." The authorities said the state could probably acquire the lower end under that category and that the balance would be made available to private bidding.

He said he was informed that the entire island could be secured if an application were filed under the "real property for the conservation of wildlife" category.

Tawes said the state filed two applications, one under each of the designations, and the General Services Administration approved them.

"The state of Maryland, through the department of public improvements, is now drawing up the proper quit claim deed which will transfer to the state of Maryland from the federal government the entire 60 acres which now compose this historic island," Gov. Tawes said.

"I want to make it clear, once and for all, that it is the intention of the state to make available funds to restore the island and area adjacent thereto, to provide proper access and to take the necessary action to protect the shoreline from further erosion."

Explosive Note Marks End Of Highway Probe

Contributions Cited During Squabble

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House investigation of West Virginia federal highway practices ended Thursday night on an explosive political note and an assertion of colossal non-compliance with federal law.

Apolitical squabble erupted concerning contributions sought by the state Democratic party—with Burl A. Sawyers, the state's road commissioner, sitting in the crossfire as a witness.

Republican members of the House Highway Investigating Committee contended coercion was used in soliciting funds from West Virginia Road Commission employees in violation of federal and state laws.

Sawyers Ahead

Sawyers testified he wrote a letter as a directive to commission department heads saying the pledge cards and contribution coupon books were being distributed at the request of the West Virginia Democratic Committee. The letter said workers were to understand that all contributions were on a voluntary basis and would be required of no one.

But Reps. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., and Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, asserted there was a violation of the law.

"The way you do it in West Virginia," Schwengel said, "is not a voluntary plan."

Cramer quoted from letters he said were received from former road commission workers. The workers, he said, related that they had been threatened by superiors with job or overtime losses if they did not contribute.

Chairman John A. A. Blatnik, D-Minn., criticized Cramer's reading of what Blatnik called crackpot letters.

Cramer said he was willing for the committee staff to get affidavits from the letter-writers.

Blatnik then called a short recess which halted the exchange between Democratic and Republican members.

Acting chairman Jim Wright, D-Tex., in summing up the hearings started last week, said the evidence shows "that what has been going on in that state (West Virginia) for years is an insufferable example of administrative impetitude, inefficiency and incompetence."

In fairness, Wright added, there is no evidence of outright fraud.

Wright said there is abundance of evidence showing "only reluctant and ineffective efforts, at best, by the state to comply with U. S. Bureau of Public Roads directives."

New Record Set In Mail Obscenity Investigations

The Post Office Department established new record highs in mail obscenity investigations, arrests and convictions during fiscal year 1962, according to a report received by Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon.

More obscenity investigations were conducted by the department last year than in any previous year in postal history and convictions were obtained in 98.8 per cent of all cases brought to trial.

Success of the obscenity law enforcement program was attributed to three factors. Cooperation between the Justice Department, Postal Inspection service and state law enforcement agencies, Postmaster General J. Edward Day's decision early in his tenure of office to emphasize criminal action against offenders, rather than administrative proceedings. And a de-emphasis on publicizing mail obscenity cases.

Mr. Day noted that not one obscenity case during the year was handled through the administrative procedure of which the Supreme Court was critical in its "Manual Enterprises" decision of June 25. The high court ruling came in a case on which the Post Office Department had taken administrative action on April 28, 1960.

Postal service investigations resulted in 605 obscenity arrests during the fiscal year ending June 30, and 503 convictions. Trials still pend in a number of arrests made during the fiscal year.

In his report, Mr. Day said, "The Supreme Court decision in the Manuel Enterprises case only serves to strengthen my long-held conviction that the way to stop these peddlers of pornography from polluting the minds and undermining the morals of our society is to bring criminal indictments against them."

Democrat Unit Backs Two Men For Judgeship

Party Candidates To Share Position

Howard P. Loughrie, 301 Baltimore Avenue, and Samuel T. Weatherholt, 322 Avirett Avenue, both were recommended last night by the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee last night to share the vacant Orphans Court judgeship created by the death Sunday of Chief Judge J. French Van Meter.

Under the plans as evolved by the committee at a meeting last night at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, Mr. Weatherholt would serve as judge during August and September and Mr. Loughrie during October and November. Judges elected in November will qualify for four-year terms early in December.

William L. Wilson, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, announced the committee's recommendation. It will be submitted to Governor J. Millard Tawes, who will make the appointment.

Both Candidates

Both Mr. Loughrie and Mr. Weatherholt filed as Democratic candidates for judge of Orphans Court, joining Judge Raymond T. Farrell, who was appointed earlier this year by Governor Tawes. As there were only three Democratic candidates all were certified to the November general election without having to undergo a primary contest. There are three judges of Orphans Court.

In another action, the committee, acting on the recommendation of Judge Farrell, voted to recommend that Judge Hugh Stevenson of Ellerslie, the lone Republican judge, be made chief judge of Orphans Court. He is the last surviving judge of the three elected in 1958. Judge William C. Abbott died in January.

Mr. Wilson's statement read as follows:

"Both Qualified"

"The Democratic State Central Committee has carefully considered the qualifications of Howard P. Loughrie and Samuel T. Weatherholt for the appointment to the current vacancy on Orphans Court and is of the opinion that both Mr. Loughrie and Mr. Weatherholt are eminently qualified to fill this position and in order to give both of these gentlemen an opportunity to render service to the people of Allegany County, the committee has unanimously recommended Mr. Weatherholt to fill the vacancy and to serve half of the balance of the term of the vacancy and Mr. Loughrie will then be recommended to fill the remainder of the vacancy on the Orphans Court.

"The committee, on the recommendation of Judge Raymond T. Farrell, has unanimously recommended the appointment of Judge Hugh Stevenson, the Republican member of the Orphans Court, and the senior member in length of service, as chief judge."

Mr. Loughrie was a United States deputy marshal for 21 years, from 1933 to 1954, and served as clerk of Trial Magistrates Court from February 1959 until last October. He was a Democratic candidate for sheriff of Allegany County in 1958.

Mr. Weatherholt has operated the S. T. Weatherholt and Sons insurance agency for many years. It is now located at 235 Henderson Avenue.

Bedford County Boy Dies After Fall From Car

Perry Donald Howsare, 15, of RFD 1, Bedford, Pa., died last night in Bedford County Memorial Hospital of a broken neck sustained earlier when he fell out of an automobile on Township Route 408 some six miles north of Bedford.

Pennsylvania State Trooper Adam J. Kachurik, who investigated, said that young Howsare died about 15 minutes after he was brought to the hospital. The mishap occurred about 7:45 p. m. DST.

Young Howsare was a passenger in an automobile being driven south on the dirt road by his brother, John Robert Howsare, 17.

When the driver observed a group of horsemen in front of him, he applied his brakes suddenly, the trooper said. The right front door, which apparently had not been closed securely, flew open and Perry Howsare was tossed out of the car.

No charges have been placed against the driver and the investigation is continuing, according to Trooper Kachurik.

Not Entitled To Special Aid

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The attorney general contended Thursday that Maryland's suburban counties are not entitled to the same treatment given Baltimore City by having more than one senator in the legislature.

The city which has six senators, became a separate and independent political subdivision of the state in 1851 and still has interests which are different from those of any Maryland county, the chief law officer added in a brief filed with the Court of Appeals.

The court is to hear arguments Monday on whether the metropolitan counties of Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince Georges and Anne Arundel are entitled to more representation in the Senate.

The Maryland Committee for Fair Representation contends the present Senate makeup of one senator for each county and one for each of Baltimore City's six legislative districts violates the constitutional rights of metropolitan residents to fair representation.
